An Officer that Bears Investigation. In these days of searching investigation into official integrity, efficiency, etc., and when so many who went in with reputa-tions clear and spotless as a Sunday morn-ing toilet are coming out all begrimed and tattered with the uncleanness of official corruption which seems to have become chronic in the degenerate days of paper money and paper consciences, it is a matter of supreme satisfaction to find one officer at least in President Grant's Cabinet who gerously. bears the most rigid scrutiny into his official acts and comes out of every trial without a stain upon his official reputation. We publish in another column a digest of charges made by Representative Stone. The committee pronounce the officials of the Department free from all blame, and compliment their fidelity and vigilance. The abuses charged against Mr. Creswell and his Department are found to exist in the loose legislation of Congress. Even the loose legislation of Congress. Even

"The Post Office Department has succeeded in making itself so odious to Congressmen by its efforts in behalf of the franking privilege, that they have missed no opportunity to nurse every casual charge against it; and it may be taken for granted that they kill off none of them so long as they have breath enough left to stand up. The report entirely exculpating that Department from the charge of accepting straw bids, is therefore entitled to more respect than most exculpatory reports in this Congress receive."

Mr. Creswell has received more home abuse, than perhaps any other of President Grant's Cabinet, and in every instance on the most unfounded charges. The Chorpenning slander opened up by that Massachusett's trimmer, Mr. Dawes was a most prolific theme of denunciation against the Postmaster General, till the wind was completely knocked out of it by the letter of Jeremiah 5. Black. Had Mr. Creswell been in the Treasury Department it would have been morally impossible for the Jayne and Sandar food to the Mark Creswell have been morally impossible for the Jayne and Sandar food to the Mark Creswell have been morally impossible for the Jayne and Sandar food to the Mark Creswell have been morally impossible for the Jayne have been more. The son inherited the wealth of his father amounting to a mark million christians. and Sanborn frauds to have been perpetrated, and the administration of President Grant would never have suffered the shame that the inefficiency and carelessness of a Richardson has brought upon it. Mr. Creswell is a specie payment and hardnoney man, and with a modicum of his courage and tenacity displayed in the management of the Treasury for the last five years, we would have been much nearer years, we would have been much nearer the community. specie payment to-day than we are likely to be two years hence.

-Since the above was in type the resignation of the Postmaster General has taken place, whose letter to the President and his reply will be found elsewhere. No occurrence so sudden and unexpected has happened in political circles recently, and no resignation so generally regretted has ever been tendered to the President. We, in common with all of his personal friends, deeply regret the necessity which impelled Mr. Creswell to relinguish the portfolio which he has so ably held for more than five years. The mail service has undergone great changes, and has been greatly extended under Mr. Creswell's administration, and we had hoped that he would retain the position as Postmaster General to the end of President Grant's term, and complete the reforms which he General to the end of President Grant's term, and complete the reforms which he has inaugurated and so ably conducted. We hope his successor will prove as able and untiring in his management to advance and untiring in his management to advance the public interest, as his predecessor. the public interest, as his predecessor.

The reasons which influenced Mr. Creswell to resign his place in the Cabinet are not know to the public, except that they

DEAR WHIG-Omaha has been favored with another visit in the person of Mrs. Vancott, who labored zealously and effectively so long last Winter. In order that all might enjoy the privilege of her eloquent sermons and other interesting religious exercises, the society purchased a large tabernacle tent, so-called, and erected it near the M. E. Church, in the Parsonage rill, of Maine, and Hamilton, of Maryland, and Representatives E. R. Hoar, of Massachusetts, and Mitchell, of Wisconsin.

Straw Blds in the Post Office Departs The House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads has submitted a report on the charges made by Representative Stone that abuses and irregularities exist in the Post Office Department in relation to cer-tain mail contracts, the payment to con-tractors, and contracts for temporary service. The committee, after an elaborate examination of the subject, say that the facts and proceedings relating to the letting of the routes specified in the preamble to of the routes specified in the preamose of Mr. Stone's resolution, and the employment of the temporary service rendered necessary by the failure of the bidders to enter into contracts and perform the service, furnished a fair illustration of some at least of the annoyances and difficulties to which the Post Office Department was contactly expressly under the system of constantly exposed under the system of "straw" bidding to which it was subjected. The present Postmaster-General has, since he assumed the administration of the affairs of the Post Office Department, frequently called the attention of Congress to these irregularities and abuses recommending : irregularities and abuses, recommending from time to time such legislation as was suggested the experience of the Departwell to resign his place in the Cabinet are not know to the public, except that they are of a private nature entirely, and must be of a serious nature to justify such a step. All who mention the fact, regret the step, and the leading newspapers of the country all speak in unqualified terms of the integrit, ability and zeal with which the Post-office Department has been administered by the late Postmaster General.

Passage of the Currency Bill.—At last a Currency Bill (there have been amber of them) has been passed by Congress and received the President's approval. This last "Currency Bill" enacts that the volume of the legal tenders (greenbacks) shall be $522,000,000, and be neither increased or diminished by the Secretary of the Treasury. This legalizes the $20,000,000 of the "reserve" put in circulation by Mr. Secretary Richardson, after the panic, and which is now lying idle and useless, mestly in the New York Banks.

All bank reserves to redeem circulation, except five per cent, required to be maintained in the Treasury for the redemption of all notes presented there for that purpose, are released. This will release a large amount of national bank notes here tofore withheld from circulation. The law also provides for the redistribution of $55,000,000 of the national bank circulation, taking it from those states having an excess of their quota (New England, New York, Pennsylvania and other, of those States) and giving it to banks, organized, or to be organized, in the south and west, which is not likely to occur, there being $4,000,000 of the unappropriated circulation lying in the Treasury awaiting to be taken up by those states.
