MIDNIGHT IN CITIES.

DR. TALMAGE PREACHES ON THOSE WHO ARE AWAKE AT NIGHT.

Fow Indeed Are They Who Need Be Out Christian Work Needed.

mage chose for his sermon today a theme | year. No ray of hope ever will dawn on of universal interest-the dark side of social life in our great cities. The text chosen as the basis of a most graphic discourse was Genesis i, 5, "And the darkpess he called night."

Two grand divisions of time. The one of sunlight, the other of shadow; the one for work, the other for rest; the one a type of everything glad and beautiful, the other used in all languages as a type of sadness and affliction and sin. These two divisions were made by the Lord himself. Other divisions of time may have nomenclature of human invention, but the darkness held up its dusky brow to the Lord, and he baptized it, the dew dripping from his fingers as he gave it name, "And the darkness he called

My subject is midnight in town. The thunder of the city has rolled out of the there will be a light on the sky and cry air The slightest sounds cut the night of "Fire! Fire!" This is an assassin, with such distinctness as to attract your | and tomorrow morning there will be a attention. The stamp of a cities lounge about, some asleep and horse in the next street. The slamming some awake, but when the third watch of a saloon door. The hiccough of the drunkard. The shricks of the steam whistle five miles away. Oh, how suggestive, my friends-midnight in town! ANGELS OF THE NIGHT.

There are honest men passing up and down the street. Here is a city missionary who has been carrying a scuttle of coal to that poor family in that dark place. Here is an undertaker going up firstborn. Here is a minister of religion | preparing to blast the gold vault. who has been giving the sacrament to a dying Christian. Here is a physician have gone out in the dwellings. That light in the window is the light of the watcher, for the medicines must be adthe coverlid must be resisted, and the ice must be kept on the hot temples, and the perpetual prayer must go up from hearts soon to be broken. Oh, the midthought-a whole city at rest!

muscles relaxed. Excited nerves soothed. The white hair of the octogenarian in thin drifts across the pillow, fresh fall of flakes on snow already fallen. Childone great wave of refreshing slumber roll over the heart of the great town, submerging care and anxiety and worri-

Let the city sleep; but, my friends, be not deceived. There will be thousands tonight who will not sleep at all. Go up that dark alley and be cautious where you tread lest you fall over the prostrate form of a drunkard lying on his own doorstep. Look about you lest you feel the garroter's hug. Look through the broken window pane and see what you can see. You say, "Nothing." Then listen. What is it? "God help us!" No footlights, but tragedy ghastlier and mightier than Ristori or Edwin Booth everenacted. No light, no fire, no bread, no kope. Shivering in the cold, they have had no food for 24 hours. You say, "Why don't they beg?" They do, but they get nothing. You say, "Why don't they deliver themselves over to the almshouse?" Ah, you would not ask that if you ever heard the bitter cry of a man or a child when told he must go to the almshouse.

THE HONEST POOR. "Oh," you say, "they are the vicious poor, and therefore they do not demand our sympathy." Are they vicious? So much more need they your pity. The Christian poor, God helps them. Through their night there twinkles the round, merry star of hope, and through the broken window pane they see the crystals of heaven, but the vicious poor, they are more to be pitied. Their last light has gone out. You excuse yourself from helping them by saying they are so bad they brought this trouble on themselves. I reply, where I give 10 prayers for the innocent who are suffering I will give 29 prayers for the guilty who are suffering. The fisherman, when he sees a vessel dashing into the breakers, comes out from his hut and wraps the warmest flannels around those who are most chilled and most bruised and most battered in the wreck. And I want you to know that these vicious poor have had two shipwrecks-shipwreck of the body, shipwreck of the soul-shipwreck for time, shipwreck for eternity. Pity, by all means, the innocent who are suffering, but pity more the guilty.

Pass on through the alley. Open the door. "Oh," yeu say, "it is locked." No, it is not locked; it has never been locked. No burglar would, be tempted to go in there to steal anything. The door is never locked. Only a broken chair stands against the door. Shove it back. Go in. Strike a match. Now look. Beastliness and rags. See those glaring eyeballs. Be careful now what you say. Do not utter any insult, do not utter any suspicion, if you value your Utter no scorn. Utter no harsh word. No ray of hope has dawned on that brow for many a that brow. But the light has gone out. Do not strike another light. It would be mockery to kindle another light in such a place as that. Pass out and pass down the street. Our cities of Brooklyn and New York and all our great cities are full of such homes, and tho worst time the midnight.

THE CRIMINAL CLASSES. Do you know it is in the midnight that criminals do their worst work? At half past 8 o'clock you will find them in the drinking saloon, but toward 12 o'clock they go to their garrets, they get out their tools, then they start on the street. Watching on either side for the police, they go to their work of darkness. This is a burglar, and the false key will soon touch the store lock. This is an incendiary, and before morning of the night arrives, their eye keen, their brain cool, their arm strong, their foot fleet to fly or pursue, they are ready. Many of these poor creatures were brought up in that way. They were born in a thieves' garret. Their childish toy was a burglar's dark lantern. The first thing they remember was their mother bandaging the brow of their father, struck by the police club. They bethe steps of a building from which there comes a bitter cry which indicates that they have come to dig the underground the destroying angel has smitten the passage to the cellar of the bank and are in the midnight gambling does its worst work. What though the hours be slipping away and though the wife be night in town! What a stupendous waiting in the cheerless home? Stir up the fire. Bring on more drinks. Put up Weary arm preparing for tomorrow's more stakes. That commercial house toil. Hot brain being cooled off. Rigid | that only a little while ago put out sign of copartnership will this season be wrecked on a gambler's table. There will be many a money till that will spring a leak. The old way of getting a livtaking in a new store of fun and frelic. ing is so slow. The old way of getting God's slumberless eye will look. Let a fortune is so stupid. Come, let us toss up and see who shall have it. And so wretches pitching pennies in a rum grocery up to the millionaire gambler in the stock market.

GAMBLERS OF ALL CLASSES. In the midnight hour pass down the streets of our American cities, and you hear the click of the dice and the sharp, keen tap of the poolroom ticker. At these places merchant princes dismount, and legislators, tired of making laws, take a respite in breaking them. All handkerchiefs. The clerks of the store take a hand after the shutters are put up, and the officers of the court while away their time while the jury is out. In Chestnut street, a young man went into a gambling saloon, lost all his property, then blew his brains out, and before the blood was washed from the floor by the maid the comrades were shufling cards again. You see there is more mer-

A great deal of what is called Christian work goes for nothing for the simple reason it is not practical, as after the battle of Antietam a man got out of an ambulance with a bag of tracts, and he went distributing the tracts, and George Stuart, one of the best Christian men in this country, said to him: "What are you distributing tracts for now? There are 3,000 men bleeding to death. Bind up their wounds, and then distribnte the tracts."

PRACTICAL SENSE NEEDED. We want more common sense in Christian work, taking the bread of this life in one hand, and the bread of the next life in the other hand. No such inapt work as that done by the Christian man who, during the war, went into a hospital with tracts, and coming to the bed of a man whose legs had been amputated, gave him a tract on the sin of dancing! I rejoice before God that never are sympathetic words uttered, never a prayer offered, never a Christian almsgiving indulged in but it is blessed.

There is a place in Switzerland, I have been told, where the utterance of one word will bring back a score of echoes, and I have to tell you this morning that a sympathetic word, a kind word, a generous word, a helpful word uttered in back ten thousand echoes from all the

the day of sickness came. I was summoned to his sickbed. I hastened. It vulsively and said: "Oh, how glad I am my old mother-she sat there." Somebody said, "You can't bring such a dissolute man as that into the church." I said: "You will bring him in the church? He stood by me when he was alive, and I will stand by him when he is dead. Bring him." As I stood in the pulpit and saw them carrying the body up the aisle, I felt as if I could weep tears

On one side of the pulpit sat his little child of 8 years, a sweet, beautiful little girl that I had seen him hug convulsively n his better moments. He put on her all jewels, all diamonds, and gave her all pictures and toys, and then he would go away as if hounded by an evil spirit to his cups and house of shame, a fool to the correction of the stocks. She looked up wonderingly. She knew not what it all meant. She was not old enough to understand the sorrow of an orphan

A TOO COMMON TRAGEDY. On the other side the pulpit sat the men who had ruined him. They were the men who had poured wormwood into the orphan's cup; they were the men who had bound him hand and foot. I knew them. How did they seem to feel? with the idea that pious talk is going to Did they weep? No. Did they say, "What a pily that such a generous man should be destroyed?" No. Did they take raiment, take medicine as well as sigh repentingly over what they had take prayer. There is a great deal of done? No; they sat there, looking as vultures look at the carcass of the lamb whose heart they have ripped out. So telling her how she ought to love God | they sat and looked at the cofiin lid, and I told them the judgment of God upon were as poor and cold as I am, and as those who had destroyed their fellows. hungry, you could think of nothing Did they reform? I was told they were in the places of iniquity that night after my friend was laid in Oakwood cemetery, and they blasphemed, and they drank. Oh, how merciless men are, especially after they have destroyed you! Do not look, to men for comfort or help. Look to God.

But there is a man who will not reform. He says, "I won't reform." Well, then, how many acts are there to a tragedy? I believe five.

A Fireproof Electric Wire. A wire is being introduced which possesses such fire resisting qualities that the most extreme fire tests to which it has been subjected have failed to produce any visible effects upon it. At a recent demonstration several sample boards were prepared, each having arranged upon it samples of various well known electrical wires, one sample upon each board being the new wire. All the samples had the same sized conductor tested in comparison and under the same conditions.

These sample boards represented 16 eading makes of insulated wires, several of them being claimed by their makers to be fireproof. A powerful electric current was then applied and maintained until the conductor was first brought to a red heat, then a white heat and in some cases melted. Under this intense heat every one of the samples except the new wire was entirely destroyed, in several instances setting fire to the board, but in no case did sufficient heat escape through the new wire to discolor who tarry around about the hotels and took me but a very few moments to get the board beneath it.—New York Tele-

The Child Must Be Educated. The legislature was in session and the subject of education was being discussed. One of the solens, having secured the floor, remarked impressively to the speaker: "Sir, you must educate our children." But it instantly flashed across his mind that he was unblessed with "babies" and he recalled himself with, "Sir, you must educate your children." But at this proposition the chairman, who was addressed, began to shake his head and grin. "Sir," continued the perplexed orator amid the roar of the house, "Sir, you—they—we—they must edu-cate their children."—Texas Siftings.
