A Great Mistake.

A recent discovery is that headache dizziness, duliness, confusion of the mind et:, are due to derangement of the nerve centers which supply the brain with nerve force; that indigestion, dyspepsia, neuralgia, wind in stomach, etc., arise from the derangement of the nerve centers supplying these or ment of the nerve centers supplying these organs with nerve fluid or force. This is likewise true of many diseases of the heart and lungs. The nerve system is like a telegraph system, as will be seen by the accompanying cut. The little white flues are the nerves which convey the nerve force from the nerves to torve centers to every part of the body, just as the electric current is conveyed along the telegraph wires to every station, large or small. Ordinary physicians fall to regard this fact; instead of treathey treat the part affected. Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B., tho specialist and specialist and student of nervous diseases, and author of many noted treatises on the latter subject, long since realized the truth of the first statement, and his Restorative Nervine is prepared on that principle. Its success in caring all diseases arising from derangement of the nervous system is wonderful, as the thousands of unsolicited testimonicis in possession of the company manufacturing the remedy amply prove.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is a reliable temedy for all nervous diseases, such as headache, nervous debility, prostration, sleeplessness, dizziness hysteria, sexual debility, St. Vitus dance, deplepsy, etc. It is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or seat direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co, Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per lottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid.

Restorative Norvine positively contains no opiates or dangerous drugs.

THE TICKET SELLER'S "RAKE OFF."

How Forgetful or Careless People Often Lose Considerable Money. There seems to be considerable favoritism shown in the admissions department. As every one knows, the small salary of $75 a month is not what the average ticket seller is after. It is the "rake off." The "rake off" consists in the change which patrons forget to pick up from the window when they purchase tickets. Sometimes this "rake off" is enormous. One young man who handles tickets at Sixty-fourth street at the beginning of the month deposited (200 in a local bank. That was his "rake off" for the month of June. It is calculated that the "rake off" in some of the offices at Fifty-seventh street, Sixty-first street and Sixty-fourth street averages $10 a day. Ticket sellers at these places have been known to make as much as $35 in one This is where the favoritism comes in There are 10 men at least who have held down positions at the gates mentioned ever since the fair opened. The other poor fellows have been changed about, stationed here, driven there, and used as if they were so many soldiers, without a chance of renonstrance or complaint. They see their luckier companions getting rich off the visitors, while they have to get along on their $75 a month.

One of the favorites has been complained of time and again for not returning change, but he still retains his place. His method is that of bluffing. If a person buys a ticket and forgets his change, it matters not that he rushes back and asks for it. He gets laughed at for his pains, and his attention is called to the notice, "Count your change, as no errors will be corrected after you leave the office."

"Are you not afraid of being caught?" was asked of a ticket man. "No," he replied. "In the first place, no one man in a hundred comes back to claim his change. He reasons that the ticket seller would swear be never got it, and so comforts himself with the reflection that he has paid so much for his experience and will take care not to do it again. If he should return, the ticket seller would simply bluff him eff. One man's word is as good as another's, and even at the worst all the ticket man has to say is that he paid it out to some one else. Some of the ticket men clear $300 a routh cool. That's why none of them like to be promoted to inspectors. The inspector gets only $75 a month and gets no chance of a 'rake off.' When I was at the Minneapolis fair, I cleared $2,5.0 in 'rake off.' "Is there any way of preventing such wholesale robbery of the people?" "None whatever. The visitor is warned to count his change. If he does not, it is his own fault. It is impossible to prove hat the ticket man got it."—Chicago Mail

When Buying the Winter's Coal Supply. Coal is a mineralized vegetable, of which there are many varieties. The two kinds most in use are anthracite and bituminous. The anthracite is the most thoroughly mineralized of all the varieties and burns without flame. Good anthracite will contain upward of 99 per cent of carbon. It will be hard, brittle, black and lustrous. Coal that has a brownish, dull look, and that will scale off, will be unsatisfactory-not burning well nor giving the proper amount of heat. This is what is termed slaty coal. There is great waste because of the large proportion which is not combustible, and it is unwise to buy at any price this kind of coal for household purposes. The anthra-cite coals are known by the ashes as white ash or red ash coal. The red ash burns more freely than the other, leaving but few cinders. If the chimneys do not have a good draft, the red ash is desirable, or white and red may be mixed, as one would mix soft and hard wood. The red ash is always the more expensive.

If the furnace has a good draft, get large coal, but if the draft is poor use a finer coal, or some fine with the regular furnace coal, The coal for the cook stove should be rather fine. Grates and heating stoves will take coal of larger size, but as it is not always convenient to get these sizes consider the cooking range before the other stoves or the grates. Soft coal breaks so easily that the size in which it is delivered to the house keeper does not make so much difference. Still it should not be in such large pieces that it will be necessary to break them.— Maria Parlon in Ludies' Home Journal.

The Business of Housekeeping, A fine and profitable business for women. pursued as a profession, is that of house-keeping. Every woman thinks herself fitted to "keep house," but in cober truth those who are really fitted for it—that is, those who are thoroughly educated in its requirements so that they would have a right to practice it as they would any other trade or prefession and receive money for it-are by no means many. Yet if the women who have peculiarly strong domestic inclinations would recognize that the trend of their talent is toward housekeeping and then prepare themselves scriously from the first step to the last there would be a sensible addition made to the comfort of the world and a new opening established through which many women, instead of

now and then one, could earn their liveli-As it is now, when there seems to be noth ing else that a woman can do, and she has not a home into which she can take board ers for its support, she advertises herself as a housekeeper for a gentleman's family, widower preferred. If she had learned her business, as she would have that of dressmaking, or typewriting, or school teaching, or surgery, or anything clse, in short, she would never have to make that humiliating postscript of "widower preferred." In that case the widower would not be preferred. Every facility for supply | She would go into a house where there was a wife who wished and wearied for her and ing orders in any quantity to would pursue her duties under no offensive suspicion of an intention ultimately to marry the widower. It would make small difference to her if her employer were man or woman, although she might perhaps slightly prefer the woman for the sake of the sympathy which one woman has for another, but she would go on with her tasks, her plans, her oversight occupied with the house and keeping it in order, with the children and their clothes and their health, with the table, the servand their hearth, with the table, the serv-ants, the linen, with the whole round of the year's work which keeps house and home in running order, and would pay no more heed to the personality of the man of the house, as an individual pleasant or unpleasant to her, than if she were an automaton that had been wound up to go through its motions at his service.—Harper's Bazar.

Preventing a Wife's Exercise. In the Lymington church register of 173; it is recorded that "Samuel Baldwin, Esq., sojourner in this parish, was immersed without the Needles, sans ceremonie, May 60." It appears that Samuel and his wife were always quarreling, and during one of their wranglings the lady said she would one day dance on his grave. Hence the "immersion," which was a sure way to prevent this. In another like case the threatened "dancing" on the grave was prevented by laying the defunct husband to rest under a monument constructed in a pyramidal shape, the sharp apex of which afforded no footheld for the saltatory exercise .-- London Tit-Bits.

If there is a streak of rank vulgarity in our society, it is glaringly shown by the display of the money cost of things. The steam engines of the world represent he work of 1,000,000,000 men, or more than louble the working population of the earth Hepparchion, 100 years B. A hangman struggling with his con-science and financial embarrassment is a pectacle touching enough to rouse the sym pathy of the most callous occupant of the condemned cell. Mr. Berry, after discharg ing for some time, with credit to himself and satisfaction to his patients, the duties of public executioner, suddenly resigned to become a lecturer against capital punishment and the author of a treatise on the same subject. In neither capacity has finan cial success attended his efforts, and he ha now written to the undersheriffs of Lon don and the provinces, carnestly pleading for a share in any executions of which they have the patronage, "I always held," he says, "good and trusted positions before I was hangman.

Now the public are afraid to engage me such is the stigma on the person who holds such an office. My wife has completely broken down in health with worry and trouble of the affair. My daughter, 11 years of age, I have had to bring away from the Sevenoaks hospital in Kent, owing to my embarrassment and financia difficulty. I am now ruined. My home was a happy one before, but now nothing looks bright

Under such circumstances he asks the sheriffs to give him a "fresh start," and should they honor him with a share of their hanging he assures them that "every move" will be kept strictly private, and they wil never see his name mentioned afterward The case is a sad one. If Mr. Berry could dismiss his financial embarrassments with the "long drop," he might still be a happy man, but apparently he finds them more difficult to dispose of than condemned originals.—London Telegraph, The Pitfalls of "Remedies." "It would be amusing," remarked a phy sician lately, "if it were not so often dis estrous, to watch the pellmell fashion in which persons go at remedies and suposedly beneficial health suggestions They go to the springs, and because some mineral spring water is advised in some case they jump at the conclusion that all spring waters are good for any case. They drink them wholesale and indiscriminatey often with serious Ill effects. Exactly the same thing is true of sea bathing. This is a needed tonic and stimulant to some persons and the direct reverse to others. have seen delicate women come out of the surf with teeth chattering and faces blue and pinched in the chill they have received That effect of their plunge is a distinct evil, and they really need a remedy to recover from the consequences of one so called. "Reckless and unneeded use of a good thing makes it a bad thing. I am trying now to recover the vitality of a little chile of 4 years which has been lost through his nother's ignorant treatment. She has al most bathed her child to death. This is especially true of the preent time when every separate individual may advance a new notion, and because i is new get a hearing and perhaps a follow-ing. It would be a grand thing for the race if the therapoutleal world could develop a solution of common sense and have it ladled out every morning like Mrs. Squeers' treacle to about two-thirds of the civilized race,"

Where the Russet Is Unknown. Quite a swell young Detroiter who had made a trip into the remote sections of the south was telling his experience. "At one place in the country," he said, 'I came into a small town in a back a dozer miles from the railroad over a clay road that was as slick as soap, a big rain having soaked it thoroughly. I appeared on the hotel porch some time after my arrival in a fresh suit and a pair of bright russet shoes and sat down to enjoy a rest after my ride. Pretty soon a couple of barefooted boys came by, and I attracted their attention. "'Hi there, Billie,' said one, 'git on to he man in the store clo's.' "'An look at them feet,' suggested Billie, not at all abashed by the fact that I was hearing all their talk. "'I say,' exclaimed the first one, getting round where he could see better. 'Golly, but they need blackening, don't they?' "They made a few more comments, but their curiosity was not satisfied, and finally Billie came up on the porch where I was. "Say, mister," he inquired, looking at my shoes and then out at the yellow clay road, 'did you walk up from the railroad?'.
