TRUE MAGNETISM. It has been said that Mr. Cleveland lacks "magnetism." That his manner rather repels than attracts. That he is cold, stern, indifferent to other men's opinions, &c. There may be a class who so regard him, but the popular idea of Mr. Cleveland is different. His sterling honesty, fearlessness and consistency of conduct and speech have drawn around him, not only the yeomenry of his party but many of the intellectual lights of the country. As the Greeks once bitterly regretted their action toward their greatest philosopher and statesmen, so there are indications that the people of the United States are regretting they did not place Mr. Cleveland in the presidential chair in 1888. Signs of this are to be seen on every side and if he should not be elected on the 8th of November next it may be attributed to the huge campaign fund which the Republican party just now is frying out of its rich constituency. While this is going on the thoughtful patriot is beginour government as far as it guarantees to the McKinley tariff would not open a every citizen those inestimable blessings and so splendidly worked out by our forefathers, and which culminated in the formation of our constitution. The fact that we have our annual national expenditures on a war footing-expenses that cannot be met without hardship to the plain people of the land; the fact that the people are ten times more corrupt than they have ever been, from the poor man who waits on election day for the dollar that buys his vote, to the bounty-fed interests which supply the money to buy that vote, are enough to awaken the most serious apprehensions among the people as to what they may

It was just such a condition of things that caused Mr. Cleveland to spring tariff reform when he did. He did it, too, at the expense of his election. When shown how impolitic it was as a party measure, his simple reply was, "I would rather be right than president."

want of confidence in the Republican party that we believe the people are anxious for a safe leader. Such is the character of Mr. Cleveland that the most bitter opponent, if he have a modicum of fairness, must concede to him unadulterated devotion to what he believes to be the greatest good to the greatest number. This is the magnetism and pounds, were used in the manufacture of only magnetism of Mr. Cleveland. It is the same magnetism which caused bill, and which it was necessary to pay, his spontaneous nomination. It is the same magnetism which caused the people to turn toward George Washington in the days of discouragement and peril. Mr. Blaine not long ago was a cavalier in American politics, but the questions affecting the country had not become so clearly defined as they are now. Just in the proportion as Mr. Cleveland's words began to be heeded did enthusiasm for Mr. Blaine or any stateman of It cuts off competition in farming imhis type wane, and now it may be said, the country for the first time in its his tory is soberly considering dry and what have hitherto been considered abstruse questions of political economy. Therefore, it matters little to the peowhether Mr. Cleveland is possessed of personal magnetism or not. They are more than half convinced what he has been saying and endeavoring to teach

Mr. Cleveland has uttered warning words; he has outlined a policy; he has the courage of his convictions; he is ontirely void of demagogic aspirations; he is free from ambitious designs involving promotion; of self; he cares little to prescribe sarsaparilla, he simply for the applause of men; he has lived orders a bottle of Ayer's, knowing full through the most malignant assaults of well that he will obtain thereby a surer his enemies; in short he seems to have which the drug-store can furnish. Ayer's but one desire and that is to faithfully Sarsaparilla is the Superior Medicine. serve the people.

The Democrats have chosen Mr. Cleveland as the embodiment of principle which if once in operation will be best for the masses, and it remains for the people to discern their soundness or unsoundness.

Mr. Cleveland is not an idol in the unseemly meaning of the term. The vast majority of those who are ardently wishing for his election are looking as far beyond him as a fixed star is beyond our

Matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Usual prices of admission. Next dramatic production, "Glendalough."

Why should not we, standing in the light of history and past experience, pre serve intact the spirit which animated the founders of our government? Mi Cleveland, observing the huge octapus, protection, born in sin and shapen in iniquity, reaching out its clammy tentacles, until the very life of the nation is threatened, made bold to proclaim his his convictions. The Republican party vas no sooner entrenched in power at Washington than the intent of its leaders became apparent. The nation alarmed at once set about to revolutionize the political complexion of the House, even before the acts of the billion-dollar Congress could be put into operation. Mr. Cleveland's stern and unflinching oppositon to all this is what has made him popular. He may not be magnetic in the sense Mr. Blaine has been, but be will go down into history as the sturdy statesman who refused to be swerved rom a path of political rectitude at a time when the glittering bauble of place and power turned the heads of men who knew better and could have shed a greater renown upon their country than they How the McKinley Bill Affects the Farme Mr. MacVeagh made two startling dec larations in his great speech delivered in this city on Saturday evening to an immense multitude. First, he said that in Lancaster county, the garden spot of agriculture in the world, good farms could be bought for the cost of the improvements on them; and, second, that he depreciation in farm property of the country since 1870, under the highest ariff taxes and the growth of monopoly was as great as the value of the entir protected manufacturing establishment of the nation. Does the present value o Lancaster county farms prove or dis prove the truth of these grave state The farmers can judge for themselves

Soon after the passage of the McKinle tariff the prices of farm products in creased in market value and there was : easonable prospect of an advance in the value of farms. The farmers were tole by party orators and organt that the pro tective tariff had given them largely increased prices for their products and that the value of their farms would speedily and largely advance. One year later the farmer was taught the impressive lesson that the failure of foreign crops and starvation in foreign countries, and not the tariff increased the price of wheat, etc. The wheat that commanded $1.10 to $1.20 last year, now commands from 70 o 80 cents, but the increased tariff taxes on the farmer remain.

The official Treasury statement of th mports and exports for the month of eptemder show the following decline n farm exports this year as compared with last year:

An Impressive List. Hugh McCulloch, the financial mem ber of the Lincoln and of the Arthur Cabinets, is supporting Cleveland. General Cox, of Grant's Cabinet, a gallant soldier and ex-Governor of Thio, has just declared for Cleveland.

Carl Schurz, of Hayes' Cabinet, and Republican Senator from Missouri, is supporting Cleveland. Judge Gresham, of Arthur's Cabinet and a prominent Republican candidate for President in 1888, is supporting Cleveland. Wayne MacVeagh, of Garfield's Cabinet, and Republican Foreign Minister, will speak this evening for Cleveland to one of the largest audiences ever assembled in Philadelphia. Thus five Republican Cabinet officers Such is the feeling of insecurity and are now leading in the great battle for tariff reform and honest government .-

The Tariff on Tin Did It.

The Louis McMurray corn-packing ndustry at Frederick, Md., is the largest individual concern of the kind in the world. At this establishment during the past twelve months 16,000 boxes of tin. weighing in the aggregate 1,723,000 cans. On this quantity the increased duty imposed by the McKinley tariff amounted to the considerable sum of $20,736 00. In consequence of this increase, and notwithstanding the greater production of sugar corn in a number of States, the wholesale price is quoted this season at an advance of from ten to twenty cents per dozen cans. The wages paid to the employes at the factory, however, were just about the same as last vear.-Cor. Baltimore Sun.

Facts for Farmers to Ponder Over. A farmer ought to consider how this tariff of McKinley works against him. plements here, and the manufacturer who sends a horse-rake into the South American market and sells it for $19 charges $25 for it here. The Cumming feed-cutter is sold in South America for $60 and here for $90; the Clipper cutter is sold in South America for $9.50 and here for $18; the Ann Arbor cutter No. 1 is sold in South America for $16 and here for $28, and No. 2 is sold in South America for $40.
