An Enterprising Firm .- It has been a question with many, whether the atmosphere of Elkton is not prejudicial to every species of manufacturing enterprise, so many incipient schemes of the mechanical kind have had their rise and, after a brief struggle, have fallen through, in our town. But the Witworth Brothers, carriage manufacturers, have solved the question most conclusively, that pluck, industry and mechanical skill, are as potent in overcoming all difficulties to success in this town, as the same agencies have ever proven when properly directed, every where elso. This firm has now in their shops some as fine specimens of carriages as can be p.roduced in establishments of greater pretensions; among which we saw, on a recent visit, an open front rockaway, price of the truck and exactly midway between $375; an extension pheton $100; several the wheels thereof, and having its bearings fine buggies, ranging in price from $235 to $275; fine finish jump seat carriages $250 to $275. Equal to the best Philadelphia extra work. They are at work on a fine extension phæton which will cost $400, for a gentleman residing on Chestnut street, the central shaft to the right or left, the Philadelphia.

The Witworth Brothers have satisfactorily demonstrated that carriage making at any rate, is a success as a manufacturing enterprise in Elkton. The same ability in any other mechanical pursuit would doubtless be rewarded by similar Adjustable Car Truck for Changing Gauge. -- We have been shown a model of the above invention, for which James vertising $120. and fifth account of Wm. T. Miller, guar- McCauley has received a patent from the U. S. Government.

> a railroad car may be contracted or expanded laterally so as to be adapted to run upon either wide or narrow gaugo railways, and may, therefore, start upon a railway of one guage, and may, at will, be changed so as to run upon a wider or narrower gauge railway at pleasure, without being removed from the rails.

The object of the invention is to avoid the necessity of unloading from one car and reloading into another, as often as the gauge or gauges of the road or roads may change in the transit of wood, iron, coal, paper or other freight, in their passage to market.

parts composing the truck as will admit of such lateral contraction and expansion with cheapness and convenience. The second part relates to the combination of a central shaft, extending the entire length in cross-pieces, which supports the car proper, and having a pinion on each end thereof, with two rack-bars for each pinion, one above and the other below the same, in such manner that, by revolving truck is laterally contracted or expanded.

For instance, the loaded car comes down the narrow railway with its load, until it reaches a road of wider gauge, and over which its load must pass to reach a market. Here it is necessary that the truck should open out to the wider track. On one side the rail is continuous; and on the one side the rail is continuous; and on the other the wheels stand on a sliding rail, or for their demonstration at Cecilton, enterswitch, that slides out on the cross-ties as tained the while by the Elkton Band, who The machine being offered to the public by other parties in this county as the improved Howe Sewing Machine, is a machine gauge; the car body being still equi-disthe car expands, until it reaches the wider headed the procession from here.
