SKETCH OF JUDGE MILLER.

Judge Miller is sixty-eight years of age. The last term for which he was elected would not expire unti: 1897, but in 1894 he would have reached the constitutional limit of seventy years, when his retirement would have taken place unless the Legislature enabled him to continue. Few men have ever sat upon the bench in Marylaud possessed of a more robust and virile latellect than Oliver Miller. His opinions in the Maryland Reports are distinguished for their vigorous language, logic and directness, going right to the heart of the case. He was born in Middletown, Conn., April 15, 1824; went to Frederick city to live with his sister, Mrs. Converse, whose husband was principal of the academy in that town. In 1848 he graduated with high honors at Dartmouth College. That year he went to Annapolis, studied law with Hon. Alexander Randall, and was admitted to the bar in 1850. He reported and arranged four volumes of Maryland chancery decisons by Chancellor Johnson. From 1852 he was reporter of the Court of Appeals, reporting the Maryland Reports from the third to the eighteenth volume inclusive. He was a member of the constitutional convention of 1861, represented Anne Arundel county in the House of Delegates in 1855, 1855 and 1867. In the latter session he was Speaker. At the first election under the new constitution, November, 1867, in that time between the constitution and convention of the Court of Appeals, reporting the Maryland lay took possion he was Speaker. Judge Miller has contributed in a marked degree to the high reputation which the decisions of the Court of Appeals of Maryland enjoy throughout the Union, and his opinions take a high rank among the rest. His industry has been remarkable and the amount of work he has accomplished is marvelous. Among his associates the greatest and most marked deference was always accorded to his opinions.

THE NEW CHIEF JUDGE.

Hon. Charles B. Roberts, who is now chief judge of the Fifth district and judge of the Court of Appeals, was born in Uniontown, Carroll county, April 19, 1812. After graduating at Calvert College, New Windsor, in 1861, he entered upon the study of law, and was admitted to practice in 1864. In 1868 he served as an elector on the Democratic ticket in the presidential contest of that year. Mr. Roberts was elected by the Democratic party of his district to the Forty-fourth Congress, and was placed on the Committee of Accounts, of which he became chairm in. He was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress by over 3,000 majority, and was appointed over 3,000 majority, and was appointed irman of the Committes of Accounts. THE CAMPAIGN OPENED. ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING AT WOOD-

STOCK PARK. The Issues of the Campaign Ably Discussed

Talbott and Mr. M. F. Burke-Stirring Appeals to Common-sense, Reason and Patriotism. The gathering of Democrats and others at Woodstock on Saturday last was not a mass meeting in the sense of an outpouring of the people but a large number were present, including a large sprinkling of ladies. The weather was not propitious in the morning which doubtless prevented many from being present. It was a formal opening of the campaign in the Second and Fifth Congressional districts and was arranged by the Woodstock Democratic Club The Catonsville Cornet band and Le Bon's orchestra were present, the latter furnishing music for the dance, which was started after the speaking.

Those who addressed the meeting were Mr. Martin F. Burke, of Ellicott City, Hon. Barnes Compton, candidate for Congress in the Fifth district, Hon. J Fred. C. Talbott, candidate for Con gress in the Second district.

At about noon order was called by Dr. J. W. Hebb, who, in a brief but pointed speech vigorously denounced a tariff system which produced at the same time millionaires and paupers. "To have the ladies on one's side," said the Doctor, "is to win." Applying this principle, having won the ladies the speaker had the audience. A rain coming on at this time the speaking was postponed until the after-

The great issues of the great prosperity they claim except in campaign he held were the tariff and the force bill. His allusions to Mr. Cleveland elicited marked applause.

Mr. Burke was followed by

J. F. C. TALBOTT. "The same issues," said Mr. Talbott are involved in this campaign as were involved in 1888. Cleveland as President discovered and called attention to the fact that we had nearly $100,000,000 more in the treasury than the govern ment needed, and that from eighty to one hundred millions of dollars per year were being collected in taxes fron the people beyond what was necessary for expenses He asserted that there ought to be a revision of the tariff laws. We say the government should only examiner of the late board. Mr. was not elected on that issue. He was elected by the fraud of the Republican campaign fund carried from Philadelphia to corrupt the voters of New York. Who is right about this question of taxation? Does the history of the past four years make it right for the people to vote for the Republican party? They claimed that protection was necessary for the laboring classes, but the wages of the laboring classes have not been increased. If the laboring people are not benefitted, who are? They told the farmer that they would make a home letter to Mr. Robinson, to whom the market and that the price of home products would be increased. Now. don't know of a man who has as much leisure as the farmer, but tariff hasn't anything to do with it. It is laborsaving machinery that gives you what idle time you may have. But you may labor as you please, you cannot keep out of debt with wheat at 70 cents a bushel. which is the price under the McKinley bill. They always rely upon a commission when in a tight place. Mr. Harrison is a zealot, a fanatic on the force bill, and his message to Congress shows it. EQUAL RIGHTS.

Turning to the question of taxation, Mr. Compton said: "It is essential that the American voter should cast his ballot in an intelligent way and that we should resist any encroachment on our liberties and the cardinal Democratic principle of 'justice to all and special privileges to none.' While it is the right to have taxation imposed upon every citizen, no matter how humble, i hould be equitably levied. The constitution provides three ways in which the large amount of money necessary to support the federal government may b raised-by tariff taxation, internal revenue tax and direct taxation upon property. All parties are agreed that would not do to raise that money b direct taxation, because no party which adopted that method would remain in tor, who has all the gallantry of the agreed that the easiest, safest and best way is to raise the necessary revenue for the government at the custom-house. "It is right here that the difference Sykesville. begins. The Republicans say: "Yes, but we will levy the tax in such a way that we shall promote American labor.

We say: 'The constitution provides that Congress shall raise revenue for the support of the government, and not for the benefit of a class' They claim the right to levy a protective tax for protection's sake. We maintain that the tax must be for revenue. They tell you and me that all the glory this country enjoys today because of its prosperity is due to the influence of a high Republican tariff. He attacked the constitutionality of the reciprocity clause in the McKinley tariff bill, claiming that by that law the reaty-making power was given the resident alone, although the constitution vests that power in the President given the power to tax, which the contitution says Congress alone shall have. "Grover Cleveland," Mr. Compton continued, "has made a record that will lever die while America is free. He is the people, while General Stevenson is

In conclusion he said: "I never was n love with the present civil-service reform law, but I do not want my civil service friend to say that he is better than I am. I only claim to be an honest man and this I am. I am as earnestly in favor of the honest administration of the civil service of this country as any man. I said I would vote for a civilservice law to the effect that the responsiblity for and power of appointment should go together. The attempt to shift the responsibility for an appointee by means of a civil-service commission is not entitled to my support. I would be willing to vote for a commission to examine the applicant as to his qualifications, but the power of appointnent and the attendant responsibility should remain with executive officers."

FULTON, Sept. 29 .- Mr. William Saker has several very prolitic pear trees in hisgarden. On some of the trees, branches, mere twigs, there are from 16 to 40 perfectly developed pears of large size. The pears hang in clusters of three to six. On a small branch of one of the trees there are twenty-one fine pears within one foot space in length of the branch, while the balance of the branch is completely lined with clusters | the summer at "Richland," their country of pears at intervals of one to three inches. The trees bore heavily last season, which was their second year of few days. fruiting, but this season they are extraordinarily prolific. The pears average at least one to every inch of the surface measure of the entire head or top growth of the trees. The trees were purchased several years ago from an agent of a New York nursery company. They are of the Kieffer variety and excel anything of the kind ever sold here; they have not received any extra attention. An orchard of this variety would prove a paying investment, provided the trees be obtained of a like grade as those of Mr. Sakers. Mr. G. D. Walters, raised the frame of new barn, last Saturday, which is to take the place of the one destroyed by fire several months ago. Protracted meeting began at Zion M. E. Church last Sunday night, Rev. J.
