

ATTENTION DEMOCRATS!

The Democratic Conservative Voters of Howard County are requested to assemble in Primary Meetings in the several districts of the county, on Saturday, August 2, 1879, between the hours of 3 P. M. and 6 P. M. for the purpose of electing delegates to a County Convention to be held in Elliott City, on Tuesday, August 5th, at 11 o'clock A. M. to nominate candidates for County offices and to elect delegates to the State Convention to be held in Baltimore City, on Thursday, August 7th.
By order,
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The smiles of our worthy neighbor, The Progress, are not altogether intelligible, but that we suppose, like in Robert Browning's poetry, is a proof of their merit.

The New York Tribune is responsible for the statement that "Republican stock is rising steadily everywhere." That may be true. In Maryland for example it is "rising steadily" in the direction of the "point" where the pea vine twines.

We are delighted to learn from our esteemed contemporary, the Baltimore American, that Mr. Mathews bears his defeat for the District Judgeship "very philosophically," and at the meeting of the Republican Executive Committee "was as cheerful in spirit and as vigorous and as positive in his expression as at any time before."

The election for Mayor in Annapolis on Monday last resulted in a victory for the Republican candidate, and our esteemed but stalwart contemporary, the Maryland Gazette, has lost its head with enthusiasm and claims the result as an endorsement of Hayes vetoes. No one whose logic is not learned from Logan and Chandler will be able to very readily see any connection between the local issues involved in a municipal election at Annapolis and the great constitutional principles murdered in Mr. Hayes veto messages. But according to the Gazette, the connection is there, and unless this is one of those instances in which the wish is father to the thought, we will be content to accept our contemporaries statement of the fact on faith.

With the thermometer among the nineties we hardly feel equal to the task of laboring with a problem the points of which seem lost in their own profundity. And if our contemporary's wish it will restrain its excitement until the coming November. The results of the elections then may not be so propitious for its enthusiasm, but the weather will be much more so.

The Republican party in Maryland is undoubtedly in a sore strait. At the meeting of the Executive Committee held in Baltimore on Tuesday last it was found necessary to keep a close watch on the members, as the departure of a single one would have left the august body without a quorum. Mr. R. Stockett Mathews made a speech. He said that he could not discover, after a most careful search, a single available man in the whole Republican ranks to nominate for Governor. That was entirely a gratuitous piece of information on the part of Mr. Mathews, which no one needed. An "available" candidate means one who stands some prospect of being elected, and surely no one need be told that there is not a Republican in the State whom the people are yet ready to place in the gubernatorial chair. Nor is it by any means surprising that Mr. Mathews should encounter some difficulty in his search for a candidate, even if availability were not a special requisite. It is natural that there are only a few men willing to be sent up like rockets on the day of the nominating convention when they must come down like sticks on the day of election; and Mr. Mathews knows perfectly well that the want of voters is a more serious trouble with his party than the want of candidates. Were there no lack of the former he would quickly discover that there would be no lack of the latter. We are by no means convinced that he himself would be unwilling to head his party ticket, could he be persuaded that the day is at hand when the horn of the ugogally is about to be exalted. But knowing that sure defeat awaits whatever ticket his party may nominate he is careful to avoid the honor of a nomination for any office on it.

Advocating the wrong side of every issue, and torn by internal discussions the Republicans of Maryland are indeed in a bad condition, and every movement made by their leaders but serves to show the weakness of their party. With their experience of that party in the past, no one need fear that the people of our good old State will ever intrust it with power again. No matter whether it takes Mr. Mathews advice and fights the coming campaign with a straight ticket, or rejects that advice and combines with the sore-headed Democrats defeat—overwhelming defeat is its sure fate in either event.

PRESIDENT HAYES is said to fear malaria which he thinks threatens the White House from the flats of the Potomac river, and is making preparations to leave Washington with his family during the summer. That is only a pious ruse on the President's part. There is another Judge-judge vacant, and what he really fears is an influx of Maryland Republican Delegations.

Both Mrs. Langtry and the Bernhardt are said to be contemplating a visit to this country during the coming fall. Mrs. Langtry is coming to show us how pretty she is, and the Bernhardt to show us what a fine actress she is. Madeiroselle Bernhardt is noted not only for acting, but for her skill in modelling and in painting, and for her "unique personality," so that some things which in any other woman a censorious public would call sins in Madeiroselle are mildly termed eccentricities. Mrs. Langtry is noted for nothing except the possession of a very beautiful face and her willingness to make a public exhibition of it. We hardly think Mrs. Langtry will create the sensation here which we may expect the Bernhardt to do. Our country is full of beautiful women, and their modesty adds a grace to their beauty which is wanting in the English celebrity. A woman who consents to pose before all the world as the Queen of Beauty may win some public admiration but she must necessarily do it at the cost of public respect. The fact that she is willing to do it at all is a sufficient evidence that she is wanting in that delicacy of feeling without which her physical charms avail nothing, especially in a country like ours the beauty of whose women is only excelled by their modesty. Unlike Mrs. Langtry, Madeiroselle Bernhardt compels our attention by the brilliancy of her intellect. As an actress she ranks with Ristori, and more enthusiastic of her admirers even claim for her the ability to compete with the incomparable Rachel. Her works of art are said to evince much talent even if not the touch of genius, and she is likely to receive a better reception from our people than her rival sensation of the day whose only gift is a handsome face.

Now that the excitement and somewhat bitter feeling naturally raised by the animated debates which marked the recent extra session of Congress here had time to die away, careful thinking people of both parties will be more inclined to agree with Senator Thurman in the opinion that it was one of the most important sessions which the history of our country has known. Never before perhaps have the relative powers of the Executive and Legislative departments of the Government been so sharply defined and the danger of a conflict between those two departments been so clearly shown. Thanks to the wise, patriotic and temperate course adopted by the Democrats the perils which might have followed the attempt of the Executive to dictate to Congress what laws a majority should and should not enact, were safely overpassed. But it is perhaps just as well for the country that the people should have been made to see how great may be the danger to our political system from an effort on the part of a President, to use the words of Senator Bayard, "to obstruct the passage of laws by an arbitrary veto power based upon party discretion, and thus throw the government into confusion and fill the public mind with apprehensions by preventing Congressional supplies." Mr. Hayes showed clearly that he was ready and willing to do this at the dictation of his stalwart leaders. That he have escaped such a state of affairs is due altogether to Democratic statesmanship. And one important issue raised between the two great parties by the controversies of the extra session is, ought the veto power to be used in such an arbitrary manner and for such dangerous purposes? Upon that issue the people will vote at the elections in the coming fall, and they will vote by the light thrown upon it by the arguments made and the positions taken by the respective leaders of the two parties. When Congress reassembles Mr. Hayes will no doubt have a better idea of the jurisdiction of the two departments of the government, and will have learned that the people do not agree with him and his advisers in the opinion that the veto is a power given to the Executive to be used at party discretion and party dictation. And to have formulated that issue and to have placed it before the voters for final settlement is one of the achievements of the extra session, of as much value and importance perhaps as any which has ever resulted from a session of Congress.

FROM THE New York World of Monday last we copy below an interesting account of the personal history of the late Mrs. Sarah A. Dorsey, who left her fortune to Jefferson Davis, and we reproduce it here because it will prove of interest to many of our readers in the county to whom Mrs. Dorsey was known, and to some of whom she was connected by marriage. Mr. Samuel W. Dorsey, her husband, was a native of Howard county, a son of the late Judge Thomas Beal Dorsey and a brother to Hon. John T. Beal Dorsey and the late Wm. H. Dorsey, Esq. Mrs. Dorsey has made a most generous disposition of her property, and from those who loved the Lost Cause as she loved it, has won a deep gratitude which will keep her memory cherished in many a Southern household. We fear there is some justice in the reproaches she makes against the countrymen of Mr. Davis for their failure in gratitude and appreciation for his unselfish sacrifices in behalf of the South. More than any other man who gave himself to the Southern Confederacy has been made to suffer more than any other man has been made to bear the burden of misfortune, calumny and insult. Had the cause of the South succeeded, Mr. Davis would have been made a hero. But it failed—and we are too apt to forget his devotion and remember only his mistakes—forgetting also even while we remember those that in the history of ages no man ever held a more trying position than was his. Should this noble bequest of Mrs. Dorsey have the effect of bringing his countrymen to a sense of the injustice they are in danger of doing Mr. Davis, she will have rendered him a service far greater than the pecuniary aid she has given and one which we have no doubt she has given in her thoughts when she made her will.

A New Orleans telegram of the 8th inst. contains the following interesting notice. Sarah A. Dorsey, of Mississippi, who died in the first week of July, had bequeathed her entire estate to Mr. Jefferson Davis. In making this bequest Mrs. Dorsey refers to the great services and sacrifices of Mr. Davis on behalf of the South and reproaches his countrymen for their failure in gratitude and appreciation for such services, as regards the small contribution which she is able to make for his relief. The estate embraced in this legacy includes two large plantations in the upper part of the State and the elegant villa on the river at the place where Mr. Davis is now sojourning, the climate and situation of which have proved especially favorable to Mr. Davis's health. His present occupation will be the defense of his administration of the office of President of the Confederate States. This legacy of Mrs. Dorsey will make the financial resources of Mr. Davis quite easy and comfortable.

A Mississippi correspondent of the World enables us to-day to lay before our readers an interesting account of the life and character of the lady who has thus shown her practical devotion to the "Lost Cause" in a way which must compel the admiration of every one who sympathizes with the feelings and opinions to which it gives expression.

Mrs. Sarah A. Dorsey, who died in New Orleans on the 4th inst. was one of the most notable women of the South. The New Orleans papers in the notice of her death have scarcely done full justice to her and have failed to note some of the most important points in her history.

Mrs. Dorsey was a Miss Ellis, of a well-known and wealthy family of Natchez, Miss., where she was born in 1829. She was the daughter of Mr. James W. Ellis and Mrs. Catherine Ann Wardell (nee Ware), the novelist, author of the household of Bouvier, "the Beaumonts," and other well-known and original works of fiction and power. Mrs. Wardell's first publications were two volumes of poems (1843 and 1844), by herself and her sister, and a collection of her own and her sister's poems, which were published in 1851. Mrs. Dorsey was the only child of her father and her mother, and she was educated at the "West." Mrs. Dorsey's subsequent career was a most successful one. She was a devoted and efficient teacher, and she was also a successful business woman. She was the author of several novels, and she was also a successful business woman. She was the author of several novels, and she was also a successful business woman.

One of our Metropolitan contemporaries suggests a fishing match between the Prince of Wales and Vice President Wheeler. Should the contest take place there is a Professor of the art in our own town whom we would be glad to see enter the list.

The torrid wave which visited us early in the week seems to have destroyed itself by its own intensity, and yesterday Old Probabilities reported himself something more like a Christian gentleman by keeping at an respectable degree of coolness.

The third of a series of fortnightly outdoor meetings will be held in the Poplar Spring Grove, at Poplar Spring in the fourth district on Sunday last, under the charge of Rev. J. J. Egle of the Southern Methodist Church.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher is reported to have once made a remark concerning the weather, which we are too conscientious to quote, but which would have been very applicable to the weather about here during this week.

The annual examinations of the scholars at Litchester College will begin on Monday next after which the students will enter on their summer vacation.

Misfortunes never come singly. To the intense heat which prevailed in our city this week was added the other nuisance of an organ grinder.

Jottings.—Hon. Wm. Merrick, chairman, together with Gov. Carroll, Dr. Wm. H. Haxley, Messrs. Marshall McCauley, Samuel K. George and Thos. H. Gaither, members of the committee of Inquiry into the best mode of reducing county expenses appointed by the Taxpayers Convention, held a second meeting at the Court House on Saturday last. The committee spent some six hours in making an examination of the accounts and books of the various officers and in an interchange of views upon the work assigned them by the convention.

J. J. Lanikin, the energetic young merchant of our city, is enlarging the store house recently purchased by him, where he expects soon to open with a large and first class assortment of groceries, flour, feed, sewing machines and a general variety of household goods. Mr. Lanikin has formed a co-partnership with G. M. Galt, and the two will be run in connection with the old, one being devoted to groceries and the other to dry goods. The new firm will be glad to see all their old customers and many new ones.

As will be seen from the notice of Mr. John G. Rogers, Examiner, in another column, the annual examination of the Public School Teachers will be held at the Court House on the 22nd and 23rd insts., between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 12 o'clock M. All teachers whose certificates have not been renewed by the Examiner are requested to be present for examination.

In pursuance of the requirements of a city ordinance, the police will soon make an examination of the back yards and cellars of houses within the corporate limits for sanitary purposes. Owners should immediately go to work and clean out and denolize all places that may need it, as the health of our city greatly depends upon the adoption of such measures.

The Orphans' Court and Board of County Commissioners were in session on Tuesday last. In the former letters testamentary were granted to John M. Rhodes, executor, on the personal estate of the late Benjamin M. Rhodes. The Commissioners were engaged only in the transaction of routine business.

The farmers in the upper portion of the county are complaining of the drought and say that the desultory showers of last week seem to have had but little beneficial effect. Since threshing has commenced in that section of the county the generative wheat does not "pan out" so well as anticipated.

Centre Campment No. 31, I. O. O. F. and Centre Lodge No. 49, of the same order, this city, will give a grand parade and picnic in Sunderlands Park on Tuesday, the 12th of August. See their posters. A more extended notice will be given in a future issue.

An esteemed correspondent from the fourth district, writes to us to know how the jury could have convicted Miss Duer of manslaughter when the person she killed was a woman. He is not yet satisfied that all over the world the generative man—embraces the specific—woman?

City Council Proceedings.—The Council met at 8 o'clock P. M. with Mayor E. A. Talbott in the chair, and all members of the Council present. Proceedings of last meeting read and approved. No report from committee in regard to seeing Solicitor for the enforcement of collection of taxes was made, and on motion the committee was continued.

The following report of Collector G. O. Isaac for 1877-78, was made: Total amount of bills put in his hands $734 08; total amount collected up to May 1, 1879, $323.51, leaving a balance of bills in his hands of $411.57; non collectable bills in his hands for 1878, $75 74; non collectable bills in his hands for 1877, $12.32. Cash collected up to July 7, 1879, $35 88; $237.63; cash collected by him from May 1st, 1870 to July 7th, 1879, $58.88; less 10 per cent for collecting, $5.88; balance due by him, $77.25; returned to Register J. E. Vansant, vouchers, $70.03; cash, $7.20, total, $77.25.

The report of Collector Isaac was approved and he was ordered to proceed as usual with his collecting, and report to the Council at their next regular meeting August 4th, 1879.

The Register was ordered to request the City Solicitor to meet the Council at their next regular meeting.

The Register was ordered to collect all back taxes by law.

The Register was ordered to pay J. H. Wilson & Son $10.00 on account, also to settle taxes with them for 1879 on the same account.

The Street Commissioners were ordered to wait on S. J. Radcliffe in regard to the pavement he was ordered to lay on June 16th, 1879, and report at the next meeting of the Council.

The Register was ordered to pay balance of $5.00 due J. E. Vansant on old account.

The Register was ordered to pay Carl Sykes 50 cents for wagon, also police salary of $10.00 for the month of June, B. Sunderland 60 cents for lamp post, and S. Burges $1.00 for dressing said post.

On motion of George T. Caley, the Register was ordered to pay old order of $40.00 for the month of May, J. M. Vansant of money received and expended in June, 1879, was made: Received from fines, $38.00; received from dog certificates, $28.75; received from licenses, $16.75; received from property tax, $148.81; total received for June, $197.31; balance on hand from July, $15.31; total amount on hand, $212.55.

Alberton Items.—The stone work of the Catholic church is completed, and the building is now in the hands of the carpenters, who it is expected will soon have it under roof.

A cellar of sufficient size for furnaces and fuel is being excavated under the front of the church to be erected for Protestant worship. On Thursday quarrying operations were begun. The kind of stone used will be the same as that which the other church is built, and obtained at the same place.

A large sycamore tree which stood in the river nearly touching the county bridge and which bore the high water mark of the July '65 freshet, was blown down by the last storm.

There is some talk of organizing a brass band here. In the lead of it are several already experienced in that line.

Sudden Death of an Establisment.—Mrs. Luther Bradford, a lady whose amiable traits of character had won for her the respect of the community, in which she resided, died suddenly at her husband's residence, near Lisbon, on Sunday morning. The funeral took place from the late residence of the deceased at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Rev. W. Mather, of the M. P. Church, officiating. The interment was at Lisbon Presbyterian cemetery. Mrs. Bradford was a daughter of Mr. Henry K. Ridgely, near Cookeville, in this county. The pall-bearers were Messrs. S. G. Hood, J. D. Baxley, M. D. Crapster, D. Beall, Chas. McDonald, Dr. J. W. Gordon.

Nervous Debility.—Faint weakness or depression; a weak exhausted feeling, no energy or courage; the result of mental overwork, indigestion or excess, or some drain upon the system, is always cured by HENRY'S HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFIC No. 23. It tones up and invigorates the system, dispels the gloom and despondency, imparts strength and energy, stops the drain and rejuvenates the entire frame. Been used twenty years with perfect success by thousands. Sold by dealers. Price, $1.00 per single vial, or $5.00 per package of five vials and $2.00 vial of powders. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Address HENRY'S HOMEOPATHIC MEDICINE COMPANY, 109 Fulton Street, N. Y.

Godley's Lady Book for August comes out with fresh, short and good things as usual. The articles continue in interest, and the short stories are by some of the best authors. The colored Fashion plate is unusually fine and in addition there are many pages of fashions in all their details which will prove most interesting to the ladies. Garden Parties are becoming the most fashionable and popular forms of hospitality, and many useful hints for their successful giving in Godley's send $1 to the publisher, Philadelphia, and try it for six months.

(COMMUNICATED.)
County Politics.
CLARKSVILLE, July 19, 1879.
MEMBERS EDITORS: Permit me a short space in your columns for the presentation of a few ideas in regard to the present aspect of political affairs in the county.

The call for the Democratic primaries has been issued, requesting the attendance of democratic voters to select five delegates to represent them in the county nominating convention on the 22nd and 23rd inst. I am a member of the Democratic party and I desire to transact their public business for them to come. The primary meetings are free and open to all and the question naturally arises in the minds of those who desire true reform, honest, economical democratic government, why cannot the whole body of the people interested in good government come to these meetings, discuss public measures and carefully elect those who shall represent them and what measures are necessary for their welfare? This has not been done heretofore on account of erroneous impressions which prevail among the people and to correct which is one object of this letter; let me illustrate. I was on my way to the last primary held at Clarksville and saw a neighbor, a worthy citizen and a good man, looking up at the clouds and saying "You're going the wrong road neighbor," I said, "the primary meeting comes off to-day."

"Yes," he replied, "but these things are fixed before we get there and there's no use going; the King is maugling all this."

move and endeavor to secure through existing agencies the best possible laws and forms of public administration?
In regard to the ensuing canvass in the county, Messrs. Editors, permit me to state that a study of the results of previous campaigns will satisfy any intelligent mind that great care is necessary in the part of aspirant candidates and people to secure a successful issue; that it will not do to trifle with the people when a vote or two in each district may change the result and that it would be well for all of us to consider the propriety of being governed by the old man and also whether our party would not be more influential and more prosperous in its whole strength in a county issue by leaving the election of their public servants where it properly belongs,—entirely to the people—without the use of intoxicating liquor or other forms of bribery to influence their action. In conclusion permit me first to state that this mode of electioneering is condemned by the statute and made a penal offence, and second to claim for myself and my fellow citizens a freedom from the part of primaries and general election, uninfluenced by any improper agencies whatever. Respectfully yours,
VERMUM.
