Scribner for March.

The paper in the March Scribner to which most readers will probably first turn is Noah brooks's Personal Reminiscences of Lincoln, continued from the Midwinter number. Mr. Brooks gives this mouth anecdotes of Lincoln with the stimy and at the theater, etc., and conversations regarding public men and events,—material which has never been in print Of a similar interest is Last Days of Edgar A. Poe, by Mrs. Susan Archer Weiss, who knew Poe intimately in Richmond, and here gives newly printed evidence that can hardly be omitted in making upan estimate of his character.

Of the illustrated papers, two at least may Larthquake Experience, during the remarkable convalsion at Frederickstaat in 1867, by Louis V. Housel. These two papers have called into requisition the services of two artists new to the pages of Scribner, W. J. Hennessy, and J. Davidson. A Trip to Central America, by Ellsworth Westerzeli, is accompanied by views of coffee and cochineal plantations, etc., and includes mention of the tations, etc., and includes mention of the eurious political situations among the republics. A paper on Dresden China, with a number of illustrations and the control of th hes. A paper on Dresden China, with a number of illustrations, describes the discovery and manufacture of this ware at the Royal Saxon Porcelain Works at Meissen, and includes a blographical sketch of the erratic Bottger. President Bodine writes of Kenyon College, in Ohio (a well-known educational College, in Ohio (a well-known educational outpost fifty years ago), dwelling upon the relations to the college of Bishop Chase and R. B. Hayes, the one as president, the other as student. Portraits of both are given, as well as of David Davis, Stanley Matthews and other students. Besides the serials there are two short stories,—Susan Lawton's Escape, by Saxe Holm, and Concerning a Certain two short stories,—Susan Lawton's Escape, by Saxe Holm, and Concerning a Certain Prodigal (a character well-known in printing offices), by a new writer, Henry King. A short paper by Prof. W. G. Sumner of Yale treats concisely, not of the national currency, but of the currency which the Rowert literature or the currency which the Bowery literature for boys has obtained throughout the land; examples of these stories are given and the morale is epitomized. The poetry is by Celia Thaxter, Boyesen, Caroline A. Mason, and

Emma Lazarus.
