My Fellow Countrymen

The entrance of our own beloved country into the grim and terrible war for democracy and human rights which has shaken the world creates so many problems of national life and action, which calls for mmediate consideration and settlement, that I hope you will perm me to address to you a few words of earnest counsel and appeal with

We are rapidly putting our navy upon an effective war footing and are about to create and equip a great army, but these are the simplest parts of the great tank to which we have addressed ourselves. There is not a single selfish element, so far as I can see, in the cause w are fighting for. We are fighting for what we believe and wish to h the rights of mankind and for the future peace and security of the world. To do this great thing worthly and successfully we must devote ourselves to the service without regard to profit or material advantage and with an energy and intelligence that will rise to the level of the enterprise itself. We must realise to the full how great the task is and how many things, how many kinds and elements of capacity and service and self-sacrifice it involves.

These, then, are the things we must do and do well, besides fighting—the things without which mere fighting would be truitless. We must supply abundant food for ourselves and for our armies and our seamen not only, but also for a large part of the nations with whom we have now made common cause, in whose support and by whose sides we shall be fighting.

We must supply ships by the hundreds out of our shippards to carry to the other side of the sea, culmarines or no submarines, what will every day be needed there and abunuant materials out of our fields and our mines and our factories with which not clothe and equipour own forces on land and sea but also to clothe to the service you are rendering and in the spirit of those who callst and support the people for whom the gallant fellows under arms can' no longer work, to help clothe and equip the armies with which we are cooperating in Europe and to keep the looms and manufactories there in raw materials; coal to keep the fires going in ships at sea and in hundreds of factories across the sea; steel out of which to make arms and ammunition both here and there; rails for worn out railways back of the fighting fronts; locomotives and rolling stock to take the place of those every day going to pieces; mules, horses, cattle for labor and for military service; everything with which the people of England and France and Italy and Russia have usually supplied themselves but cannot now afford the men the materials or the machinery to

It is evident to every thinking man that our industries on the farm, in the shipyards, in the mines, in the factories, must be made more prolific and more efficient than ever, and that they must be more economically managed and better adapted to the particular requirements of our task than they have been; and what I want to say is that the men and the women who devote their thought and their energy to these things will be serving the country and conducting the fight for peace and freedom just as truly and just as effectively as the men on the battlefield or in the trenches.

The industrial forces of the country, men and women alike, will be a great national, a great international, service army a notable and honored host engaged in the service of the nation and the world. the efficient friends and saviors of free men everywhere. Thousands nay, hundreds of thousands of men otherwise liable to military service. will of right and of necessity be excused from that service and assigned to the fundamental, sustaining work of the fields and factories and mines, and they will be as much part of the great patriotic forces of the nation as the men under fire.

I take the liberty, therefore, of addressing this word to the farmers of the country and to all who work on the farms: The supreme need of our own nation and of the nations with which we are cooper ating is an abundance of supplies, and especially of foodstuffs. The importance of an edequate food supply, especially for the present year, is superlative. Without abundant food, alike for the armies and the peoples now at war, the whole great enterprise upon which we have embarked will break down and fall. The world's food reserves are low. Not only during the present emergency but for some time after peace shall have come both our own people and a large propor tion of the people of Europe must rely upon the hagrests in America. Upon the farmers of this country, therefore, in large measure, rests the fate of the war and the fate of the nations. May the nation not count upon them to omit no step that will increase the production of a ours of large harvests. I call upon young men and upon the able-bodied boys of the land to accept a this duty-to turn in bosts to the farms and make cerat the point and no labor to lacking in this great matter.

bularly appeal to the farmers of the South to plant abunstace as well as cotton. They can show their patriotism in no or more convincing way than by resisting the great temptathe present price of cotton and helping, helping upon a great to fred the nation and the peoples everywhere who are fighting w their liberties and for our own. The variety of their crops will be the visible measure of their comprehension of their national duty.

The Government of the United States stand ready to co-operate They will do everything possible to assist farmers in securing an adoly of seed, and adequate force of laborers when they are not peeded, at harvest time, and the means of expediting shipments are and farm machinery as well as of the crops themselves rested. The course of trade shall be as unhampered as it is the to make it and there shall be no unwarranted manipulation settles's food supply by those who handle it on its way to the This is our opportunity to demonstrate the efficiency of a great democracy, and we shall not fall short of it.

This let me say to the middlemen of every sort, whether they are handling our foodstuffs or our raw materials of manufacture or the products of our mills and factories: This is our opportunity for signal service, efficient and disinterested. The country expects you, as it expects all sthers, to forego unusual profits, to organize and expedite shipments of supplies of every kind, but especially food, with an eye in the reals, for their people, not for themselves, I shall confident-

To the men who run the railways of the country, whether they be menagers or operative employes, let me say that the railways are the arteries of the nation's life and that upon them rests the immense responsibility of seeing to it that these arteries suffer no obstruction of any kind, no tnefficiency or slackened power. To the merchant, let me except the motto: "Hmall profits and quick service;" and to the shipbuilder, the thought that the life of the war depends on him. The food and the war supplies must be carried across the seas. matter how many ships are sent to the bottom. The places of those that go down must be supplied and supplied at once. To the miner, let me may that he stands where the farmer does: The work of the world walks on him. If he slackens or falls, armies and statesmen are beipless. He also is enlisted in the great service army. The manufacturer does not need to be told, I hope, that the nation looks to him to speed and perfect every process; and I want only to remind his employee that their service is absolutely indispensable and is counted on by every man who loves the country and its liberties.

Let me suggest also that everyone who creates or cultivates a garden heips and helps greatly to solve the problem of the feeding of the nations; and that every housewife who practices strict economy puts herealf in the ranks of those who serve the nation. This is the time for America to correct her unpardonable fault of wastefulness and extravegance. Let every man and every woman assume the duty careful, provident use and expenditure as a public duty, as a dictate of patriotism which no one can now expect to be excused or forgiven for ignoring.

In the hope that this statement of the needs of the nation and of the world in this hour of supreme crisis may stimulate those to whom it comes ad remind all who need reminder of the solemn duties of a time such as the world has never seen before, I beg that all editors and publishers everywhere will give as prominent publication and as wide circulation as possible to this appeal. I venture to suggest also to all adverticing agencies that they would perhaps render a very substantial and timely service to the country if they would give it widespread repetition. And I hope that clergymen will not think the theme of it an unworky or inappropriate subject of comment and homily from their pulpits.

The supreme test of the nation has come. We must all speak, act and serve tagether
