CRITICISM ON "THE OBSERVER."
The editor of the OBSERVER recently had occasion to write J. Kent Hall, Tucson, Ill., a special newspaper correspondent, who claims to write for more papers than any other man living, and, consequently, receives more papers than any one else, and, therefore, should be a good judge of a newspaper. At Mr. Hall's last review of the OBSERVER for several months, we asked him for a criticism on it, as compared with other weekly papers throughout the country, and on Monday last received the following reply, which needs no comment from us.

"You ask for a criticism on the OBSERVER and we take it for granted you want it to be honest, so we will 'lay it on the line, let the chips fall where they may.'"

In the first place, you are giving your readers a two dollar paper for just one half that price. You can never expect to cover expenses while you maintain this position. We receive hundreds of 10 page newspapers that will not compare with the OBSERVER in any respect. We mail you a sample copy to prove our worth here.
