Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Arzenbly of Maryland, That all that part of the Chesapeake Bay and lie waters lying northward of the following Bine, viz. Beginning at the light-house on Turkey Point, in Cecil county, and drawn westward to a point half a mile north of the most northerly part of Spentils Island; thence continuing said line still westward within half a mile of and north of the northerly part of Spentils Island, and the adjacent main land, until it reaches the shere in Harford county, at or near Oskington, be and the same is hereby exempt and released from the operation and force of sections one and three, of Article hiery-eight, of the Code of Public General Laws, title "Will Fowl," and the following sections enacted, to be in force and operation northward of said line, in this section particularly described.

Sec. 2. And be itenacted, That the scason for shooting wild fowl northward of the line described in section one of this Act, shall begin on the first day of November, in each and every year hereafter; and it shall not be lawful for any person to kill or shoot at wild fowl northward of ran yerson to kill or shoot at wild fowl northward of ran yerson to kill or shoot at wild fowl northward of and line (except from a shore) and southword of a line drawn cast from Point Concord light-house, in Harford county, to Carpenter's Polat, on the waters shore of Cecil county, at any other time; and any person violating the provisions of this section shall, on conviction thereof, be fined not less than fifty dollars and not more than one hundred dollars of each offense.

Sec. 2. And be it saccred. That no person shall shoot or kill, or shoot at any will fowl in, on, or over the waters lying northward of the line described in section one of this Act, in the night time, with gun or years of any size of description whatever, with any leg or you not at any will fowl in, on, or over the waters of the section thereof, but a mile of any sh with many a harsh seat, on the suspicion of their fondness of omelets in the raw .-Custards fail from the table. The Dominick hers are denounced as not worth their mush. Meanwhile, the boys stand round the corner in a broad grin at what is the discomforture of the rest of the family. The truth must be told that the boys, in anticipation of Easter, have, in some hole in the mow, or some barrel in the wagon house, been hiding eggs. If the youngsters understand the business, they will compromise the matter, and see that at least a small supply goes to the house every day. Too great greed on the part of the boy will discover the whole plot, and the charge will be made: "De Witt! I believe you are hiding the eggs!" Forthwith, the boy is collared, and compelled to disgorge his possessions. Now, there is nothing more trying to a boy than, after great care in accumulating these shelly resources, to have to place them in a basket and bring them forth to the light two weeks before Easter. Boys, therefore, manage with skill and dexterity. At this season of the year, you see them lurking much about the barrack and the hay loft. You see them crawling out from stacks of straw and walking away rapidly with their hands behind them. They look very innocent, for I have noticed that the look of innocence in boys is proportioned to the the amount of mischief with which they are stuffed. They seem to be determined Gents' Furnishing Goods, to risk their lives on mow-poles where the are stuffed. They seem to be determined to risk their lives on mow-poles where the hay lies thin. They come out from under the stable floor in a despicable state of toilet, and cannot give any excuse for their depreciation of apparel. Hens flutter off the nest with an unusual squawk, for the boys cannot wait any longer for the slow process of laying, and hens have no business to stand in the way of Easter. The most tedious hours of my boyhood were spent in waiting for a hen to get off her nest. No use to scare her off, for then she will get mad, and just as like as not take the egg with her. Indeed, I think the boy is excusable for his haste if his brother has a dozen eggs and he has only eleven.

At this season of the year the hens are melancholy. They want to hatch, but how can they? They have the requisite disposition, and the capacity, and the feathers, with that deficit, they sometimes sit obstinately and defy the boy's approaches.—

Many a boy has felt the sharp bill of old Dominick strike the back of his hand, inflicting a wound that would have roused to matter had it not been that the boy wanted to excite no suspicion as to the nature of his expedition. Immediately up the whole farm-house to see what was the matter had it not been that the boy wanted to excite no suspicion as to the nature of his expedition. Immediately over the hen's head comes the boys cap, and there is a scatteration of feathers all over the hay-mow, and the boy is victor.

But at last the evening before Easter comes. While the old people are on the comes the provisions of this Act; and stery slink-lox wild suck-loxi used and employed in guning after wild suck-l put down the baskets. Eggs large and small, white-shelled and brown, Cochin-Chinas and Brahmapooters. The character of the hens is vindicated. The cat may now lie in the sun without being kicked by false suspicions. The surprised exclamation of parents more than compensates the hoys for the strategy of long concealment. The meanest thing in the world is for father and mother not to look surprised in such circumstances. It sometimes happens that, in the agitation of bringing the eggs into the household-harbor, the boy drops the hat or basket, and the whole enterprise is shipwrecked. From our own experience, it is very difficult to pick up eggs after you have once dropped them. You have found the same experience, in after life. Your hens laid a whole nestful of golden eggs on Wall street. You had gathered them up. You were bringing them in. You expected a world of congratulation but just the day before the consumation something the basket, and the eggs broke. Wise set the words are the moneys received by them for such iterates.

Src. 13. And he it enacted, That the Board of Special Police appointed by the sixteenth socious of this Act are hereby constituted officers of this State, for the purpose of enforcing its provisions, by arresting and taking infore any Judge of any Circuit Court, or any Judge of any Circuit Court, or any Judge of the Pears, all persons who may be engaged in violating, or who may have violated, any of the provisions of this Act, and of selving any sink-hox, smeak-hoat, or vessel, or craft of any description, engaged in violating, or which may have been used in violating the anne, and every person in whose use or possession a gun may be found on the waters aftersaid of a larger size than is allowed and described in section five of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a violation of this Act, and shall also forfeit such unlawful gun, or guns, found in his or their possession. adverse rau against you, and you dropped man were you if, instead of sitting down to cry or attempting to gather up the spilled yolks, you built new nests and invited a new laying. It is sometimes found on Easter morning that the eggs have been kept too long .-The boy's intention were good enough, but the enterprise had been too protracted, and the casting out of the dozen was sudden and precipitate. Indeed, that is the trouble with some older boys I wot of .-

They keep their money, or their brain, or They keep their money, or their brain, or their influence hidden till it rots. They are not willing to come forth day by day on an humble mission, doing what little good they may, but are keeping themselves hidden till some great Easter-day of triumph, and then they will astonish the Church and the world: but they find that facult es too long hidden are faculties ruined. Better for an eag, to have succeeded in Better for an egg to have succeeded in making one plain cake for a poor man's table than to have failed in making a ban-making one plain cake for a poor man's table than to have failed in making a banquet for the House of Lords.

That was glad time when on Easter morning the eggs went into the saucepan, and came out striped, and spotted and blue, and yellow, and the entire digestive capacity of the children was tested. You have never had anything so good to cat since. You found the eggs. You hid them. They were your contribution to the table. Since then you have seen eggs scrambled, eggs poached, eggs in omclet, eggs in a nog, but you shall never find anything like the flavor of that Easter morning in boyhood.

Alas for the boys in town! Easter comes to them on stilts, and they buy their eggs out of the store. There is no room for a boy to swing round. There is no good place in town to fly a kite, or trundle a hoop, or even shout without people's throwing up the window to see who is killed.—The holidays are robbed of half their life because some wisccare will persist in tell inc him who Santa Clans is while yet the life.
