FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

HOUSEKEEPING

Mr. Editor:—I have been thinking for some time of writing you a short communication on domestic matters.

You have something about almost every thing in your paper; but very little in the house-keeper's department. Now there are many valuable hints and suggestions that may be given in this department.

To be a good housekeeper is a most desirable accomplishment, although I fear there are many young ladies that do not give such things a thought,— leaving them to their mothers and servants, thinking it will be time enough when they get a house of their own to learn how to make bread, cakes and puddings. Now I feel different; I think it quite an accomplishment to know how to make every thing that is good, and make it good; and to try to make some elegant puddings, and every thing neat and graceful. We all feel the better for it.

How soon you can tell when you visit a family if they are good housekeepers or not, and if they have a good system in their management. Housekeeping soon shows for itself. It is best to have a place for every thing and keep every thing in its place, and then there is not so much danger of their getting in disorder. Work will go along much smoother when you know where to get each article when needed.

House-keeping must have its theory as well as farming.

I have some choice recipes for puddings—good for prince or peasant—and all I ask is to give them a trial, and you will, I know, pronounce them good.

The first one is

COTTAGE PUDDING.—To one cup of sugar add half cup of butter, one egg well beaten, two teaspoonful of cream tartar mixed in two cups of flour, half teaspoonful of soda mixed in one cup of milk. Bake half an hour; serve hot with brandy or wine sauce.

QUEEN OF PUDDINGS.—One pint of bread crumbs to one quart of milk, half cup of sugar, the yolks of four eggs, grated rind of one lemon, butter the size of an egg. Bake till rich and not watery. Whip the whites with half a cup of sugar; spread over the pudding some jelly, and then put on the whites of the eggs. Replace in the oven to brown.

RICK PUDDING.—Three pints of milk,

one cup of rice; simmer three hours;

three eggs, one large lemon, twelve teaspoonful of sugar; beat the whites stiff with half a cup of sugar.

Set in the oven about ten minutes to brown.

I will write to you again soon, and tell you something about bread making and something more about house-keeping. MARY, the Farmer's Daughter.

[We hope "Mary, the Farmer's Daughter" will find it pleasant to discuss house-keeping and the culinary art often, and that her example may incite other farmers' daughters to pursue so praiseworthy a course. We think we have published some of Mary's recipes in

The Whig before, but they are good enough to bear reprinting.—Ed.]

ORCHARD GRASS.—The Germantown

Telegraph makes the following comments on the above named grass:

"The Baltimore American is correct in saying a good word for the orchard grass. It deserves it all. It is valuable to cultivate anywhere, especially in the southern States. Our contemporary is right.

The value of the orchard grass is
