MILKING A MOOSE.
A PENOBSCOT GUIDE'S STORY OF ANOTHER TRUTHFUL GUIDE.
How "Dairymann Annuce," of Moosehead, Managed to Secure Something for His Sportsman to Drink Besides the Cold, Starchy Water of the Lake.
"Here's a pretty mess! The milk is all sour."
The speaker was one of a party of four New York sportsmen who, with an equal number of guides, had been cruising about on the west branch of the Penobscot, but were now camping on the shores of Chamberlain lake, preparatory to returning to North East Carry. They had been out longer than they had planned, and some of the supplies had become exhausted.
Then turning to the guides, who were lying at full length on the ground dis-tantly enjoying the young blood's discomfort, he asks, "Is there a farmhouse or hotel near where we could buy some?"
"Depends on what you call near," replied a woodsman. "If you don't reckon forty miles far, then we are near a house, but that's about the distance—maybe a trifling more. You want milk powerful bad, don't you? Well, you fill up on water tonight and maybe in the morning I can accommodate you, though, mind you,
I don't promise!"
"You'll have to get a move on you,"
said one of the other guides. "If you are going to try to make the Carry twice out, don't you? Well, you fill up on wa-
can accommodate you, though, mind you,
I don't promise!"
said one of the other guides. "If you are
out, don't you? Well, you fill up on wa-
can accommodate you, though, mind you,
I don't promise!"

A Typical Nonsense.
"Do I believe in signs and luck, and superstitions and all that blooming nonsense? Of course not," said fat and jolly Henry Thornburgh at Harts' hotel to a group of philosophers. "I have some sort of respect for the people whose superstition is a religion. The Egyptians, who worshipped the dog and cat and even the crocodile; the Romans, who put their faith in divination and oracles and magical powers of amulets; the Greeks, who deified bees and ants; and the mystics and absurdities of astrology and alchemy all have my sympathies and at least respectful consideration.
"But the horrors of the dreadful figure 13 and the fears some people have of making one of that number; the refusal to start a journey or undertaking on Friday; all sorts of ghosts and specter warnings, with second sight, etc., have my supreme contempt. I have known men to shudder upon seeing two magpies at the same time; a friend of mine left my table not long ago because one of my children spilled some salt while moving his plate; one of the firm in our house would rather suffer fine and imprisonment than to put on his left shoe first when he gets up in the morning.
And in most respects these people are all sensible people.
"Stop! Don't walk in front of me; there's a pin on the floor right there with its head toward me. You say what of it? Why, don't you know it is a sign that— What's that? Superstition? Oh, well, you know there are some things—Well, all right. Shut up! What'd you have?"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
A Kansas City man swallowed a door key early one morning. The Trenton (N. J.) Tribune says that one who takes his mouth for a keyhole should reform at once.
Neuralgia paroxysms are of extreme violence, and brought on by the slightest provocation, such as a draught of cool air. The skin is swollen and inflamed, and even after the attack has abated for a while, the patient is in the first intimation of such an attack rub with Salvation Oil, that peerless liniment and pain cure.
Dr. A. C. Taylor, the druggist, gives ten reasons why Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best:
1. It will cure a severe cold in less time than any other treatment.
2. It does not suppress a cough or cold; but loosens and relieves it.
3. It relieves the throat, which is of great importance in treating a cold.
4. It is the only remedy that will cause the expulsion of mucus from the air cells of the lungs.
5. It renders the mucus less tenacious and easier to expectorate.
6. If freely used as soon as the first symptoms appear, it will cure a severe cold in a single day.
7. It will prevent croup and avert all danger and anxiety arising from that dreadful disease.
8. It has cured thousands of cases of croup, and careful inquiry fails to discover a single case in which it has ever failed.
9. It does not contain opium, chloroform, or any other injurious substance.
There is not the least danger in giving it to children.
10. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, and freeing the system of morbid matter, accrued by cause of the cold. 50 cents per bottle.

WOMEN AT ENGLISH RACES.
They Are Nearly Always Wealthy and Attend Because They Love Sport.
The women one sees at the races here are the women of the fashionable world, beautifully attired, escorted by gallants.
They move about on the lawn, or preside at their luncheon tables under the trees or over their hamper in their carriages; they chat and promenade, take a light interest in the races, walk about the paddock and look at the horses, do the honors in a box or rest in their seats at the grand stand; but one doesn't see them hauling out money to put on a horse or chasing around to find out what's good in this race. One doesn't see them consulting the tips in the morning papers, or Jack's tips, or anybody's tips, or in any way showing that they are afflicted with a severe attack of gambling fever.
The English women are the most charming feature of the English races.
They, with their lovely toilet and holiday airs, give it the garden party flavor that helps to keep it a sport instead of a business.
But it's not in nature for them to always look on and never participate.
English women have a finger in the racing pie also. You'd hardly suspect it to watch them at the races, but they do.
They are usually women who go racing for the love of the sport and who know more or less about the horses. When they want to let their hand be seen as a commissioner, some gentleman who is betting for himself, or else some one they can tip for the trouble, to put a certain amount on a horse for them. No money passes on the course. The "settling" is all done away from there, and usually by letter and check.
Women who bet heavily and continually—and there are such—transact their business directly with a bookmaker.
Just like a man. But this again isn't evident on the course. When such a woman fancies a horse she sends a telegram from her home the morning of the day he runs, making her bet, or she wires her bet—"order"—from the course before the race. Usually, too, she's the sort of a woman who can tell the latest fashionable gossip in piquant style, while her equine "fancy" is adding to or subtracting from her bank account.
There are a great many English women who bet in this way, and who now and then stand to win fifty cents in the early look on big races. Then there's a lot of playful impromptu betting at places like Epsom and Ascot. I've seen ladies lean over the front of the boxes at Epsom and hand the shouting bookies who stand in line in front of them sovereigns and half sovereigns and name their horses, to give the day zest or "have it to say" that they were on a Derby or Oaks favorite.
And I've seen ladies going to and from the paddock at Ascot once to have a look at the shouting ring, and go up to some bookie and make a bet "just to have the experience," and the bookie would be "as polite as a basket of chips," and the "experience" would be filed away with those other wonderful ones, like "hogged in lives, like a ride on Junbo or a dash into the slums.—London Cor. Chicago Inter Ocean.
