SECRETARY SHERMAN has selected as the site for the new post office in Baltimore, the square bounded by Fayette, Lexington, North and Calvert streets.

HON. ROBERT M. McLANE in his speech on officials contributions for political purposes, effectually squelched Mr. Conger, the irrepressible buffoon of the republican side of the house.

SENATORS LAMAR and Conkling have not yet met on the field of honor to settle there which of them is a liar and a coward. Mr. Lamar told Mr. Conkling that if he meant to charge him, Mr. Lamar, with acting in bad faith, that he, Conkling, was a liar.

silence of the Ohio Republican platform about silver coinage any more than New York Democrats go "on all fours" with the "idea of Ohio" about money, currency and banking.

Our Federal Constitution puts all executive power and the command of the army, as authorized by law, in the hands of a single person—the President. He is supreme therein.

Not the courts nor Congress! He and he alone commands the army. His marshals create deputy marshals who oversee elections and arrest any voter they see fit to arrest.

By the very sad death of the Prince Imperial of France, who was killed in the Zulu war, the hopes of the Bonapartists have been severely crushed. Speaking of the Napoleon dynasty the Baltimore Sun says:

The Electric Light.

The Bell Telephone—The Microphone.

Electric incandescence, as a source of light, was first reduced to a practical shape about twenty years ago by M. de Changy in Paris, and by Mr. Moses G. Farmer in Salem, Mass.

They all operate on the fact that when a powerful current of electricity traverses an insufficient conductor, as a wire or narrow strip of platinum, for example, the same is intensely heated, and so becomes luminous.

There are a multitude of contrivances, and almost every day sees new ones added to the list, but so far they have all been very elaborate, often complicated, and, as a rule, expensive instruments.

Another plan is to use, in place of a metal which may be fused, a thin rod of carbon, which cannot be fused, and whose tendency to burn is overcome by enclosing it in a glass vessel filled with some gas which cannot combine with it, nitrogen for example.

It is on these subjects that several of the most ingenious minds of the day are now working, and what we have above stated not only gives the present state of the problem, but will prepare the reader to comprehend the new development as they appear.

awarding prize medals came next. Rev. Mr. Dougherty read the names, and Archbishop Gibbons conferred the diplomas and affixed the medals to the lapel of each successful student.

Archbishop Gibbons delivered a short address at the conclusion of the exercises in which he congratulated the students on the excellent rendition of the programme, and expressed his warm approval of the principle of religious training which is adopted by catholic institutions of learning.

Among the young gentlemen from this city and county who received medals and premiums were: Master C. Howles Hardesty, Jr., Denton Miller, Joshua W. Dorsey, Jr., Marion L. McGill, Edward Rodley, Edward Frank, Thomas Burke, John B. Fort, Wm. J. Holtman and David O'Donnovan.

Confirmation at St. Paul's.—Archbishop Gibbons came to this city on Saturday evening last to take part in the confirmations at St. Paul's Church Sunday. He was met at the depot by the faculty and students of Rock Hill College, and escorted to the pastoral residence, where he was afterwards serenaded by the college band.

The next application of Faraday's discovery of magneto-induction is found in the Bell Telephone. In this instrument a series of electric currents is developed by the movements of a thin plate of iron in front of a steel magnet, around whose end a wire is coiled.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii, for the complainant, Auntie R. Seaggs from the defendant, William W. Seaggs, and for alimony for the said complainant, and for maintenance and support of George O. Seaggs, the infant child of the said complainant and defendant, and for such counsel fees as may be deemed right and proper by this Court for conducting this suit, and for an injunction against the said William W. Seaggs enjoining and strictly prohibiting him from attempting to convey away or in any manner dispose of any interest, claim or right, which he has in and to the real estate or any part of the real estate which Alfred Seaggs, late of Howard County, deceased, died, seized and possessed of.

Wheat cutting is now in full blast, and from all sides can be heard the unceasing clatter of the reaper. Should the weather continue favorable, many of our farmers will "wind up" by the end of the week. A larger yield than for several years past is anticipated.

Master Henry Johnson, captured one day last week, a ground hog which weighed 30 lbs. The old "chop" was fatally wounded before he would surrender. The "prognosticator" is no more.
