

As Peter sat at Heaven's gate,
A maiden sought permission,
And begged of him, if not too late,
To give her free admission,
"What claim hast thou to enter here?"
He cried with sternest mien,
"Please sir," said she, "twixt hope and fear,
"I'm only just sixteen."
"Enough!" the hoary guardian said,
And the gate wide open threw;
"That is the age when every maid
Is girl and angel too!"

The Model Farmer.

The model farmer can be found in every neighborhood. You may even tramp over half a county possibly without meeting him. But when your eyes once fall on a model farmer you may know him by the following signs:

1. The model farmer thoroughly loves his business; regards it as one of the noblest of the callings; is wide awake to all its interests, and take forward. But our model farmer has no hatred of honest workers in other lines of industry, and knows full well that every pursuit is made prosperous through the harmony and prosperity of all the rest.

2. Our model farmer is a thinker. He has laid out his farm with special reference to the highest possible convenience. The arrangement of his barn, feedings and pig-pens all show the thoughtful purpose. His fields are cultivated with a rotation of crops settled upon years before-hand. The model farmer likewise plans the work of the season so that every particular job has its place, and there is no confusion or doubt as to what comes next.

3. The model farmer is likewise a model business man. He is wary about going into debt, knows just what are his liabilities, keeps systematic accounts of all his transactions, can tell you the exact cost and profit of every crop and every herd, meets his obligations with promptness, and don't finish up a new house or a new barn with a mortgage.

4. The model farmer is a model and skillful farm manager. He uses all his labor saving instruments, but keeps them in perfect order and houses when not in use. You will find on his tools neither rust nor rot. He does everything in his proper time—loves thoroughness, hates wastes, hates slovenly farming, gives his stock good shelter and abundant food, but knows and practices the art of feeding for growth or fattening, butter or work. He knows also the fitness of particular products, and plants accordingly.

5. The model farmer is an economist. He wastes no time. You will not find him loafing in grocer's or whittling the dry-goods boxes of the nearest town. His time is a part of his capital, and he invests it so as to get the greatest profit. He is also an economist of labor. He seeks constantly to accomplish results with the least possible wear and tear of the muscle, and every genuine appliance for shortening processes in labor finds favor with him. Being far from market he condenses his products so as to transport the highest value in the least bulk. Consequently he raises the best stock, keeps it in fine condition, and cultivates the best of fruits.

Lady to her friend—I didn't forget,
That it was your birthday, and so I embroided you this pocket-book. Isn't it just lovely! Take it, and whenever you take it out, then, dearest, think of me.

The GAZETTE will lend its aid to representatives of Democratic principles in the great struggle for political mastery, and in all other matters of public interest, and will be fought. The importance of a newspaper as THE GAZETTE in educating, organizing and preparing the people for this great cannot be overestimated.
