7.4 King Washer is so called, if we are rightly informed, after the mane of its inventor; but it may well assume the name as a royal tile, for it is destined to lead it over all conjections, and reign supreme in the Laundry. Its claims are everywhere a knowledged, and not only are those who should not from all washing machines, but some who have been using other machines are replacing them with the King Washer.—Buttimore Gatetie.

The King Wather arrived safe on Friday evening; on Monday meeting I had my "maiden" experience in washing. Ap attention examination by experts of the family clinited the following results; one-fourth of the time, three-fourths saved; better done and cleaner, a saving (meal-valued) in the wear. The servants are delighted, and my wife and I are pleased. I will take great pleasure in recommending the King Washer-Chas. L. TROUTMAN, Assist. U. S. Assessor, Richmond, Va. The King Washer is so complete, and answers so well all the energies desired, that there is nothing more desired in this time saving, labor-saving machine,—Phila. Press Having purchased one of your King Washing machines, and practically tested its capacity for economy of time and labor, and also it cleaning properties. I do not have itate to say it will do all you claim for it, and I will cheeffully recommend it to my friends to be the best washing machine I have ever seen.—J. W. LOANE, 67 W. Prett St., Bolt.

Does it take all the dirt out? Try it, and we venture the assection that you cannot find a piece of lines se-oiled that the Kiva Wesper will not make clean as new in five minutes—Boston Journal. I take pleasure is adding my testimeny to the gos and effectually, and is unbubbelly one of the greates labor-saving machines of the age.—Dr. J. H. Schenck 15 N. Sorth St., Phila.

SPECIAL.

In the invention of the KING WASHER, it was designed that it should combine all the good qualities of every other washing machine, and at the same time to have not a single objection-the feature. FARM AND HOUSEHOLD. Raising Celery.

The successful raising of celery is one of the most difficult things to achieve in garden-culture. It requires nearly as much attention as hot-house grapes.— The failure in raising this vegetable which is the rule, is mainly from neglect of certain conditions. These are: 1 Trenches should be dug from eight to ten inches in depth, in rich soil. 2. The trenches should be half-filled with halfrotted manure, mixed with the soil, in plants should be set out from ten days which the plants should be well set down. 3. There should be only a single row of plants, instead of two or more, as is commonly the case. 4. The to two weeks carlier than is customary; that is to say, for the first crop the last week in June, and the rest or the bulk of the crop in the first three weeks in July. Boards should be placed over the rows to protect the plants against the scorchings of the sun from 10 to 4 o'clock, until they have taken a firm grees of the earth and commenced. firm grasp of the earth and commenced growing; they should be watered for some time, in the absence of rain, twice a day, afterwards once a day. After growing about eight inches, the earth should be carefully drawn to the rows and continued gradually as the growth progresses. Manure-water is excellent Having purchased the Lumber and should be applied at least twice a Yard of Hill & Alexander, I am week until the middle of October.— In drawing the earth to the plants care must be taken not to cover the leaders and stunt the growth. Use the hand altogether in distributing the soil about the plants and releasing the leaves when covered. Celery can be produced four feet in length from the root to the top of the leaves, by good management and we have so grown it more than once upon our own premises. Many persons cultivate celery in double and triple rows. This does well enough where ground is scarce; but where there is plenty of room single rows are decidedly to be preferred, even though the plants are set closer together than usual.-Gen. Telegraph.

Turkeys and Chickens.

I desire to write what I know of rais- Queensware & Willow-ware, ing turkeys and chickens. The recipes given for curing chickens of the gapes, such as whites of eggs, corn meal with pepper, wheat soaked in turpentine, and a number of others, are of little, if any value. The gapes in chickens are caused by small worms getting into the windpipe. I have raised thousands upon thousands of chickens, bought and sold chickens, and believe that gapes is a contagious disease, for my chickens never had them until I bought strange chickens. I have tried many cures, and there are none that amount to anything except the horse hair. By inserting the horse hair in the chicken's windpipe you draw the small red worm out, and this at once relieves the chicken and the gapes are

In regard to raising turkeys, the best plan is to feed them on milk made into The subscriber has just erected at his farm, near the city, the most improved machinery for making BONK DUST, and is now ready to fill orders for any quantity, which will be delivered at the shortest notice.

The BONE DUST will be finer than any horetofore made by him (no chemical process resorted to) enabling the Farmer or Planter to row it with the Delil.

MR. SAMUEL SANDS, well known to the Farmers and Planters of the United States as the former Editor the American Farmer and Rural Register, will have charge of his office, No. 63 SOUTH GAY STIRET, near tried, and upon a clear examination I find that it does not agree with them, and in many instances kills them. I know that the foregoing is correct for I have tried many plans, and experience is always the best guide. READING GAZETTE.

Management of Clover Hay. Clover should be moved as soon a it is well in blossom. There is no necessity to wait for a brown head; there will be plenty to be seen before the crop is well down. Cut when the dew is off and allow to dry until afternoon, when it should be shaken up and turned before the dew falls. If a tedder is employed its constant use will fit the clover to be put in cocks the same day. If turned by hand, it may lie until the noon of sad will, on application, promptly send by mail full lines of Samples of the Newest and most Fachionable (itself, of THENCHI, ENGLISH and DOMESTIC MANC).

As we buy and sell only for count, and make no bad debta, we are able and willing to sell our goods at your TEN TO FITSEN PAR CARI, LESS PARCHY than it may lie until the noon of next day, when it may be put in cocks, and can be high and narrow as possible; they will shed water better in this shape, and, if caps are used, a yard square will be sufficiently large to cover them.—

Caps are to be strongly recommended, and the above size is sufficient, as the top only needs protection. Put up, and thus protected, the hay may stay in the top only needs protection. Put up, and thus protected, the hay may stay in the field until it is all made, when it may be hauled together. If any cock should be damp inside, spread for a few minutes it will dry rapidly. Clover cured in the cock is much more valuable than that dried in the sun, and wastes less in handling. Put away the FIRST CUT HAY by itself, in a place convenient for use in the spring. Cows coming in early in the spring will thrive on this hay; the milk will be largely increased in quantity, and be richer in quality, while the butter will come easily, be free from white curdy specks, and in color will not be far behind that from June grass.

AMER. AGRICULTURIST. The Preservation of Eggs. The Journal de Pharmacie et de Chimic contains an account of some experiments by M. H. Violette, on the best method of preserving eggs—a sub-ject of much importance in France.— Many methods had been tried; continued immersions in lime water or sal water; exclusion of air by water, sawdust, etc., and even varnishing has been tried, but respectively condemned. The simplicity of the method adopted on many farms, namely, that of closing the pores of the shell with grease or oil, had, however, attracted the attention of the author, who draws the following conclusions from a series of experiments on this method. Vegetable oil, more especially linseed, simply rub-bed on the egg, hinders any alteration for a sufficiently extensive period, and presents a very simple and efficacious method of preservation, eclipsing any methods hitherto recommended or practiced.
