FOR CONGRESS:

ELI J. HENKLE.

MESSRS. SAMUEL BURNS & Co., lumber merchants, 104 Light Street wharf, Baltimore, whose card will be seen in another column, are advertising all kinds of lumber at low prices. Mr. Burns, the senior member of the the firm has had a large experience in the lumber business, and is well known as a reliable and prompt business man.

MONDAY and Tuesday next are the last days this year, that persons entitled to register, and who have hitherto neglected to do so, can qualify as voters for the fall election. Should they fail to attend to this important duty because they have forgotten the days of registration, it will be but an additional reason why they should subscribe to their county paper which always reminds them of those things which concern their interest.

OUR worthy cotemporary, the Progress, yesterday entered upon the eighth year of its existence, and we extend to it our best wishes for a long and prosperous career. The Progress states that it is contemplating some change in its conduct, which it promises to announce in due time. This means, we hope that it is learning wisdom with its increasing years, and has determined to forsake the ways of the ungodly.

WE commend to the careful attention and consideration of our readers, the special offer of the New York World, as advertised on the fourth page of the TIMES, and we do it with the hope that they will avail themselves of the very liberal offer there made to them. The World, under its present management, is beyond doubt one of the best conducted journals in all its departments, in the United States. It is a journal especially attractive to Southern people, and especially deserving of their support since it has ever maintained their interests with a boldness born only of its true sense of fairness and justice. Our readers cannot long read The World without discovering that it is a paper free from sensation but always bright and fresh, and the aim of which is the promotion of the moral, intellectual, and material welfare of the people of our country, in whatever section they may reside. Its general tone is the most healthful of any journal we know.

SINCE the election in Maine—the result of which astounded more politicians than Mr. Blaine and his protege Mr. Hale—the Greenback movement has grown to be deserving the consideration of those who would make intelligent calculations as to the result of the many elections yet to be held. The movement from its very nature is destined to be short-lived, but while it lives, it is destined also, we fear, to be popular with a certain class of voters and it is the latter fact which renders it necessary that Democrats should pot forget it in the campaigns of this fall. In most of the Congressional districts in Maryland the Republican party is feeble, unorganized and powerless to cope alone with the Democrats. "Mr. Thomas and myself" are slow in applying their galvanic battery or else their battery is without power; since there is even less electricity in the atmosphere of our State than there was before the President did violence to Civil Service Reform by removing Mr. Wilkins from the Port of Baltimore and putting Mr. Thomas in his place. The leaders of that party, appreciating their condition, will be quite ready to give what encouragement they prudently can to the new movement, because from their view of the matter the defeat of a regular Democratic nominee means a Republican victory, no matter whether the successful candidate be called a Temperance man, a Workingman, an Independent or a Greenbacker. It is one of the curiosities of Maryland politics, that during the campaign, an opposition candidate to the nominee of the Democracy is called any thing most likely to get him votes, but when elected he is instantly christened a Republican and accepted as a member of that party, in full communion. Democrats owe it to their party and their country to see that no such opposition candidate is elected this fall from Maryland, let him be called what he may. They have nothing to fear from the Greenback or any other movement, if they are only true to themselves, faithful to the principles of their party, and vigilant and energetic in their work. So important is it that the next House of Representatives should be Democratic, that the duty of promoting the success of Democratic candidates seems to attach itself to each man individually, and it is a duty which no one should shirk. If that duty is performed faithfully and earnestly by all who are interested in honest government, there is no question that the Maryland delegation will be a solid Democratic one. That it will be performed we cannot doubt, because we cannot believe that there is a democrat in the State who fails to realize the importance of the coming election, or who fails to justly appreciate the dangers to the country which would arise from the success of a party holding the wild theories of the Greenbackers.

Here and There in Baltimore.

The first thing an old traveler does, when he visits a city for the first time is to ascend the highest elevation possible and look down upon the scenes, so as to get a general idea of the place he is visiting. So we, although, "to the manor born," ascended the steep steps of the "Washington Monument" to take our first general view of Baltimore, preparatory to describing some of its principal places of interest.

Although we do not beg your leniency for what is to follow, regarding the possible meagreness of description; we say, simply in justness to ourselves: We were, and are not possessed of the magic sesame that opens all to the fortunate possessor, and our visits to the different places described, were brief intervals snatched from the slack moments of our regular business.

The view from the top of the monument is one on which the eyes of any one, susceptible to the beauties of nature and art, would delight to linger. In every direction we look, we gaze on different scenes. The horizon on every side is bound by green hills and waving trees, except in one spot where the waters of the Chesapeake seem to join its blue arc.

To the west of us lies the new, and more elevated portion of the city, stretching for squares in one unbroken mass, whilst the undulating surface of the ground shows the novel spectacle of the door steps of one house peeping over the roofs of the houses a square this way.

To the north and west of us we catch a glimpse of Druid Hill Park, its trim and jaunty looking walks, the green foliage of its trees, and the sparkle of water rising from unseen lakes.

To the east of us lies the Jail, Penitentiary, Jones' Fall and the depot of the Northern Central Railroad, and the ringing of engine belles, clearly sound upon our ears.

Looking to the south east we see the upper stories of the City Hall, and its high, graceful dome. The limits of Patterson Park can be faintly traced, and the long shell road to Canton, glistens in the sun; Bayview Asylum stands a hugh landmark, on an adjacent hill. The factories of Canton darken the air with smoke; far, far down the broad Patapsco we see, away past uncompleted Fort Carroll, where its waters first taste the salt of the restless Chesapeake. Here and there a vessel returning or departing, with white sails spread to the breeze is seen; whilst nearer to us at one wharf we see spars and masts and ropes apparently mixed in one hopeless tangle, at another the flying pennants of the highest masts, alone can be seen over the tops of the warehouses.

To the south of us he the shining waters of Spring Gardens, the humble dwellings of the poorer classes, and the hills of Anne Arundel, famous and justly so, for the largest and best fruits and vegetables that come to oor market.

From our high position we look down upon mansard, tin, shingle, gravel, felt, plaked, flat, slanting roofs, relieved from monotony by the tall slender spires of churches, and the smoke begrimed chimneys of factories, that, like the ghosts at Banquo's feast, throng around, and rise high above the house tops in every direction.

What a change! what a spectacle! we see to the one that David Jones saw in 1682, when he reared his modest home; we wonder if he ever pictured this present in the then future, as we picture the past, in the present.

We shut our eyes, and fancy paints David, a sturdy settler, who says: "Here wilt I raise my home, and this fair stream, unsullied as my name, wilt I call Jones."

Years pass by, other settlers come to keep Mr. Jones company; we see houses dotted here and there in picturesque situations; little cottages, whose white-washed sides seem to peep through the green vines that o'er them grow, smoke coyly curling up from maybe fifty chimneys. A lovely picture it must have been, the upheavels of fair nature's breast, that made sweet, graceful hills, the shimmering water, and the country roads, winding like long, dusty snakes, until they run into the misty distance.

We open our eyes, the future becomes the past, and we live in, and see the present. SLAW.

—As our reporter came along Water street last night, shivering with the chill night air, and drawing his overcoat tightly about him, he thought "now is the time for colds and coughs," but if poor mortals only knew what a certain cure Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is, how few would long suffer, and then it costs only twenty-five cents.—Sandusky (Ohio) Register.

Installation of Officers.—The officers of the Byron Literary Club will be installed on Tuesday evening, October 8th, at 7½ o'clock, in the Town Hall. Mr. J. Harwood Watkins of the Ellicott City TIMES, has been invited to deliver an address, in addition to which will be some fine musical and literary exercises. The members and friends of the club are expected to be present without further invitation. Please observe the installation will be held on Tuesday evening, instead of Monday, as heretofore.

Funeral of Mrs. Foley.—The obsequies over the remains of the late Mrs. Annie Maria Foley, wife of Mr. Daniel J. Foley, who died on Sunday last, took place this morning at the Cathedral, attended by Archbishop Gibbons, Bishops Becker and Lynch, and a large assemblage of friends of the family. The remains were enclosed in a walnut casket, heavily covered with cloth, and adorned richly, though not elaborately, with silver mounted handles. The silver plate bore the inscription:

"ANNIE MARIA FOLEY,
Born, 1st September, 1825,
Died, 29th September, 1878."

The floral tributes were very numerous and embraced many rich and fine designs. Before the cortege left the residence of the deceased, No. 130 Park avenue, prayers were offered by Right Rev. Wm. Becker, of Wilmington, Del., Fathers Starr and Curtis of the Cathedral, and by Rev. Father John Foley, D. D., of St. Martin's Church.

At the Cathedral requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father W. F. Clark, of St. Ignatius Church; Rev. Father Alfred A. Curtis, deacon, Rev. Father B. McManus, sub-deacon, Rev. James McCallan, of St. Mary's Seminary, master of ceremonies. The Gregorian chant was rendered by the choir under the direction of Profes-or Hurley. Every seat in the Cathedral was occupied and many persons were standing. The final burial services at the church were conducted by Most Rev. Archbishop James Gibbons, assisted by Fathers McManus and Curtis.

Within the railings of the sanctuary were the following clergymen: Most Rev. Archbishop Jas. Gibbons, D. D.; Right Rev. Wm. Becker, Bishop of Wilmington, Del.; Right Rev. Bishop Lynch, of Charleston, S. C.; Rev. Father T. S. Lee, William E. Starr and Alfred A. Curtis, of the Cathedral; Rev. Father E. McColgan, vicar general of the archdiocese; Rev. Father John Foley, D. D., and Rev. Fr. James Macklin, of St. Martin's Church; Rev. Father John T. Gaitley, of St. Patrick's; Rev. Fathers Denny, E. Souna, S. J., Carroll, W. F. Clarke, S. J., and McGurk, of St. Ignatius; Rev. Fathers Giustiniani and Myer, of the Immaculate Conception; Rev. Fathers Bernard McManus and James McDevitt, of St. John's; Rev. Father P. L. Chapelle, of St. Joseph's; Rev. Father Wm. Jordan, of St. Bridget's; Rev. Fathers Magnien and McCallan, of St. Mary's Seminary; Rev. Father Peter McCoy, of St. Mary's Star of the Sea; Rev. Father Wm. E. Burlett, of St. Ann's; Rev. Father Lyman, of Govanstown; Rev. Father Edmund Didier, of St. Vincent's; Rev. Father Griffin, of St. Charles' College.

The honorary pall-bearers were Dr. Charles O'Donovan, John Murphy, B. F. Newcomer, George W. Webb, Henry Bogue and Dr. F. Noonan; active pall bearers, Thomas Myer, Hamilton Caughey, Henry R. McNally, Frank T. Smith, Alfred Jenkins, Jr., Thomas J. Myer, James W. Hunter, Hugh B. Jones. Twenty-four sisters, representing St. Joseph's Female School, House of the Good Shepherd, Convent of the Visitation, St. Mary's Asylum and St. Patrick's Church, were present. The interment was made at Bonnie Brae, the new Cathedral Cemetery.—Baltimore Bulletin of Wednesday.

Tableaux.—Quite a large and enthusiastic audience assembled at Linthicum Chapel, near Clarksville, on Friday of last week to witness the performance of some tableaux, which had been inaugurated by the young ladies of that neighborhood for the benefit of the yellow fever sufferers; and it is seldom that an audience leaves a place of amusement more pleased with the entertainment or in a better humor with itself. To say that the performance was in every respect a complete success would but half justice to the fair ladies under whose auspices it was held. The tableaux were all selected with good judgment, and represented with a fidelity to details which was truly commendable, every means having been adopted to faithfully portray each scene represented. The costumes of the ladies were all deserving of special remark for the taste with which they were gotten up and the originality and beauty of their designs. "Lalla Rookh" was presented in a dress wonderfully suitable to that marvellous creation of Moore's imagination, and "Blue Beard's Young Wife" looked the impersonation of lovelines, innocence and curiosity. "Vanity," or "They say I am pretty, am I?" was received by the audience with an enthusiastic assent to the general verdict. "The Vacant Chair" was good, and "The Three Graces" was very happily supplemented by "The Three Disgraces," the young gentlemen who portrayed the latter scene, doing it with a fidelity which left a lingering suspicion of their "having been there before." Two very interesting addresses were delivered during the evening, one by Mr. James W. Thomas and the other by Mr. Thaddeus W. Clark—both of which were well received; the speakers being introduced by Mr. Dawson Lawrence. The music, under the direction of Mrs. Lawrence, was an especially attractive feature of the entertainment, and elicited much praise.

Mr. Samuel Hopkins closed the exercises of the evening in a few happy and well chosen remarks most complimentary to the young ladies, to whose good taste and charitable impulses, as he truly said, was entirely due the success of the evening.

Clerical Transfer to Rome.—On Saturday next Rev. Camilus Mazzelli, S. J., for the past nine years professor of dogmatic theology in Woodstock College, will sail for Europe. He has been called to Rome to fill the chair of theology in the Roman College. The occasion of this change has been the desire of the Pope to have the pure system of scholastic theology taught in all Catholic seminaries. Rev. Mr. Mazzelli is regarded as the most learned doctor of that system now living, and hence the spectacle of Rome, the centre of Catholic theology, seeking in the West to fill this theological chair. The Roman College was founded in the sixteenth century for the especial purpose of training young ecclesiastics who were destined to be leaders in theological matters throughout the world. From its foundation it has been under the charge of the Jesuits, save during the forty years of the suppression of that society, from 1770 to 1810. During this period of nearly three hundred years it has trained some of the most renowned Catholic theologians of every country in Europe and America. Among those of the present day are many of the cardinals at Rome and Bishops whose seas are in every land. The lectures of the professors are attended by the students of the numerous colleges which the ecclesiastical dignitaries of different counties have founded at Rome. Rev. Mr. Mazzelli has published four volumes on theology during his stay at Woodstock. Mr. Mazzelli is only about forty-three years of age. His departure for Europe will cause many sincere regrets.

Real Estate Sale.—Mr. Samuel Wall of this city, has purchased the house and lot belonging to Mary Joyce, colored, for $510.00, in the west end of this city, adjoining the property of Michael Kuhn and A. J. Isaac.

Elysville Items.—An interesting revival of religion, under the direction of reverend Messrs. Crumbling and Grenginger, opened here on September 21st and still continues with unabated interest. Many penitents have approached the altar, and several have professed conversion, no time is set for the ending of the revival. It may continue eight weeks every day except Saturdays.

On Sunday afternoon last, at half past four o'clock, a children's meeting was held and a large crowd attended. Interesting addresses were made by several ladies and gentlemen who have taken a deep interest in the work. These meetings were held every afternoon during this week at the same hour.

A chapter of accidents occurred in our usually quiet village on Saturday.

A horse attached to the butcher wagon of Mr. J. V. Horn, of Franklinville, Baltimore county, upset the vehicle while turning near the store. The driver, named Cooney Bender, while endeavoring to leap out was caught beneath the horse who was thrown by the accident. He was extricated from his dangerous situation and was found to be painfully hurt. After receiving medical attention from Dr. Gambrill he was removed home where at last accounts he was improving.

A youth eight years old named Joseph Clark had his right hand painfully lacerated by carding machinery.

Miss Rachel Hatfield had her hand caught in the machinery of the spinning-room from which she fainted.

The foreman and mechanics in the employ of the manufacturing company, were reduced twenty-five cents per day beginning on the second instant.

Mr. James P. Case is about to erect a new residence on his property near Jonestown. Mr. Chas. Grimes, the well known builder, will do the work.

Jottings.—Mr. T. B. Dorsey of this city was awarded thirty prizes for poultry which he had on exhibition at the Maryland Agricultural Fair at Pimlico last week.

Messrs. John G. Rogers and T. B. Dorsey, of this city, played on the Baltimore nine in the recent game of base ball between the lawyers of that city, and the city of Washington, for the benefit of the yellow fever sufferers. The Washington lawyers were victorious. They were handsomely entertained at Guy's, after the game, by the defeated club.

Two Misses Shoemaker of Baltimore county, accompanied by Mr. Eccleston of N. J., passed through this city on Tuesday last, on their way from Virginia, and remained all night at the Howard House. They had ridden horseback all the way, and when they reached this city they seemed very much fatigued from their long journey.

Dr. Martin is having his drug store and laboratory repainted, which, when completed will present a fine appearance. Owen H. Mercer, is doing the work.

Rev. R. A. Poole, and wife, returned home on Friday last from their northern tour, where they had been visiting for the past two weeks.

Mrs. William B. Collier, left here last week on a visit to her relatives near Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Howard County Jail in course of erection has reached the second story.

The Clerk of the Circuit Court has issued eleven marriage licenses for the month of September.

Long Corner Items.—The Republican ring master is beginning to make the whip crack, in the way of demanded contributions from United States office holders. R Stockett Mathews, "chairman State Committee," notifies the postmasters that "every effort must be made to elect the Republican candidate for Congress in Maryland," and they "are earnestly requested to contribute toward the expense." Yet there are men here about who are ever blustering about Democratic rings! Comment is not necessary.

Since the advent of the book agent, vender of the work "Every Man His Own Lawyer," much litigation has been developed in this region; and every Saturday witnesses an exodus of the denizens living about Long Corner to the seat of Justice, Lisbon, at which three Magistrates are wont to expound the mysteries of the law. The Magistrates are said to be kept busy preparing cases and issuing writs, while the Constables may be met upon every road in quest of witnesses. It is now considered, by the citizens peacefully inclined, that said book agents shall in the future be pronounced a nuisance,—calculated to stir up strife, and involve the whole community in the intricacies of the law.

A Sunday School festival, Mr. S. Servis, Superintendent, takes place at Howard Chapel on Saturday next. The Taylorsville band will be in attendance.

Confirmation.—On Sunday last at 11 o'clock A. M., the Rt. Rev. Wm. Pinkney officiated in St. Peter's P. E. Church, this city. He preached an excellent discourse on the ministration of Angels, a subject suggested by the feast of Michallmas which came on that day. After singing four verses of the 392d hymn, he administered confirmation to six persons who had presented themselves to receive the rite. Previous to confirming, while the candidates were at the chancel rail, he addressed them in an earnest manner upon the nature of the rite about to be administered, admonishing them to allow its reception to confirm them in the works of rectitude and Christian reflection throughout life. While here the reverend gentleman was the guest of his Honor, Judge Miller.

Frederick Fair.—The Baltimore Sun says: "When Senator Bayard, of Delaware, was in Baltimore last week a committee, comprising Gen. Edward Shriver and Col. C. Keefer Thomas, invited him to the Frederick County Fair to speak on that occasion. It is learned that Senator Bayard intimated that he would comply with the request. Mayor Latrobe will send the Russian stallion "Count," and the Park commissioners some Southdown rams to Frederick for exhibition."

The fair begins on the 8th inst., and continues four days. Round trip tickets including admittance to the grounds $1.50 from this station.

Award.—Mr. Joseph F. Carter, of the 1st district of Howard County, has been awarded by the City of Baltimore $18,600, for property condemned by the city. The money was paid on Monday last.

Musical.—Prof. Hazeltine, teacher of the Piano and Organ, has quite a number of musical pupils. The Professor gives his exclusive attention to musical instruction and is meeting with quite a success.—Progress.

Woodstock Items.—A Martha Washington tea party, will begin on Thursday evening next in the new M. E. Church at Granite, and continue till Saturday evening following.

Frescoers and painters are now at work at the above Church which it is hoped will be ready for dedicatory services in a few weeks.

On Thursday the double-frame house of Mr. Horace Keys, a few rods east of this station, was discovered on fire. By timely notice given the fire was extinguished with but the burning of the front porch roof. A spark from a passing locomotive was the cause of the fire.

The farm of the late Caleb Owings, in Baltimore county, has been surveyed and divided into desirable portions, which will soon be offered for sale.

A good crop of chestnuts are promised, as well as hickory nuts. Chinquapins are plenty.

Rockville Fair.—In consequence of the equinoctial storm, the Agricultural Society of Montgomery County were unable to complete their exhibition on the 13th of September, and the programme, mapped out for that day, will be carried out on Wednesday, the 16th of October. Among the attractions on this occasion, is a premium for lady equestrians, which is eliciting a good deal of interest. There will be a steeple chase also.

Election of Officers.—At the weekly meeting of the Bayley Beneficial Society of St. Paul's Catholic Church held last Sunday morning, the following officers were elected to serve the ensuing six months: Prest., Wm. E Welsh; V. P., Howard J. Kirby; Sec., Joseph Ellis, Bookkeeper, E. P. Duffy; Treasurer, Rev. John Dougherty; Standing Committee, John Stultz, Jas. Kennedy, Thos. Robinson.

The Fall Races.—The fall meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club is near at hand, and preparations are being made at Pimlico, in the way of fitting up the track, stables, etc. Horses from the Louisville meeting are expected, and also from the Jerome Park races when they are over. George Lorillard's Danger, who made his mile at Pimlico in 1:42½ last spring, is among the expected horses from Louisville.

At St. John's.—The students at St. John's College are down to work earnestly and industriously, and the machinery of the grand old institution is in full and reliable working order. The session which began on the third Monday in September promises to be an unusually busy one, the attendance of pupils being large.—A. A. Advertiser.

Victims of the Yellow Fever. The friends of Mr. Robert Wm. Blew, son of the late Rev. Joel Blew, of the sixth district of this county, are informed that he, his wife, and three or four children, died with the yellow fever at Memphis, Tenn., about the 15th of September, at which place he had lived many years, highly esteemed.

Sunday School Excursionists. On Saturday last, the Sunday Schools of Mt. Airy and vicinity visited and spent the day at Byrne's Island, on the Potomac, near Harper's Ferry. The excursion numbered several hundred. The New Market, Frederick county band, and Professor Walker's choir accompanied the excursionists.

Additional Subscriptions.—The following subscriptions have been made to the yellow fever sufferers since our last issue: Patapsco Dramatic Association, additional, $5.00; St. Mary's P. E. Church, additional, $3.38; Queen Caroline Parish, per Rev. Ogle Marbury, additional, $15.

Personal.—Mr. W. T. Harban, son of Judge James Harban of this county, sailed for Europe last week aboard a naval vessel, where he has a clerkship. Mr. H. will be absent about three years, during which time he will visit most of the important ports of Europe. His many friends wish him a pleasant cruise, and a safe return to his native land.

Entertainment at Sykesville. On Tuesday night last, an entertaining dramatic performance took place in the old factory at Sykesville. The performers were from the vicinity, all of whom rendered their parts in excellent style. The proceeds amounted to about fifty dollars which will be given to the yellow fever sufferers.

New School House.—The School Commissioners have decided to establish a primary school near the store of Mr. A. J. Gall, in the sixth district. The house, 22x40, is being built, and as soon as finished, the school will be opened.

(COMMUNICATED.)

MARRIOTTSVILLE, Oct. 3, 1878.

A tribute expressive of marked respect, and worthy of commendation was bestowed by the pupils of School No. 1, third district of this county, on the morning of the first inst. The boys and girls, with blooming faces and sparkling eyes, all expressive of their zeal in the design, presented themselves at the school house at the usual hour, with bouquets of flowers of every hue, and evergreens of various species, for the purpose of decorating the tomb of their late little school fellow, Ellis L. Musser, having previously learned that this was the anniversary of his birth day. After performing a portion of the school duties of the day, they were formed in line, and proceeded to the residence of the teacher, where all amused themselves playing croquet, &c., with their deceased companion's toys for an hour or two; and then after taking a view of little Ellis' portrait, they again took up the line of March and wended their way to Mountain View Cemetery, where all bowed around the tomb of their late companion, as one by one, each delivered the tribute of love and respect, to be placed on the sacred mound, and then repaired quietly to their respective homes.
