ORPHANS' COURT.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD. Management of Colts.

Colts are very apt to be left to shift for themselves after weaning. This is wrong. A year's gain in the usefulness of a horse may easily be made by care and attention during the first few months of its life. The mare, while nursing its foal, should not be overworked, and good pasture or green feed in the stable will keep her in fair condition, and furnish sufficient nourishment for the foal. When weaned, and pasture becomes short, neglect is hurtful; then care should be exercised to keep it growing. During the fall months some of the best early cut hay should be given to it; and when the horses are stabled, let it have a loose box, or stall adjoining them, where it can see and become used to the discipline of the stable. Everything around it should be well secured, lest in rubbing itself it might get some-thing loose. A habit of breaking things and getting loose is easily and invariably formed at this time, and should be guarded against. During winter, feed your colts as you feed your horses. Hive theme a share of what is served out, oats, corn, or ground feed as i may. They cannot grow or fare well otherwise. "Stinginess" don't pay in rearing young animals. An addition of twenty-five or forty dollars to its value may result in the winter's feeding and care of one colt. Generosity here (of course exercised with judgment) is only wise foresight, and will pay good interest on the investment. Colts are better kept up than allowed to run around. They will become more decile and tractable, and will learn fewer tricks.

Take them out only for exercise, except when at pasture, and then be sure to have a secure fence, or they will inevitably learn to rub it down or jump over it. Train your colt to walk, and keep it walking. Farmers don't want fast-trotting horses, as yet, we have need so far of fast-walking horses, great need we may say, for they are far too scarce. Therefore, train colts to walk at the rate of four miles an hour at least. The time will come when a horse that can walk his mile in twelve minutes will take a prize at an agricultural fair, equal in value to the best trotter. A team of such horses could plow an acre of land, with a furrow six inches wide, in five hours. allowing time for turnings round. This is above the quantity plowed on the average now, in a day of ten hours. Horses of such capacity would be worth a large price, and it should be our endeavor to produce them. We have a breed that can transmit trotting capacity to its descendants, why could we not raise up a breed of walking horses?

Some one might make a name and fortune in this. RAISING LAMBS FOR MARKET-From Walks and Talks" in American Agriculturist :- The the Deacon never gets excited about anything; at any rate, he never shows it. But he is quite enthu sinstic in his praise of my grade Cotswold lambs. "I always told you," he says, "that cross-bred animals are more profitable than thorough-breds. The truth is, I told the Deacon so and it is so far complimentary to find that he has adopted my views, in part, even though he claims them for his own.

I say "in part, because he does not clearly understand the point I insist upon in crossing. I want a thorough bred ram to cross with common, hardy vigorous ewes; whereas the Deacon can hardly get rid of the idea that a crossbred ram, provided he is as large and well-formed as the thorough-bred is just as good, whereas I know that such is not the case. We have got, up to this The Celebrated Dixie Grain Fan time, 67 lambs from 60 common Merino Grain Crailes, Scythes, Hand-Rakes, Pitch Forks, Horse Fork Ropes and Blocks, Scythe Stones, &c., &c.

They are the healthiest and hardiest lambs I ever saw. We have had not the slightest trouble in any way, and have lost but one lamb in the whole lot. One of them weighed, when dropped, 12 1-2 lbs, and we had many nearly, or quite, as large, and the shepherd says some that were larger. This afternoon, April 22d, we weighed five of these grade lambs that are from eight to nine weeks old. They weigh respectively 50, 46 1-2, 52 1-2, 47 1-2, and 46 1-2 lbs., cr an average of 49 lbs. each. Is not that pretty good for ewes that at 4 years old only weighed 80 lbs., and that I bought for 3 cents per lb. The ewes have had will eat, in small troughs separate from the ewes; but they do not eat half as Balt by the Sack, Fine and Coarse, together with a large stock of Primo Herrings, Nos. 2 and 3 Mackerel, at very low prices.

Grass Scode of all kinds in season.

Grass Scode of all kinds in season. much as I wish they would-not to exceed 10 lbs, a day among the whole lot. This is the only fault I have to find with them. I think lambs from Canada ewes would eat more meal, and consequently fat better; but some of my neighbors who have Canada ewes, have no better lambs than these of mine from Merino ewes. Liberal feeding, and a thorough-bred ram, is the secret in raising good lambs for the butcher. RENOVATING OLD ORCHARDS .- Sev cral modes are recommend how this can be successfully done; but we do not see how it can be more effectually done than by the one we have frequently recommended. That is to cut out all the dying wood, and three-fourths of the mended. That is to cut out all the suckers, scrape the trunks of the trees completely, removing all the old hard, and practically tested its capacity for economy of time and practically tested its capacity for economy of time and lalor, and also its cleaning properties, I do not host whale oil soap and water, a pound of the soap to a bucket of water; and give Practist. But. the soap to a bucket of water; and give of good barnyard manure. If there is ny life or productiveness left in the rees this will bring it out.

I take pleasure is abiling my testimony to the gradient of the suggestion that the trunks of the rees should be shorn of all the leaves.

I take pleasure is abiling my testimony to the gradient of the suggestion that the trunks of the rees should be shorn of all the leaves. any life or productiveness left in the trees this will bring it out. trees should be shorn of all the boughs and allowed to sucker, and some of these when large enough grafted, will prove a failure. The grafting of the ordinary suckers growing from the trunks of old trees can rarely be done with success. We tried this several times and the grafts all died at the end of the second or third year. Far better to graft the old trees whenever there is any smoothbarked wood near enough to a main bough. They will not only grow, but in most cases fruit the second year, and

PARING POTATOES .- Many persons n preparing potatoes for cooking, pare off a thick slice from the surface instead of digging out the eyes. Prof. Blot, in his lectures on the potato, says this skinning process is all wrong, as the strength of the vegetable lies near the surface-the starch growing less abundunt as the center is approximated. The starch near the surface, contains the nutriment, which is not more than seven or eight per cent, the balance being mainly water. DRIED-BEEF GRAVY .- Slice two teacups of dried beef very thin, add one quart of sweet cream; lot it boil a minute or two; then thicken with one table-spoonful of flour, one egg, and a little sweet milk, (beat well the thickening before pouring it in,) and stir until done, which will be two minutes.
