OUR TICKET.

The Republican County Convention which met in this town, on Tuesday last, a report of whose proceedings will be found in to-day's issue, held a most harmonious session, in which every member acted as if impressed with the desire to place such a ticket in the field as every good citizen and moral man could cordially and conscientiously support. That the Convention was eminently successful in accomplishing this object, none can truthfully deny; as an examination into the character and autocedents of the following-named gentlemen, placed in nomination for the several offices in the gift of the people, will fully sustain.

Mr. Ireland was nominated on the first ballot; and in point of fitness, and eminent ability to perform the duties of the office, coupled with an agreeable and courteeus deportment toward all whom he is brought in contact with, either in business or social relations, it would have been difficult to select a more proper candidate

The choice for County Commissioners fell upon Mr. Thomas P. Jones, of the First District; Mr. JAMES C. CROTHERS, of the Ninth, and MR. WILLIAM T. WEST, of the Eighth. The office of County Commissioner is the most important County office, and it was the desire of the Convention to place in nomination for this office, men who were identified with the farming interest-which greatly predominates over all other interests of the county-and men who were widely known, and in whose judgment the confidence of the tax-payers could be placed. We had been led to believe that the late war had settled this question of slavery, and what was loosely termed "States' Rights." The late war, we are told, "was most damaging to the principles on which civil liberty is founded." This absurd theory of the Democrat was the foundation on which the late Confederacy rested, and which proved as unstable as the other shifting sands of expodiency which that desperate organization call Principles.

- The Pennsylvania Democrats, on Wednesday, faithfully followed the example of their brethern in Ohio and Maryland in their reversion back to the ancient standards of the party before it was demoralized by Greeleyism. They did not even attempt to frame an original platform, but adopted that of the Ohio Convention entire, with the exception of the revenue tariff plank.

Going West .- After a lengthened visit to that part of Central and Western Kansas included in the valley of the Arkansas river, we can not hesitate to commend that portion of the country as especially favora-ble for those who desire to move where cheap lands, some free homesteads, fertile soil, abundant water, perfect healthfulness and extensive range for stock may be found; all these with short winters and a senson of ten months during which the plow may be kept constantly at work may there be en joyed. We understand that the Atchison, Topoka and Santa Fe Railroad has over two millions of acres for sale in that valley, but that the government homesteads are about all taken up; consequently the country is already comparatively well settled.
