The Elkton Ring, like all political Rings, always has an interest motive to inspire its action. The rank of motive to inspire its action. The parameters are already as a parameter of the sufferings of the people of Arizona to the suffering of the predations of the Apaches, and expressed the opinion that there would be no relief until the Indians are made to feel the strong hand of the Government. A FALSE RECORD .- The votes of our Delegates on the Baltimoro Sunday law, as reported by the papers generally we are informed by J. B. Groome Esq., the member from this town, were reported indirectly. Pennington voted for free lager and cock fighting on Sunday, and Mearnes, who was reported as absent, was at his post, and voted to kill the bill. Mr. Groome was very busy on one of the Committees when the vote was taken, and was, contrary to his wishes, not on the floor of the House when his name was called, or he would have certainly voted to kill the bill. He tives among the bills introduced was one alleges that his sentiments were so well for the establishment of a signal vessel in

I see by The Whig of March 2, 1872, that the recent slanderous charge against the Postmaster General were brought by one Joseph McKibben-and that you styled him a Californian. I wish to protest against the injustice of palming off this fellow as a Californian. I am surprised that even the Washington Patriot should publish such scandalous articles against any gentleman, having for their authority so entirely irresponsible an author as McKibben. Some sixteen years ago, -- before the Vigilance Committee had puritied the moral atmosphere of the Golden State-McKib ben had a sort of wandering residence there: and amongst the gamblers, roughs, and road-agents, he was familiarly known as "Cavotte Jo."

The Cayotte is a small thieving animal that does not leave its cover during daylight, and only ventures out on very dark nights to prowl around and steal from the cabins of miners and settlers. It is the most cowardly thing found upon the plains -with a stick, one man can put to flight a whole pack of them-and because McKibben possessed many of the characteristics of this little animal, he was dubbed "Cayotte Jo." Grant. It is greater even than Andrew Johnson provoked We defy any fair ob-server to examine the President's course since his election, and detect in it anything since his election, and defect in the anything calculated to explain the fierceness of the assaults made upon him by a small section of Republican leaders. The prosperity of the people has certainly not been impaired under General Grant's rule. No one can say that the national finances are in an unsound condition. The President has not been felse to the principles of the party which elected him. He has not endeavored to stir up new strife at the South, as Andrew Johnson was accused of doing. What, then, is his offense? How is any

When the people of Connecticut are invited by some eminent Republicans to work for a Democratic victory in their State, by way of injuring General Grant, they will probably be led to inquire what crime the President has committed to justify this sacrifice of their convictions. They must be the hitterness of the opposition to see that the bitterness of the opposition to General Grant is out of all proportion to the faults fairly chargeable to him. Had he been guilty of the deepest offenses against the country he could not possibly be assailed with greater fury than Carl Schurz, Mr. Greeley and other well-known men have exhibited toward him. indeed, Mr. Greeley, as everybody must be aware, never attacked the Tammany Ring with half so much vigor as he has shown in attacking General Grant. What has the President done to call forth this intense animosity? To what great principle has he been false?—in what respect has he sacrificed the interests of the people?—These are questions which deserve a plain answer. One weekly paper says that the President appointed General Sickles to a foreign mission. But on such points as

What, then, is his offense? How is any one to account for the extreme malevolence by which the Republican opposition to him is characterized?

It is impossible to account for it apart from personal grounds. The curse of the Presidential office is the distribution of offices which it involves. Almost all the intense enmities shown towards General Grant have been created by the fight over the distribution of patronage. It is a fact, deny it who will, that Carl Schurz was very friendly towards the President until he began to draw blanks instead of prizes.
