TRUTH ABOUT RUSSIA

REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE.

He Eloquently Refutes the Stories Teld Regarding Cruelty, the Czar's Mercilessness, the Horrors of Siberia and the Official Use of the Knout.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 20.-Rev. Dr. Talmage today fulfilled his promise that he would again speak of his visit to Russia and cor rect many wrong impressions concerning that empire and its ruler. After an exposition of Scripture and congregational singing he took for his text II Peter ii, 10, "Presumptuous are they, self willed; they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities:" Amid a most reprehensible crew Peter here paints by one stroke the portrait of those who delight to slash at people in authority. Now we all have a right to criticise evil behavior, whether in high places or low, but the fact that one is high up is no proof that he ought to be brought down. It is a bad streak of human nature now, as it was in the time of the text a bad streak of human nature, that success of any kind excites the jealous antipathy of those who cannot climb the same steep. There never was a David on the throne that there was not some Absalom who wanted to get it There never was a Christ but the work had saw and hammer ready to fashion a cross on which to assassinate him. Out of this evil spirit grow not only in dividual but national and international defamation. To no country has more injustice been done than to our own in days that are past. Long before "Martin Chuz-zlewit" was printed the literature of the world scoffed at everything American. Victor Hugo, as honest as he was unequaled in literary power, was so misinformed concerning America that he wrote: "The most singular thing is the need of whittling, with which all Americans are possessed. It is such that on Sunday they give the sailors little bits of wood, because if they did not they would whittle the ship. In court, at the most critical moment, the judge, whittling, says, 'Prisoner, are you guilty?' and the accused tranquilly responds, whittling, 'I am not guilty.' Lord John Russell called us "a bubble bursting nationality." But our country has at last recovered from such caricature and there is not a street in any city of Europe or Asia where the word "America" will not win deference. But there is a sister nation on the other side of the sea now going through the process of international defamation. There is no country on earth so misunderstood as Russia, and no monarch more misrepresented than its emperor. Will it not be in the cause of justice if I try to set right the minds of those who compose this august assemblage and the minds of those to whom, on both sides of the ocean, these words shall come? If the slander of one person is wicked, then the slander of one hundred and twelve million people is one hundred and twelve million In the name of righteousness, and in be half of civilization, and for the encouragement of all those good people who have been disheartened by the scandalization of Russia, I now speak. But Russia is so vast a subject that to treat it in one discourse is like attempting to run Niagara falls over one mill wheel. Do not think me last summer by the emperor and empress and crown prince of Russia have ham Lincoln." complimented me into the advocacy of that empire, for I shall present you authenti cated facts that will reverse your opinions, if they have been antagonistic, as mine

I went last summer to Russia with as many baleful prejudices as would make an avalanche from the mountain of fabrication which has for years been heaped up against that empire. You ask how is it possible that such appalling misrepresentations of Russia could stand? I account for it by the fact that the Russian language is to most an impassable wall. Malign the United States or malign Great Britain or Germany or France, and by the next cablegram the falsehood is exposed, for we all understand English, and many of our people are famillar with German and French. But the Russian language, beautiful and easy to those born to speak it, is to most vocal organs an unpronouncable tongue, and if at St. Petersburg or Moscow any anti-Russian calumny were denied the most of the world outside of Russia would never see or hear the denial. DISCUSSING MISREPRESENTATION.

What are the motives for misrepresentation? Commercial interests and international jealousy. Russia is as large as all the rest of Europe put together. Remember that a nation is only a man or a woman on a big scale. Go into any neighborhood of America and ask the physician who has a small practice what he thinks of the physician who has a large practice. Ask a lawyer who has no briefs what he thinks of the lawyer who has three rooms filled with clerks trying in vain to transact the superabundannt business that comes to him. Ask the minister who has a very limited audience what he thinks of the minister who has overflowing audiences. Why does not Europe like Russia? Because she has enough acreage to swallow all Europe and feel she had only half a meal. Russia is as long as North and South America put together. "But," says some one, "do you mean to charge the anthors and the lecturers who have written or spoken against Russia with falsehood?" By no means. You can find in any city or nation evils innumerable if you wish to discourse about them.

I said at St. Petersburg to the most eminent lady of Russia outside of the imperial family, "Are those stories of cruelty and outrage that I have heard and read about true?" She replied: "No doubt some of them are true, but do you not in America ever have officers of the law cruel and outrageous in their treatment of offenders? Do you not have instances where the police have clubbed innocent persons? Have you no instances where people in brief author-ity act arrogantly?" I replied, "Yes, we do." Then she said: "Why does the world hold our government responsible for exceptional outrages? As soon as an official is found to be cruel he immediately loses

Then I bethought myself, Do the people in America hold the government at Washington responsible for the Homestead riots or for railroad insurrections, or for the torch of the villain that consumes a block of houses, or for the ruffians Who arrest a rail train, making the passengers hold up their arms until the pockets are picked? Why, then, hold the emperor of Russia, who is as impressive and genial a man as I have ever looked at or talked with, responsible for the wrongs enacted in a nation with a population twice as ica? Suppose one monarch in Europe ruled over England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Germany, Spain, Italy, Austria, Norway and Sweden.

sponsible for all that occurred in that mighty dominion? Now you must remember that Alexander the Third reigns over wider dominion than all those empires put woman on a big scale, let me ask, would you individually prefer to be judged by your faults or your virtues? All people except ourselves have faults.

flush it. AMERICA'S BEST FRIEND. It is most important that this country have right ideas concerning Russia, for among all the nations this side of lieaven. The emperor replied in words that will Russia is America's best friend. There has not been an nour in the last seventyfive years that the shipwreck of free institutions in America would not have called forth from all the despotisms of Europe and Asia a shout of gladness wide as earth THE SITUATION AS VIEWED BY THE and deep as perdition. But whoever else failed us, Russia never did, and whoever else was doubtful, Russin never was. Russia, then an old government, smiled on the cradle of our government while yet in its earliest infancy. Empress Catherine of Russia in 1776 or thereabouts offered kindly interference that our thirteen colonies might not go down under the cruelties of

Again, in 1813, Russia stretched forth toward us a merciful hand. When our dreadful civil war was raging and the two thunder clouds of northern and southern valor clashed, Russia practically said to the nations of Europe, "Keep your hands off and let the brave men of the north and the south settle their own troubles." I rehearsed some of those scenes to the emperor last July, saying, "You were probably too young to remember the position your father took at that time," but with radiant smile, he responded, "Oh, yes, I remember, I remember," and there was an accentuation of the words which demonstrated to me that these occurrences had often been talked of in the imperial household. I stood on New York Battery during the war, as I suppose many of you did, looking off through a magnifying glass upon a fleet of Russian ships. "What are they doing there?" I asked, and so every one asked. "What business have the Russian warships in our New York harbor?" Word came that another fleet of Russian ships was in San Francisco harbor. "What does this mean?" our rulers asked, but did not get immediate answer. In these two American harbors the Russian fleets seemed sound asleep. Their great mouths of iron spoke not a word, and the Russian flag, whether floating in the air or drooping by the flagstaff, made no answer to our inquisitiveness.

William II. Seward, secretary of state. asked the Russian minister at Washington the meaning of those Russian ships in American waters and got no satisfactory response. Admiral Farragut said to a Russian officer after dining in the home of the eminent politician, Thurlow Weed, that maker and unmaker of presidents, "What are you doing here with those Russian vessels of war?" Not until the war was over was it found out that in case of foreign intervention all the guns and the last gan of these two fleets in New York and San Francisco harbors were to open in full diapason upon any foreign ship that should dare to interfere with the right of Americans, north and south, to settle their own controversy.

But for those fleets and their presence in American waters there can be no doubt that two of the mightiest nations of Europe would have mingled in our fight. But for those two fleets the American government would have been today only a name in history. I declare before God and the nation that I believe Russia saved the United States of America. Last July I stood before a great throng of Russians in the embarrassing position of speaking to an audience three-fourths of which could not understand my language any more than I could understand theirs. But there were two names that they thoroughly under- flatter. stood as well as you understand them, and the utterance of those two names brought forth an acclamation that made the city hall of St. Petersburg quake from foundathat the very marked courtesies extended | tion stone to towers, and those two names were "George Washington" and "Abra-

Now is it not important that we should feel right toward that mighty, that God given friend of more than one hundred years? Yea, because it is a nation of more possibilities than any other, except our own, should we cultivate its friendship. There is a vast realm of Russia as yet unoccupied. If the population of the rest of Europe were poured into Russia it would be only partially occupied. After awhile America will be so well populated that the tides of emigration will go the other way, and I am not detained. I was several days and by railroads from Russia at Behring in Russia before I was asked if I had any straits—where Asia comes within thirty- passport at all. six miles of joining America-millions of people will pour down through Russia and Siberia, and on down through all the regions waiting for the civilization of the because there is something suspicious next century to come, and culture great about him, and you yourself had better, harvests and build mighty cities. when he is around, look after your silver

SLANDERS ANSWERED. Calumny the First-The emperor and all and lovely man, who is the highest official the imperial family are in perpetual dread in the city of St. Petersburg, and whose of assassination. "No," said he; the winter palace. They dare not venture forth, except preceded and followed and surrounded by a most elaborate military

My answer to this is that I never saw a face more free from worriment than the emperor's face. The winter palace, around which the trenches are said to have been charged with dynamite, and in which the imperial family are said to be prisoners, has never been the residence of the impe rial family one moment since the present emperor has been on the throne.

The winter palace has been changed into a museum and a pieture gallery and a place of great levees. He spends his summer in the palace at Peterhof, fifteen or twenty miles from St. Petersburg; his autumns at the palace at Gratschna, and his winters in a palace at St. Petersburg, but in quite a different part of the city to that occupied by the winter palace. He rides through the streets unattended, except by the empress at his side and the driver on the box. There is not a person in this audience more free from fear of harm than he is. His subjects not only admire him but sia?" No doubt, just as in other times in almost worship him. There are cranks in Russia, but have we Wilkes Booth? "But," says some one, "did not the Russians kill the father of the present emperor?" Yes, but in the time that Russia has had one assasination of emperor America has had two presidents assassinated. "But is not the emperor an autocrat?" By which you mean, has he not power without restriction? Yes, but it all depends upon what use a man makes of his power.

Are you an autocrat in your factory, or an autocrat in your store, or an autocrat large in numbers as the millions of Amerin your style of business? It all depends on what use you make of your power, whether to bless or to oppress, and from the time of Peter the Great-that Russian who was the wonder of all time, the emperor who became incognito a ship carpenter that he might help ship carpenters, and a mechanic that he might help mechanics, and put on poor men's garb that he might sympathize with poor men, and who terfere with it. When, under an attack of pneumonia from exposure to severe weather in the service of his people, that emperor put down his head on the pillow of dust, Russia lost as good a monarch as was ever crowned. Then came Alexander the Second. father of the present emperor. Amid the mightiest opposition and innumerable protests, he, with one stroke of his pen, emancipated twenty million serfs, practically saying: "Go free. Be your own masters, and this is for you and your children forever."

On the day he was basely assassinated (and I will parenthetically say that I saw his carriage in splinters, as it looked when he stepped from it, not to save himself, but who had been hurt, and I saw the bed on which he died, the mattress yet crimson with his life's blood)-on the day he was assassinated he had on his table, found afterward, a free constitution that proposed to give the right of suffrage to the people of Russia. If it had not been for the assassination he would have soon signed that constitution, but that horrible violence put things back, as violence always does.

What a marvelous character of kindness was Alexander the Second, the father of the present emperor, so that the present emperor, Alexander the Third, inherits his benignity. Alexander the Second, hearing that a nobleman had formed a conspiracy against his life, had him arrested. Then the eyes of the crimithat runs day and night, so that the supnal were bandaged, and he was put in a ply may meet the demand. carriage, and for some time traveled on, only stopping for food. And now comes in Alexander the Third, doing the best things possible for the nation which he loves and which as ardently rule one hundred and twelve million people, made up of one hundred tribes and guages! ESPIONAGE AND RELIGION. Calumy the Second-If you go to Russia you are under severest espionage, stopped here and questioned there, and in danger of arrest. But my opinion is that if a man is disturbed in Russia it is because he who is constantly pardoning. As I said, ought to be disturbed. Russia is the only country in Europe in which my baggage hardest part of Siberia, but the more modwas not examined. I carried in my hand tied together with a cord so that their titles could be seen, a pile of eight or ten books, all of them from lid to lid cursing Russia, but I had no trouble in taking with me the books. Myself, an American, of still another de nomination of Christians, and never hav ing been inside a Greek church in my life until I went to Russia, could not have received more consideration had I been baptized in the Greek church and all my life worshiped at her altars. I had it demon strated to me very plainly that a man's re ligion in Russia has nothing to do with his preferment for either office or social position. The only questions taken into consideration are honesty, fidelity, morality and adaptation. I had not been in St Petersburg an hour before I received an invitation to preach the Gospel of Christ as I believed it. Besides all this, have you forgotten that the Crimean war, which shook the earth, grew out of Russia's interference in behalf of the persecuted

Christians of all nations in Turkey? dumb cattle; no trial is afforded to the dren of Convicts. Please to name any such suspected ones; they are put into quicksilver mines, where they are whipped and starved, and some day find themselves going around without any head. Some of them do not get so far as Siberia. Women, aft being tied to stakes in the streets, are disrobed and whipped to death in the presence of howling mobs. Offenders hear their own flesh siss under the hot irons. But what are the facts? There are no kinder people on earth than the Russians, and to most of them cruelty is an impossibility. I hold in my hand a card. You see on it that red circle. That is the government's seal on a card giving me permission to visit all the prisons of St. Petersburg, as I had expressed a wish in that direction. As the messenger handed this to look after some poor people of the street | card to me he told me that a carriage was at the door for my disposal in visiting the prisons. It so happened, however, that I was crowded with engagements and I could not make the visitation. But do you suppose such cheerful permission and a carriage to boot would have been afforded me if the prisons of Russia are such helis on earth as they have been described to be? I asked an eminent and distinguished American, "Have you visited the prisons of St. Petersburg, and how do they differ from American prisons?" He replied, "I have visited them, and they are as well ventilated and as well conditioned in every respect as the majority of the prisons in America." Are women whipped in the street? No; that statement comes from the manufactory of fabrication, a manufactory

Run your finger along the map of the world, and you will find that the lowest part of Siberia is on the forty-fifth decree of latitude, and the richest part of Italy is on the same forty-fifth degree of latitude, so that Siberia reaches from the furs at the north to the palm leaf fans at the south. It has been demonstrated that ninety per cent, of the Russian criminals colonized into Siberia go into a climate milder than New York-a land songfu, with birds and embreidered with flora enough manifold to confound the botanists. Much of the soil is a righ loam, and harvests wait for a plow to liberate them. When a criminal is sent to Siberia, in the vast majority of cases it gives him an opportunity to make a new start under the best possible circumstances. The criminal is allowed to take his or her family along, and that is a mercy no other country grants. In the quicksilver mines of Siberia-the hardest place of expatriation-only onefourth of the miners are criminals. The other three-fourths go there because they choose it as a place to earn their living. After being in Siberia awhile the condemned go to earning a livelihood, and they come to own their own farms and orchards and vineyards, many of these people coming to wealth, and thousands of them under no inducement would leave those parts of Siberia which are paradises for salubrity and luxuriance. Now which lo you think is the best style of a prison-Siberia or many of our American prisons? When a man commits a big crime in our country, the judge looks into the fright ened face of the culprit, and says, "You have been found guilty; I sentence you to the penitentiary for ten years." He goes to prison. He is shut in between four walls. No sunlight. No fresh air. No bathroom. Before he has served his ten years he dies of consumption or is so enervated that for the rest of his life he sits with folded hands—a wheezing invalid. In preference to the shut in life of the average American prisoner, give me Siberia. Besides that, when offenders come out of prison in America, what chance have they? Ask the poorly supported societies formed to get these people places for work. Ask me, to whom the newly liberated come from all the prisons imploring what they shall do. No one will commend them. The pallor of incarceration is on their cheek. Who wants to cm. ploy in factory or store a man or woman vho, in answer to the question, "Where did you live last?" should make for reply, "State's prison at Auburn or Moyamensing?" Now in Siberia they have a better chance. They are never spoken of as criminals, but as unfortunates, and they are allowed every opportunity of retrieving their lost reputation and lost fortunes. I talked with the president of the National Society of Russia for the Education and Moralization of the Children of Siberian Convicts. The president of that soci ety, appointed by the emperor, is a lady of great accomplishments and much sympathy, which illumines her face and makes tearful her eyes and tremulous her voice. The evening I passed at her house in St. Petersburg was one of the memorable events of my lifetime. I will not attempt Calumny the Fifth-Siberia is a den of dent of the National Society of Russis for horrors, and today people are driven like the Education and Moralization of the Chil national society in our country, supported by government, for taking care of the children of convicts.

You know, if you know anything, that there is no chance in this country for a man who has been imprisoned, or for his children. God pity them and hasten the time when we shall, by some national institution established by the congress of the United States, imitate the mercy of the Russian government toward the innocent children of imprisoned offenders. He who charges cruelty on the imperial family and the nobility of Russia belies men and women as gracious and benignant as ever breathed oxygen. THE CZAR'S CLEMENCY.

The merciful character of the present emperor was well illustrated in the following occurrence: The man who supervised the assassination of the father of the present emperor, standing in the snow that awful day when the dynamite shattered to pieces the legs of Alexander the Second-I say the man who supervised all this fled from St. Petersburg and quit Russia. But after awhile the man repented of his crime, and wrote to the emperor asking for forgive ness for the murder of his father, and promising to be a good citizen, and asking if he might come back to Russia. The emperor pardoned the murderer of his father, and the forgiven assassin is now living in Russia unless recently deceased. When I talked to the empress concerning the sympathy felt in America for the sufferings of the drought struck regions of Russia, she evinced an absorbing interest and a compassion and an emotion of manner and speech such as we men can hardly realize, because it seems that God has reserved for woman as her great adorument the coronet, the tear jeweled coronet of ten derness and commiseration. If you say that it was a man, a divine man that came to save the world, I say yes; but it was a woman that gave the man. Witnessall the Madonnas-Italian, German, English and Russian-that bloom in the picture galleries of Christendom. Son of Mary, have But how about the knout, the cruel Russian knout, that comes down on the bare back of agonized criminals? Why, Russia abolished the knout before it was abolished from our American navy. But how about the political prisoners hustled off to Siberia? According to the testimony of the most celebrated literary enemy o. Russia, only four hundred and forty-three political prisoners were sent to Siberia in twenty years. How many political prisoners did we put in prison pens during our four years of civil war? Well, I will guess at least one hundred thousand. America's one hundred thousand political prisoners versus Russia's four hundred and fortythree political prisoners. Nearly all these four hundred and forty-three of twenty years were noblemen or people desperately opposed to the emancipation of the serfs. And none of the political prisoners is sent to the famous Kara mines. For the most part you are dependent for information upon the testimony of prisoners who are sent to Siberia. They all say they were innocent. Prisoners always are innocent. Ask all the prisoners of America today, "Guilty or not guilty? and nineteen out of twenty will plead "Not guilty." Ask them how they like their prison, and how they like sheriffs, them and punished them st about as much as the political prisoners of Russia STOP DEFAMATION.

But you ask how will this Russophobia with which so many have been bitten and pisoned, be cured? By the God of Justice blessing such books and pamphlets as are now coming out from Professor de Arnaud. of Washington; Mr. Horace Cutter, of San Francisco; Mr. Morfill, of England, and by the opening of our American gates to the writings of some twenty-four of the Russian authors and authoresses, in some re spects as brilliant as the three or four Russian authors already known-the translation of those twenty-four authors, which I am authorized from Russia to offer free of charge to any responsible American publishing house that will do them justice. Let these Russians tell their own story for they are the only ones fully competent to do the work, as none but Americans can fully tell the story of America, and as none but Germans can fully tell the story of Germany, and none but Englishmen can fully tell the story of England, and none but Frenchmen can fully tell the story of France. Meanwhile let the international defamation come to an end. Cease to speak evil of dignities merely because they are dignities, and of presidents merely because they are presidents, and of emperors merely because they are emperors. And may the blessing of God the Father, and God the Son and God the Holy Ghost be upon all the members of the imperial household of Russia, from the illustrious head of that family down to the princess, seven years of age, who came skipping into my presence in the palace of Peterhof last summer! Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men! So Doth the Busy Maiden. "A girl must have as many sides as there are facets to a diamond to suit every one's requirements," said a harassed young woman of society the other day. "Only consider for a moment what is required of us. The world expects us to be highly educated in all the solid branches, and then, on the top of that, we must be good linguists, tolerable musicians, must be able to write fairly good letters and notes, and, if possible, paint a little and model a little -in short, be 'up' in all the musical and artistic facis of the day. "Besides all this our fathers think we ought to understand the cuisine, to be good housekeepers and manage our allowances in a businesslike way. Our mothers have also their requisitions; they are willing enough, poor dears, to spare us all household tasks-far too willing, I dare say, for our good; but, on the other hand, they exact a great deal from us. They wish us to be conversacional, to be graceful, to have form,' that is intangible, puzzling and unteachable, something that we are supposed to have by instinct, and, in short (hardest task of all), to be a 'success,'

"Our brother expects us to play tennis, to ride and drive well, to understand the points of baseball and football, and to be awfully jolly.' Moreover, to hold our own in society we must dress well and understand the fashions, while to please our male friends we must take a keen interest in horses and dogs and be able to talk of their merits understandingly at the bench shows and horse shows. Then, to be popular with our own sex we must not be above talking 'chiffons' or discussing the affairs of the different members of our 'set."-New York Advertiser.

The moose in Penopscot county, Me. are so accustomed to the train that they gaze calmly and critically at the locomo tive, and are not frightened by whistles and hissing steam jets.

A Mute Recovers Speech, Alphonce Hemphling, of Sammit town ship, Butler county, Pennsylvania, made an affidavit that his twelve-year-old son, who had St. Vitus dance for twelve years, lost his speech, was completely cured after using three bottles of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and also re-covered his speech. Thousands testify to wonderful cures from using it for nervous diseases, dyspepsia, nervous de bility, dullness, confusion of mind, headache, etc. Four doses of this Nervine Indiana, who had been suffering with constant headache for three months.
