SENATORS GORMAN AND GIBSON. The duty of the legislature in returning Hon. A. P. Gorman to the United States Senate was simply to give effect to the expressed wish of all Maryland. Any questions involved were settled long ago, before a large proportion of the present General Assembly were named, Senator Gorman is the leader of the Democrats of the United States Senate as well as of the national Democracy. This leadership, since the defeat of the Force Bill, has been unquestioned, and any other action than that of the Maryland legislature would have been as omitting Hamlet in the presentation of the play to which he gives the name. In the election of Hon. Charles H. Gibson as Senator Gorman's colleague, the legislature has shown discriminaupon his constituency and prove a worthy coadjutor of the man who has given Maryland [such prominence among the sisterhood of States.

The Baltimore American, with commendable zeal, has been publishing descriptions of inducements offered capital and enterprise in the various counties of Maryland. The description of what Howard county has to exhibit is glowingly set forth and should be productive of good results. The county's ane natural resources, the advantages which have been taken of these in the making of improvements, its manufacturing interests, its educational institutions, its culture and refinement are all dwelt upon. No paper takes a greater interest in the material welfare of Maryland than the American, and there is no more public-spirited citizen among us than Gen. Felix Agnus. Seconded by an able staff, from managing editor down, he has made the American a power in Maryland's welfare.

The Ledger has made up its mind to stay in Frostburg, and we believe the town worthy of such an excellent journal. With its last issue the Ledger began its third year. We are confident that it has the brains, the pluck and the business sagacity back of it requisite to the maintaining of its determination to stay and we hereby extend to Brother Harman our best wishes.

The Baltimore Telegram has entered its thirtieth year with bright prospects, and it gives us pleasure to say that the Telegram deserves all of its past, present and prospective prosperity.

The Democratic national committee met in Washington, Thursday, and determined Chicago, June 21, as the place and time for the national convention.

The law that one United States Senator must come from the Eastern Shore is a silly old thing anyhow.

The thanks of THE TIMES are due to Senator John G. Rogers for copies of went into the convention, and he and the Senate Journal.

IT READS LIKE A NOVEL.

Arthur Pue Gorman's Wonderful Career-

Senator Where Once Page. Senator Gorman's career reads like a romance. The daily papers have given sketches of him within the past few days and to them, in compilation of the following, THE TIMES is partly indebted. The distinguished Maryland Senator's full name is Arthur Pue Gorman, the given name being that of a prominent Howard county physician, a family connection and friend. Senator Gorman was born at Wood stock, Howard county. March 11, 1839. His father was Peter Gorman and his mother Elizabeth A. Brown. Mr. and Mrs. Gorman removed to the Sixth district of Howard county when the subect of this sketch was a boy of six years from boyhood to manhood the Sixth has been the home of the present Senator. At the age of thirteen years his father, aided by General Hammond, the Congressman from his district, and Wm. T. Hamilton, who was cere thanks for the fruits of our recent then in Congress, secured him a position in the House of Representatives as the attention of Stephen A. Douglas, who became very much attached to him and obtained for him an appointment as page in the United States Senate. He soon became a close and intimate friend seeds of advertising, and the sower will of Mr. Douglas, his private secretary and a member of his household. He accompanied Mr. Douglas in the Illinois campaign in which he engaged Abraham Lincoln in joint discussions. From the position of page Mr. Gorman was advanced to that of messenger, then sucessively to those of assistant doorkeeper, assistant postmaster and postmaster. It was while occupying this position that the famous struggle over the Kansas-Nebraska bill took place in Congress, and in it Mr. Gorman, by his vigilance, activity and physical endurance, was able to afford important assistance to the Douglas party. At the outbreak of the war Mr. Gornan experienced much concern and it is stated he once went to Jefferson Davis and asked him his opinion of what he ought to do. "Follow your State," said the secessionist leader; and so he did. He remained in the service of the Senate, advancing from one post to another until he held the position of postmaster When President Johnson broke with the his cause and made himself so active in opposing the impeachment that the majority of the Senate dismissed him from his office Reverdy Johnson, Thomas A. Hendricks

Senate, together with Montgomery Blair, | cured from President Johnson Mr. Gorman's appointment as collector of internal revenue of the Fifth district, which comprises Southern Maryland. It was a very difficult collection district, The agent of the Star Circulating Li- but Mr. Gorman addressed himself to its uties with such energy and ability that he cleared away its arrearges, and in less sertion of an advertisement in this paper than six months after he left the office was productive of most gratifying his accounts were closed up, which was in the history of that collection district. He held the office until April, 1869, when he resigned it to his successor, appointed by General Grant, and turned his attention to his farm in Howard county.

Mr. Gorman's first office under the government of Maryland was that of diector in the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, to which he was appointed in 1869. He was elected to the House of Delegates from Howard county, and served during the sessions of 1870, 1872 and 1874. At the session of 1874 he was elected Speaker and made an enviable record as a parliamentarian. At the close of the session, with the influence of Governor Whyte, he was appointed president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, and held that position for about ten years. But in the meantime he was elected in 1875 to succeed Hon. John Lee Carroll as Senator from Howard county. It was during this session that he conducted the adjustment of the differences between the State and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company growing out of the capitation tax, in which he exacted from the company certain concessions for the Chesapeake and tion. Senator Gibson will reflect credit Ohio Canal. In the controversy with the road Mr. Gorman acted upon the belief that the Washington branch, in which the State had a heavy interest, would be bankrupt in competing with a road which had no such burden as the capitation tax upon it. In 1880 he was elected to succeed the Hon. Wm. Pinkney Whyte as Senator of the United States. He took his seat March 4, 1881. He was at that time forty-one years of age, and the youngest man in the Senate. Six years later he was re-elected without opposition, and his re-election for a third term is recorded elsewhere in THE TIMES.

These details and dates in the career of Mr. Gorman give but an imperfect idea of those qualities which have secared for him his present position of prominence in the State and influence in the country. This position has been attained only after conflicts and antagon isms which would have appalled most men, and by the possession of certain qualities of mind and temperament which are rare among mankind. His judgment seems almost uninfluenced by passion, and this has been shown when in bitter contests recourse has been had by his enemies, without scruple, to the foulest calumniation. His inluence in Democratic counsels in Maryland began early in his career in State politics. He was a friend and ally of Wm. r. Hamilton. That gentleman had favored him as a boy, and when Mr. Hamilton was a candidate before the Legislature for the United States Senate Mr. Gorman rendered him valuable assistance. Later on he was a co-worker with Mr. Hamilton in securing the nomination of William Pinkney Whyte for the governorship. Mr. Hamilton was anxious his way, but Governor Whyte was Mr. Gorman's choice and this caused an estrangement from Hamilton. In 1875 Mr. Hamilton was candidate for the nomination for the governorship and seemed to have carried a majority of the delegations to the State convention. It was at this convention, the most exciting probably ever held in the State, that Mr. Gorman made one of the most determined contests in his whole career, and it was by his management that the nomination of John Lee Carroll was secured. In the convention for Hamilton were some of the strongest men in the State. Among them were John Ritchie. Keedy, of Washington, and E. B. Prettyman, and E. B. Prettyman, of Washington, and E. B. Prettyman, and E. B. Prettym of Frederick; Josiah H. Gordon, of Cumyman, of Montgomery. The latter talked for hours far into the night to secure an adjournment. The speeches of Freaner and Ritchie have seldom not dream that anyone would stand in

been surpassed in the State. Mr. Gorman, fearing that their earnestness and eloquence would carry all before them, Henry E. Wootton, of Howard, withstood the Western Marylandorators and carried the day. At the next State convention Hamilton was nominated without opposition and Mr. Gorman came up as candidate for the Senate. Many of Governor Hamilton's friends urged him to use all his power against Mr. Gorman, but he declined to take any part in the contest and remained enthat journal to the front, and so high- tirely neutral. The personal relations of knowledge which Mr. Gorman had acquired in that body years before came into play and gave him an advantage which cannot be estimated. He started as a new Senator better equipped for exercising influence than many men after serving a whole term of six years, and it was not long before this influence was felt. When, during his present term, the memorable Force Bill contest came up in 1890 the peculiar and distinguishing mental traits of the Senator came into full play and enabled him to take the part which has given him so much prominence. This and the saccessful management of the campaign in which Cleveland was elected president.

conviction that few can resist its influence or fail to be impressed by it. e his until the last year of the century. He is fifty three years of age, and his opportunities for doing good are such as have come to but few. The Senator has been very happy in his domestic life. In 1866 he married Mrs. Hattie D. Schwartz, and the union has been blessed. The three eldest daughters have grown to womanhood and are now prominent in Washington society. They are charming young la dies, free from all affectation, and of rare intelligence. The Memorial Volume Which Accompanies the Gorman Testimonial. The memorial volume containing the names of all subscribers to the silver service presented to Senator Gorman by citizens of Maryland is completed. The volume is elaborate in finish and detail and is a handsome specimen of the bookbinder's art. It is about twelve inches square and two and a half inches thick. The leaves are of heavy glazed cardboard of such excellent quality that it will sustain the wear and handling of generations. The covering is of moire antique cardinal silk. On the outside is a monogram of the initials of Senator Gorman's name in silver. The monogram was cut from a solid block of silver and is beautifully chased. The first leaf in the book has in red, blue and gold letters the testimonial that was engraved on the silver service, as fol-Maryland, in token of their appreciation ouring the Fifty-first Congress. Throughout the book the lettering is similar to that used for the committee. Interspersed with the names are portraits in detail of nearly every separate piece of the silver ser- dence of vice. These are largely and well executed and give a clear idea of the original, every typical feature of the service being prominently reproduced. At the end of the book is a picture of the tea set presented to Senator Gorman and bought with the surplus money subscribed for the memorial. In the design of the book the names of the subscribers do not appear in straight angleforming lines. There is a pleasing novel-Ity in their arrangement. The engraving is done in all sorts of fantastic shapes, and no two pages are similar in their makeup. The book contains about four thousand names. NEWS FROM WASHINGTON. Great Britain and Germany have oined in an appeal to Chili not to go to war with the United States. There is reason to believe that dispatches have been received in Washington from Chili looking to a peaceful settlement of the dispute. This belief was strengthened Tuesday night by the official announcement that the President's message on the Chilian affair would not be sent to Congress Wednesday, as intended. Secretary Blaine complained of weakness and nausea at the meeting of the cabinet Tuesday and went home, accompanied by Secretary Elkins. It was announced that Secretary Blaine's illness was not serious, but he did not leave his residence during the remainder of the evening. Rumors were current that his leaving the cabinet meeting was due to a difference of opinion with the President concerning the Chilian affair, and that an open rupture between the President and Secretary of State was impending. Mr Mills in resigning says he is simply following out the line of action indicated in his former letter to Speaker Crisp, in which he declined to take a second place on the committee of ways and means. MEDIUM TO ADVERTISE IN.

The Lamkin Enterprise

ELLICOTT CITY, January 23, 1892. Out of the net-work of commercial intricacies there arise circumstances over which there seems to be no power of control. Men apparently enjoying success to-day are poor to-morrow, and others who have for months and even years been living in poverty, suddenly arise to affluence and wealth. There is a limit to human knowledge in fathoming the future. Indeed it seems that our knowledge is limited as to the results of our present ac-when we put their words and their works into the crucible, behold what we thought was gold is a mould full of worthless dross. The eternal theme of some concerns is to perpetually put before the people some pigmy problem which to the intelligent is perfectly preposterous. For instance: they will advertise a 25-cent hat for 25 cents and say it's worth a dollar.

If a hat is the article you are seeking, and price is an object with you, our obect is to sell it. The all around price for hats the coming week with us will be

Nineteen Cents.
