FORTIFIED WITH DOCUMENTS.
A Man Who Was Prepared to Cope with the Skepticism of the World.
We were waiting at the depot in Jackson, when a rough looking man who had his shoes on top and his hat pulled fully on that foot came into the waiting room and solicited friendly aid. The explanation he made was as follows:
"Gentlemen, I have received a telegram from Sanilac to the effect that my sister is dying. I want to raise money to take me up there."
"Look here, mister," replied the first man he struck, who had a sort of cold hearted look about him, "what's the use in your lying about things? Isn't it better to tell the straight truth than to indulge in such improbable yarns?"
"Sir! I am telling the truth," he replied.
"Humph! Got the telegram to show for it, I suppose?"
"I have, sir."
"Got it right in your pocket, probably?"
"Certainly—here it is!"
The soldier sent a telegram sent from Sanilac and received at Jackson reading just as he had stated. More than that, the receiving operator had attested the fact of its being genuine. The cold hearted man was taken aback, but after a moment he rallied and said:
"It's a wonder you didn't claim to be an old soldier, mister?"
"I am one, sir," was the quiet reply.
"Got the proof of that, probably?"
"I have, sir. Here is my discharge."
"Then what's the use of your going?"
"The cold hearted man seemed a little shaky as he continued:
"Yes, I see. Probably got your foot hurt in the service of your country?"
"Yes, sir. A runaway horse attached to a mail wagon stepped on that foot while I was trying to stop him. Here is an affidavit to that effect. I suppose you'd call that in the service of my country, wouldn't you? It was in the service of the government, at least."
"Certainly," continued the other, unwilling to acknowledge defeat, "this telegram about your sister is a week old."
"Certainly. I haven't been able to raise the money to get there."
"She is, sir, as this other telegram received two days ago will inform you."
"To make arrangements for the future care of her three orphan children, sir. Here's a letter duly attested, proving that she left three who must be looked after."
He pulled out the letter and handed it over. Everybody was now chuckling over the fix the cold hearted man was in, and he had scarcely begun to take the only route open and get out of it by handing the man a dollar. He didn't feel right about it, however, and observed:
"It's a wonder you haven't a document proving that you got burnt out in the great Chicago fire!"
"But I have, sir! Here it is! Knowing how human nature is, I need no mention that I can't back up with sworn documents."
And what did he do but hand out an old signed and attested document, attested that he had lost $10,000 worth of household goods in the Garden City holocaust! This took both legs from under the man, and he went out doors in a huff and did not return.—Detroit Free Press.
Charlie's "Misses" Table.
Mathematics is Charlie's table. The way he mixed himself up and got lost in the mazes of the multiplication and division tables was astounding. The weights and measures were not much better, although he agreed that there was some sense in a fellow's knowing how many ounces went to a pound of candy.
"The other night when Charlie sat down to study for his honor, a little fellow and doesn't shrink a bit because he doesn't like to do it. He seemed especially gloomy and dejected."
"What is the table for tomorrow?" said mamma, trying to put a cheerful face on the matter.
"Oh, it's the worst one yet. I don't see any sense in it. It's called the 'Misses' table."
"Let me see your book," said mamma, who after a group of a crowd in the mathematics class, had been a little better than his tables of weights and measures, and where, hearing the miscellaneous table, stood this abbreviation, "Misses' Table."—New York Herald.
Horned Fish.
Some fishes have horns which are actually outgrowths of bones on their heads. The bofish, which inhabits the warm waters of the globe—a little fellow six or eight inches long—has horns an inch in length.—Washington Star.
Maine has only nineteen cities within its borders. Portland is the oldest city and Dover is the youngest, having just thrown off town government.
Fell Dead.
These words are very familiar to our readers, as not a day passes without the report of the sudden death of some prominent citizen. The explanation is "Heart Disease." Therefore beware if you have any of the following symptoms: Short Breath, Pain in Side, Smothering Spells, Swollen Ankles, Asthmatic Breathing, Weak and Hungry Spells, Tenderness in Shoulder or Arm, Fluttering of Heart or Irregular Pulse. These symptoms mean heart disease. The only reliable remedy is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which has saved thousands of lives. Book of testimonials free at A. G. Daley's Drug Store who also sells the New Heart Cure.

CELEBRATED Dwarfs.
Early in the last century a brother and sister attracted great attention for smallness of stature. They were of Polish birth, and were people of great accomplishments and elegant manners. When the brother, Count Berowski, was one year old he measured fourteen inches in height. Five years after he had gained but three inches, but at the age of twenty he had reached to thirty-three inches, and at thirty the measurement was six inches more, and then the growth ceased.
The sister, Anastasia, seven years younger, could stand under her brother's arm. The count lived to be almost 100.—Detroit Free Press.
Fell Easier.
Young Mrs. Colling (to her papa)—Oh, papa, what does the word "contract" mean?
"Papa—it means to make smaller, my dear. For instance, heat expands and cold contracts."
Mrs. Colling—Then it's all right. Harry told me he was contracting some heavy debts, and I was so nervous till you explained it.—Harper's Bazar.
Corns and bunions may be removed by paring them down closely as possible without drawing blood; then soak them in warm water to soften them, and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm, twice daily, rubbing them vigorously for ten minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn for a few days, to protect them from the shoes. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is all that can be desired.
