Adams, Governor Brown, Senator Trumbull, or Judge Davis, we shall give him an equally hearty support. Mr. Adams' qualifications for the officeare preeminent; and yet it may be the final judgement of the two conventions that some other admirable candidate would have more chances of an election. ## Of Course.

The following report from the proceedings of the Legislature of Wednesday last, will serve to show how the present liquor legislature treat their temperance constitnents. It required no gift of prophecy to predict it from the first:

Mr. Stone explained that while the committee would be glad to frame a law to meet the views of the people at large, this bill, requiring bond by the liquor seller for consequential damages, went a step to far, and that the committee further doesn as do not belong to, and will not be depend as do not belong to, and will not be depend ent upon the grog interest for their election.

who would so sarely restore to that high office the dignity it possessed in the better days of the Republic. He is in every respect the opposite of General Grant; in capacity, standing, civil experience, states manlike knowledge, and public esteem. If Mr. Adams should receive the joint nominations of the Cincinnati Convention and the Democratic National Convention, there is no statesman of either party whom we would support with more zeal or greater of the provided proposition to a subscription by Anne Arundel county to the Drum Point Railroad. In the Senate a veto was received from the Governor on the bill to extend the jurisdiction of Justices of the Peace in Tablot county to assault and battery cases. The bill for the relief of Chicago by admitting building materials free of duty was adopted by a majority of three. The Senate then resolved itself into a debating society on the target of the day. In the is no statesman of either party whom we would support with more zeal or greater satisfaction. Having been abroad during the civil war, taking no active part in polities since his return, there is nothing in his record to which either Democrats or Liberal Republicans could object. The drift of Democratic sentiment favors the nomination of some Liberal Republican of high character; and in such a combined movement as is now in contemplation, there are likely to be conflicting preferences in the early stages of the movement.— Whether the candidate finally settled upon. but not acted on.

In the Senate on Tuesday, leave was asked for the introduction of a bill to permit Baltimore county to endorse the bonds of the Mayyland Central Railroad to the extent of $200,000. The Finance Commit-tee reported the bill to appropriate $100,000 in aid of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, with an amendment allowing a present expendi-ture of one-half the amount and retaining the remainder in the Treasury. The amendment was adopted and bill ordered to a third reading. The Advanced Money Mortgage bill was passed after being amen ded so as to exempt St. Mary's and Balti-more counties from the operations of the law. In the House of Delegates an unfavorable report was made on the bill to held liquor sellers responsible for the damages it best to reject all class or local measures.

The report was adopted.

Grain Inspection.—There appears to be considerable excitement at present, in Baltimore, over the inspection laws, which are being discussed in the Legislature, with a strong influence for the repeal of all such laws. The grain inspection law most interests our agricultural interest; and farmers watch with more anxiety the motions and debates on this law than any other.—If our farmers consign their produce to honest and well estabished Commission Merchants, like our old friend, F. E. Merchants, like our old friend, F. E. Marine, 53 West Pratt Street, they will need no inspection law of the State to protect their interests.

SCRIBNER'S FOR APRIL -A half dozen illustrated articles, an unusual number of short stories, several bright essays and short stories, several bright essays and sketches, two or three papers of special interest to scholars, and some excellent poems, make the April number of Scribact's not only popularly attractive, but really valuable. The leading article, beautifully illustrated, is descriptive of the great United States Navy Yard at Mare Island, California. "Curiostites of Plant Life" is an entertaining paper on Natural History, with a number of Striking illustrations. Prof. Schele de Vere writes sketchily, and with the aid of pictures, of the Earth's "Hidden Treasures;" and Amos G. Draper, himself an inmate of the institution, describes "The Silent College at Washington." Apropos of Easter, we find a graphic account, by Eugens Schuyler, of the Russian observance of the feast; also a thoughtful and characteristic poem by Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney. "Awakened Japan" is the title of a brief and timely paper by Noah Brooks, awniter unusually well informed on Japanese matters. The three short stories are especially readable. well informed on Japanese matters. The three short stories are especially readable. They are "The Mullenville Mystery," by young Hawthorne; "With the False trophet: A Mormon Wife's Story," by Mrs. Raffensperger; and "The Haunted Closet," by Mrs. Weiss. There is a suggestive and touching little paper on "The Boy John." Warner's "Back-log Studies—IV." are juicy and delicious as usual. These papers have attracted wide attention, and constitute one of the most attractive featpers have attracted who attractive features of the Monthly. "Shall we Say 'Is Being built'" is a spirited and scholarly essay in the field of grammatical controversy, by Fitzedward Hall, of Oxford University; and in an able and eloquent paper Dr. Taylor Lewis defends the belief in "The One Human Rece" in opensition to "The One Human Race," in opposition to the theories of a race before Adam, Among the poems, Margaret J.
