NOT "GUFF," BUT TRUTH.

In our issue of June 10 we endeavored to demonstrate that we were in an era of patriotic endeavor. Truth is sometimes unpalatable to the best of men because they may be mistaken, and like the idolator they do not like the hand of the iconoclast. They may be worshiping an idea for years, their fathers before them may have worshiped the idea, and it is difficult to say they have been in error all these years. Notwithstanding we made statements in our article which were self-evident to every man who laid himself open to fact and reason a note of disapprobation comes from our esteemed contemporary, the "Progress" and an intelligent but mistaken correspondent of the same. The "Progress" styled what we said as so much "guff." Coupled with the inelegance of the term and the failure on the part of the "Progress" to disprove our propositions we are led to the conclusion that the paper and its correspondent experienced some discomfort over what they evidently suspected might be facts. The "Progress" takes exception to our statement as to the condition of the country before the war-that is to say as far as the plain people of the land were concerned they were more prosperous. The "Progress" says that railroad laborers at that time received but 75 or 80 cents per day and blacksmiths got but 80 cents a set for horseshoes. True. these may have been the wages then but the country was not burdened with an expense of over five hundred millions a year, representing a tax that every man, woman and child must in some way among the poor involving self-denial. Good laborers in the far west get three dollars a day, while they are content here with one dollar and one dollar and fifty cents. Why? Conditions are different. His living is higher there. If the "Progress" takes a trip to the inland towns of Pennsylvania it can find brigades of men who are willing to work at 75 cents per day and cannot get work even at that. And yet every drink of whiskey, plug of tobacco, article of wool, and a hundred other articles he may wish to purchase are taxed out of all proportion to his wages. This is what we arraign the Republican party for. There was either a lack of states manship on the part of their leaders or it was a deliberate attempt on their part to run the government in the interest of the few. Just as Claus Spreckles has succeeded in running the Hawaiian government so did the manufacturers of this country succeed in running the government of the United States and the outcome of it all was the McKinley tariff bill and a free coinage act.

A peculiar feature of the last campaign was, where the Republican orators talked most there the Democratic gains were largest, and it verified what Abraham all the people all the time." This very Kiowa, Oklahoma. same "rank Democratic 'guff'" as the "Progress" calls it, prevailed and is prevailing still; that is, the people became conscious that something was wrong and they set about to correct it, and the natural outcome was the election of Mr. Cleveland. The people were unable to decide differently.

Notwithstanding the election of Mr. Cleveland and a Democratic Congress the people are still concerned about the future of the country. It is a country of any other that ever existed. The intention of it was that the people should be sovereign, and it was also intended that by our virtue and intelligence we should reach the best possible results. There should be equal rights and as few burdens as possible. Our people should enjoy the broadest liberty within the limits of law intended for the peace and good order of society. While we are not ruled by a monarch or kept in subjection by a standing army, certain tyrannies have exercised sway over us to such an extent that the people became impatient for a change, and when the opportunity came took advantage of

This is why the people, especially wellmeaning statesmen, are concerned about to be done away with in a day. It may when it comes. The usual fomenters of require the wisdom of several administrations bent on correcting the evils. It was clearly brought out in the last campaign that the Republican party was a party of aggrandizing tendency and being such the results which now exist strongest in their locality." This state--the rich getting rich and the poor poorer-were bound to come.

IMMIGRANTS AND MARYLAND. The movement in Harford county by leading citizens looking to an occupation of their unoccupied lands by immigrants suggests a new mode for attracting thrifty tillers of the soil to the State. There never has been any systematic effort to inform immigrants as to what they can accomplish in Maryland. They have been told of the vast areas of unoccupied lands in the far west, and the possibilities which are open to them, but have been kept in the dark concerning the hardships they must endure to achieve an independence. There are thousands of opportunities in this State where an immigrant can acquire property and at the same time contribute to the stability and general wealth of the State. A liberal, philanthropic policy adopted by our land holders when once known to those who come to this country to work with the object of building up comfortable homes for themselves and families, will be seized upon as a God-send, as it will take but a little stretch of the imagination to see before them a land of peace and plenty compared to what they have been accustomed to in their own native lands. A convention of all the land-holders of the State who thus wish to dispose of their lands could be called and a broad, philantropic plan adopted, a bureau established and an immigrant could at once be informed of such opportunities as his the murder of her father and step-mother has been attracting such profound attention, was acquitted of the charge on Tuesday afternoon last. The jury was out a little over an hour. While suspicion was strong against Miss Borden the prosecution was unable to prove anything. After the prosecution's argument there seemed to be a moral certainty among the listeners and all who read the argument that Miss Borden was guilty. But with all there was an element of doubt in her favor and doubtless the jury preferred to err on the side of humanity. The prosecution made a strong point against Miss Borden when referring to the note she said her mother had received on the morning of the murder, and which had called her out to see some one who was sick. No one came forward to claim that he or she had written such a note. Miss Borden's acquittal will be received with approbation throughout the country, as, had the case been well proved against her resultare they any better now? At that time ing in conviction, it would have revealed

The Pontifical message with reference to the Catholic attitude on the public directly or indirectly assist in paying; school question in this country which has been anticipated with so much interest by Catholics and non-Catholics appeared in print on Wednesday. Boiled down the substance of the message is to the effect that while it is the desire of the church that all Catholics born in ing coupled with education, cases may occur, as forscen by the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore, in which it is lawful to attend the public schools. The message enjoins that the church should endeayor to multiply Catholic schools and bring them to perfect equipment.

There is a strong party at Dallas, N. C., trying to get rid of their postmaster there. The charge against him is offenthat "he has no regard for his personal appearance, which, in itself, makes it disgusting to the ladies who are compelled neither coat, vest, socks nor shoes at this season of the year."

It would seem from the recent action of the President appointing officers of the United States Army to act as Indian agents that the head of Indian Agent George D. Day has dropped into the official basket, Capt. Hugh Lincoln once said, that "you can fool G. Brown, of the Twelfth Infantry, havthe people sometimes, but you can't fool ing been appointed to his agency, the

A New Indian Policy. The order of the President detailing twenty officers of the army—two majors and eighteen captains-to be Indian agents marks the inauguration of a new policy in the conduct of Indian affairs from which excellent results are to be expected. These appointments comprise the most important agencies. The law under which they are made was the Sherman silver law, nearly $11,000,passed last year. It requires the President to appoint army officers to all Indian agencies except those "where, in the opinion of the President the the peculiar kind; quite different from public service would be better promoted by the appointment of a civilian

The reasons why good results are to be anticipated from the operation of the policy are many; but two or three of them are especially weighty. There are a sufficient number of army officers who have thorough knowledge of the Indian character and of the proper means of influencing and controllin the Indians. They have had long ser vice on the border both in war and i peace, and they understand the Indians much more thoroughly than new civi lian agents can be expected to do.

Army officers are not politicians Under their management the mischiefs to which partisan appointments in the Indian service have often gave rise will be practically eliminated. Army officers have a standard of honor and honesty in the conduct of Government business, and a training in business affairs more strict than those which are common in the class of persons usually selected for Indian agents the future. WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.) WASHINGTON, D. C., June 20,-President Cleveland is deeply interested in the efforts that are being made to ascertain if the carelessness of any person was responsible for the horrible tragedy the church should have religious train- in Ford's old theatre, which killed 21 Record and Pension office of the War Department, although he has wisely refrained from taking any action that might be considered as interfering with the properly-constituted authorities now engaged in that task. Great pressure is being brought to bear on him to suspend or remove Col. Ainsworth, the army officer who is at the head of that office, and upon whom a great many people are disposed to place the blame, sive personality and his ill-wishers aver but Mr. Cleveland's idea of fair play is such that it is not probable that he will take any action until there is more tangible evidence of Col. Ainsworth's guilt than public clamor for making him to call for their own mails. He wears a scapegoat. If he be guilty surely that fact can hardly escape the coroner's jury now investigating and the army court of inquiry which will take the matter up at the close of the inquest.

The improvement in the financial sit uation has been very marked during the last few days, and Treasury officials and others who keep close watch on financial affairs believe that the turn has come in the flow of gold abroad and that the situation will continue to improve. It is certain that the gold in the Treasury is again increasing at a gratifying rate and that there is at present no demand for gold for shipment abroad. Secretary Morton expresses the opinion that from now on our cereals will take the place of the gold which we have been shipping to Europe, and the fact that the large amount of gold which the Rothschilds contracted to furnish Austria has all been delivered is also thought to have been a factor in causing a cessation in the European demand for gold. The government has lost in actual cash, according to Secretary Carlisle's figures, in carrying out the provisions of 000, representing the difference between the amount paid for the silver now stored in the Treasury vaults and its present selling price. If it really had to be sold at once the loss would probably be much greater because of the further depreciation in price that would follow such a large quantity of silver on the market. Among the consular appointments made this week was that of Bennington R. Bedle, of New Jersey, to be consul at Sheffield, England, in place of Benjamin Folsom, resigned. Mr. Folsom, who has held the position since his appointment early in the first Cleveland administration, is a cousin of Mrs. Cleveland's and as "Cousin Ben," he figured in al the Republican papers as proof that President Cleveland was not in earnest when he declared himself opposed to nepolism. Wonder what those same fellows will say now that Mr. Folsom has voluntarily resigned? The chances are that they will ignore it entirely and say nothing. Secretary Carlisle has, in one respect a long lead of all the other heads of departments. Since taking charge of the Treasury he has replaced more than 200 Republican officials, outside the classified service, with good Democrats.

MR. GORMAN AND THE PRESIDENT. The Relations Between Them Not of

Strained Character. For fully a twelvemonth past a certain class of newspapers, in this State especially, have persistently striven to members of the Democratic party who of President Cleveland and Senator Arthur P. Gorman.

It has not occurred to those owlish ediors that these two great men and great Democrats have made a common cause of their personal interests for the sake of Democratic success and Democratic make little difference. Even the Ni seemed impossible for a thorough undertanding to exist between these two statesmen and as a consequence they have striven to produce and foment a feeling of factionalism and by crying Under which King Benzoni" to array in serried ranks two grand divisions of

It is time that this tomfoolery stopped. There is no quarrel between the President of the United States and the senior Senator from Maryland. There can be and will be no contention between the head of the Democratic party in the White House and the leader of its host in the Senate of the United States. There never was any ground for misunderstanding between them and their personal relations have never been but of the most cordial character.

the Democracy.

The charge that Mr. Gorman was engaged in a "conspiracy" to defeat the nomination of Mr. Cleveland a year ago at Chicago is an absurd lie. American politics do not resemble Shakespearean plays. Senators of the United States do not conspire in real life as do senators of Rome upon the mimic stage. There were no midnight meetings at Chicago where Gorman, as Cassius, sought to induce Hill to play the part of Brutus and withdraw his delegates from the convention. Mr. Cleveland had not Cæsar's ambition and he was not guilty of Casar hypocrisy in pretending to put aside the

The only meeting of any kind that occurred among men having power to 'conspire" and render "conspiracy" effectual, occurred a little over one year ago, in the city of New York, when at Mr. Cleveland's own invitation in the city of New York, Senators Gorman and Brice, Senator-elect Vilas, Col. Daniel amont, Hon. Don M. Dickinson, Wil iam C. Whitney and one other gentlemen, who desired that his name do not appear, came together in Mr. Cleveland's own home and discussed his probable nomination. What happened there is described in a letter from one of th gentlemen then present, now in the posession of the Times.

Mr. Cleveland was very frank with the gentlemen, and stated that he desirmembers were entertained at luncheon ed to know first of all whether it was their opinion that the Democratic party wished to have him become its standard bearer again. If that was the wish he would cheerfully accede. He also wanted to known whether the disaffection, which had cropped out in certain quarters, indicated any serious opposi tion. If that were the case, he would not be a candidate. The situation was gone over very thoroughly. The conference, which was protracted until a late hour, and was in fact renewed the and injured sixty odd clerks in the next day, resulted in the determination Messrs. Dickins on, Vilas, Brice and the gentleman referred to above agreed formally that they would at once begin the canvass for the nomination of Grover Cleveland; that they would take him into the convention; that they would make an earnest, honest effort, before and during the convention, to secure his nomination, and that if they saw in the the convention, or before, that his candi dacy would not be successful or could only be consummated after a struggle which would leave wounds hard to heal then they would withdraw him.

It was also agreed in case Mr. Cleve land must be withdrawn that then his old friends were to unite in securing the nomination of Senator Gorman. Mr. Gorman was to go to Chicago as much a free lance as possible, and if the opposi-tion to Mr. Cleveland offered to crystalize around him, it was Mr. Cleveland's express desire that he allow it to do so. Mr. Gorman, however, agreed not to make any personal canvass for nomination and not to enter into any combination to defeat Mr. Cleveland. The object of his preserving this attitude was to allow a fair test of Mr. Cleveland's strength to be made. Mr. Cleveland himself saying that unless the sentiment was overwhelmingly in his favor, it would be folly for him to accept the nomination.

This understanding was carried out by Mr. Gorman to the letter and his attitude at Chicago was consistent with it all through. The fact that some delegates from his own State voted for him in convention was a matter with which he had nothing to do. They were mere drops in the bucket compared with those he could have controlled had he desired to do so.

Since Mr. Cleveland's nomination nothing has occurred to interrupt the cordiality of the understanding between Senator Gorman and himself. Mr. Gornan does not agree with Mr. Cleveland upon the question of distributing the patronage of the government. He is a practical politician and naturally wants o take care of the boys in the trenches. But not one word of hostility to the administration has escaped him and none will. He is asking no favors. What he does ask is due him, and if there are any fools so blind as to suppose he will not get what he desires. then they should be examined as to their without delay .- Cumberland
