When Christmas arrives, injabout a month's time, it will be the saddest since the middle ages, with the greatest war, with its immeasurable horrors, raging in all of Europe. Just to think of the millions of homes made desolate, the millions of weeping women and sorrowing children, who are facing their future destinies without a single bit of knowledge of what it will bring forth Their bread winner has died a hero, fighting at the front, and that is all they or the world will know of him. Although we are not engaged in the conflict, we should ailow our hearts to go out in sympathy for those innocent children who have their whole lives before them, without a single aim or goal in view.
