The Result In Cecll. We publish to-day a table showing the official vote of this county, which, though gratifying, is not quite as good a result as we had reason to anticapate. Mr. Tome has triumphantly carried the county, reversing a majority of last year of 632 and were coined with the object of flxing a converting it to a Republican victory of stigma on his character of a slave trader; a 134 majority. In addition to this we have stigma which attaches to the whole party elected one county commissioner, Mr. P. C. Strickland and the county surveyor, Mr. J. W. Passmore. These are substanof last year a gainst us. Nover did the tial fruits plucked from a heavy majority walls warning their party against spurious tickets issued by the Republicans, while they circulated similiar tickets by hundreds. Their last desperate effort to deceive through the Democrat out did all former attempts of the kind in its boldness and published falsehoods, published when too late to be contradicted by the Whig.

Mr. Job Haines, doubtless the most competent man as a legislator on either ticket, without disparaging the qualifications and admitted legal ability on the tickets, was defeated by being cut at North East, owing to misrepresentation of his views on the local license question, and because he did not choose to treat a set of bummers on the occasion of his visit to that town.-Good people, this is the way our politics is controlled; and good people you have a remedy for this crying evil and burning shame in the local option law, which takes whisky out of the hands of political partisans and places the control of it directly in the hands of the people, without the intervention of a legislatiure between them and taeir greatest enemy.

The Lesson of the Hour.

Nine States held elections on Tuesday last-New York, Massachusetts, Illinois, Maryland, New Jersey, Mississippi, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Virginia. The result in each, as far as heard from, we give elsewhere; which is a signal defeat of modern Democracy, with its thieves and rings. In New York the rout was a fearful one which Tammany sustained. In this State and this county, the result is gratifying, and promises a clear path for Grant next year. The cohesive element of the Democracy is success in obtaining office. Let it be denied that, and it has not a principle to rally upon. Once completely defeated in this State, and its hopes for a second lease of power are blasted. The defeat of that party is the hope of republican government. It grovels and panders to the basest passions of the lowest and most degraded class of mankind; trusting to an ancient and an honorable name to bind the better class of its followers to it, with a blind, unquestioning fanaticism, the leaders, an artful, designing race of politicians, give the lower element an unrestrained license to indulge its brutal instincts. Wherever the Democratic party has possessed power for any length of time, the boldest and most artful thieves have made their way to the front. In New York, an organized band have conspired, and through the aid of party machinery, have succeeded in plundering property-holders of untold millions. While the great wealth of that city and the myriads of the basest wretches of the human family have enabled the thieves to organize a system of plunder, the magnitude of which has astonished the world, lesser operations of the same kind have, to some extent, been overshadowed. But wherever we turn our eyes, and discover that party entrenched, we find the public treasures squandered, and crime and a better state of affairs in our politics .-While the corruptions which are bringing disgrace on our republican form of government are visible on every hand, the virtuous indignation of a better class, which has so unmistakably shown its strength in the elections of Tuesday, gives promise of a latent power for good, which will, in the no distant future, purge our politics of the vicious element that so often bears down and threatens virtue and patriotism with total subjugation.

In this State the result is most gratifying, again to excite the envy and jealousy of the charges rung in every conceivable manner on the negro, the foreigner, and whatever else promised to excite the prejudices of the uneducated; but these last resorts of a depraved and swindling party, showed that their force for evil had been spent, and revealed the better nature of the great mass of thinking and useful men, asserting its dignity and regarding the principles promulgated by the Republican party, which are on the side of morality and intelligence in government, as opposed to ignorance, depravity and plunder.

An element which has neither virtue, patriotism or property at stake; which has no reputation that it regards, to lose, has held, and still holds, too great a power in our government, disputing the place with intelligence, decency and property .-The party bigotry which still reigns supreme in our politics, is foreign to everything else in our new world economy, and is an offspring of a darker age. That so practical and business a people as the Americans should prove such egregious fools in one of the most vitally important concerns of life -their government-is, when examined by the rules of common sense, one of the most astonishing anomalies in their history .-Our government, in all its branches, from National, down through State and county, to municipal, is as purely a plain business transaction, as the management of a bank or railroad. It is cut loose from all religious or sectarian entanglements. There are no hereditary honors, estates, or families to be kept up; no titles to be preserved, and classes to be fostered, as superiors among their fellow men; and yet the jealousies and prejudices of party, the creations which grew out of these modes and means of government, and belong to a past age, outliving their time, have been handed down to vex and hinder the workings of our plain republican institutions! And this Democratic party has done more to foster and entail this positive curse upon our land and nation than all other parties combined, till, at the present time, it seems only to have the propagation of this evil and curse for its mission. The people are beginning to see this party in its true light. and are steadily moving to its final over-throw and extinction. The judgment of Tuesday last has settled the question forever against it as a national party. In future it can only figure as a guerilla-a marauder-by bold and secret dashes

-All the members of the Bonaparte family are to be interdicted from returning to France. "Our Own" knocks The Democrat higher than a Kite.

The reply through the ballot box in this county, on Tuesday last, was a fit response to the demagoguery of The Cecil Democrat. A more inexcusable, indecent and villainous newspaper attack was never made upon a leading business, upright and honorable man, than was made by that paper upon Mr. Tome. Not satisfied with abusing the man in his business relations, lies

Mr. Tome has majority of 6,000. cooked the Democracy in this county, and the sheet that so meanly assailed his character as a man of business and good citipoor rooster appeared but the ghost of his former proud self. The tickets at the Elkton poll counted out very favorably for the Democracy in the early part of the night, and the leaders had a satisfied air; but the turn of the night brought a turn of the tide in their good fortune, and the telegraph began to send bad news. By the time the vote was counted, Democracy was too sick to yell. All the savage in him was subdued.

There being no Tournament to distract The Democrat, we hope it will hear that there was an election held in several States this week, which nearly ruined the great -"in a horn"-party it has preached so much about in the past. That roosterah! he has the cholera, and is not able to mount his old perch at the head of The Democrat. The last time he was out he was crowing over New Hampshire.

- At the Elkton polls all decency was disregarded and the law violated by intimidation of poor men who owed bills to prominet Democratic leaders; and the supply of whisky, to voters who were taken into the slums and drenched till brutalized, then dragged to the polls, and the powerless hand which grasped the Democratic ballot hald a very the rail into the judges' faces. Washington; then dragged to the polls, and the powerless poked over the rail into the judges' faces, by main strength. Some of the liquor holes, with closed windows and doors, plied their traffic in violation of the election law, judging from the sounds within and the drunken men who reeled out. The next Grand Jury, if it performs its duty, will inquire into and bring to punishment all Harford, these violators of the election law, which gueen Anno's, St. Mary's, in doubt, are noticeably growing bolder every year. · Rumors were rife of irregular practices | Calvert, at the polls in the First District, which we have not had opportunity of inquiring into to ascertain the truth or falsity of.

Not much fighting occurred, and the day passed off pretty orderly. A difficulty occurred between Bill Crow and John Bennett about voting some free American citizen not of African descent, which culminated in a slight "scrimmage" and a 'lick'' or two. which was promptly checked by the Sheriff and bystanders, and order restored. Two or three others we noticed late in the day with "punched" heads, but good order generally prevailed.

The counting out lasted till about four o'clock on Wednesday morning, and returns from other Districts came in slowly during the forenoon of Wednesday. The result of the voting was ascertained from all the Districts, except the

A and take up their march in the line of proous classes against this messenger was expected every hour from the gress with the new and more liberty-loving First; but the day wore on to evening and ing to every lover of order, morality, and nothing from the First. Rumors were rife in the morning that the judges had counted out till 12 o'clock and then closed up and retired to bed, like staid, easy-going citizens, and commenced work the next morning, at eight o'clock. The betting gentry offered to put up nothing higher than a "big apple." And the day wore into the night, but still no news came from the "First." That District never was so important before. Thursday morning finally dawned, and every man met his neighbor on the street with the old question, "Any life. The old watchwords used time and news from the First?" But no news from the First that could be relied on. -Governor Bullock, of Georgia, has sent -Governor Bullock, of Georgia, has sent in his resignation, and will be succeeded by Lieutenant-Governor Conly. His reasons for resigning are mainly that the Senate, aided by a few Republicans, intended to impeach him on false accusations, and get him out of the way, so that a tool of their own can occupy the place. He gives other reasons, but we confess we cannot see the force of any of them. It is probable that Bullock's resignation will re-unite the Republicans of the Etate; and if so, the party will be able to carry it as in.

THE ELECTIONS.

Glorious Triumphs by the Republicans. Cheering News from all Quarters.

NEW YORK. The result in New York City is particularly gratifying. Only one Senator (Tweed) of the Tammany nominees is elected, who is more likely to take a seat in the State Prison than in the legislature. The legislature stands: Senate-Republicans 21. Democrats 6, Reform Democrats 2. Assembly-Republicans 90, Democrats 33, Reform Democrats 5. The State gives 12,000 to 16,000 Republican majority.

The above results are not official, but will serve to show the character of the contest n this State, which, although the prestige of victory remains with the other side, is a triumph for the Republican party. The Democrats feel this, and indulge in no boasting over the result. These majorities reduced to almost nothing, too plainly show how rapidly and surely power is slipping out of the hands of that party in Maryland, the very last State they expected to lose; for here, if anywhere, that spirit of slavery, unbroken by the scourge of war, and reinforced by thousands from the South who made this State a place of refuge, when the Federal armies trampled rebellion from the seceded States, might hope to intrench itself in impregnable strongholds. But even in Maryland, it finds no longer an abiding place, free from danger. The great avenger, progress and universal intelligence, is marching on to a sure conquest of even Maryland, Kentucky and Delaware, selves under the banner of Republicanism,

For several years the legislature in both branches has been entirely Democratic .-This year Frederick elects a Republican Senator and five members of the House of Delegates. In Caroline the Republicans elect one member of the legislature.

The result is handsome and inspiriting, and fully up to the expectations previous to the election. It is believed that Senator Sherman's re-election is secured. There is some opposition to him, but it will probably vanish by the time the Legislature is organized.
