The board of directors of the Texas Pacific tailroad met in Philadelphia on Satnrday last, and considered matters of interest to the company. The statement that Col. Scott would on that day sign a contract for the extension of the road to Fort Worth, a distance of 750 miles, was not verified. Ex Gov. Brown, vice president, said, regarding such a contract, that negotiations tooking to the building of the read to El Paso, a distance of 600 miles, and its possible extension to Fort Worth, have been in progress for some time, but there was nothing at present to warrant the immediate execution of such a contract. Propositions had been made to the board in this matter, but until a Case, Mono satisfactory arrangement could be agreed upon nothing would be done. Mr. Brown added that 444 in les of the road were in successful operation.

The excitement throughout the West of Ireland shows no sign of abatement. Large meetings are being held in all populous places in the counties of Mayo and Sigo. Mr. Parnell, in addressing a large meeting last night in Sligo, asked the people to persevere in the agitation, and remember his advice to keep a firm grip on the land. Great crowds assembled in the streets of Sligo Tuesday. There is some fear of a riot, as municipal elections are being held, and the Mayor is very unpopular. One hundred and twenty soldiers are under arms in the barracks, and one hardred additional police are in readmess. Ali the western districts are being strongly

A correspondent of the Times calls attention to the brisk trade doing at Irish fairs in old government rifles. One hundred and twenty-five rifles were sold in the district of Dungannon in one week at at out seven shallings cach.

A dispatch from Dublin to the Times says: "While the Irish agitators tell the public that they are engaged in a legal and constitutional agitation, and ostensibly advise the people to keep within the law, the country abounds with evidence strength. that a different interpretation has been put upon their language. THURSBAY.

It was Benjamin Franklin, nothing if not practical, who insisted that not the the American eagle, but the American turkey should properly be our national bird. The so-called eagle, he said, was nothing but a fishing falcon in fact, cow-must depend upon the mail in all transactions andly preductors, filthy in his habits and with the Patent Office. ardly, predactous, filthy in his habits and uncleanly in his person. The turkey, on the other hand, a genuine native American, was a right royal fowl, of stately and noble bearing, undoubted courage and amiable disposition. Somewhat given he might be to gobble and strut, to spread his feathers and dilate his breast, but then he had something about him for which it was worth his while to gobble and swell. Without discarding the eagle, we have accepted Franklin's advice and taken the turkey into our affections also. The one we plant on top of our fligstaffs and stamp upon our coins, the other rules the roast more in imately still in our demestic affairs and presides at all our great festivities. We are not Brahmins in our offerfowl worship, however, and our tenderest regards go forth towards the turkey when he is fully fattened and trussed and spitted ready for the fire. On Thanksgiving Day especially do all the domestic aitars in the hand smoke with the sacrificial fires which testify to our respect for the turkey. In some parts of the country this great lestival of thanks and gratitude would not be Thanksgiving Day, would not be the feast of ingathering, of gratitude for the beneficences of Providence showered upon us during the year, without the turkey. But after all the noble fowl and the accessories upon the board around him, and the gusto with which we cat, are but symbols of the deeper and broader feelings in which the festival has its origin.
