PROTECTION NOT PRINCIPLE. Our neighbor, The Progress, is given to making assertions which do not strike the average Democratic reader as being true. We would remind The Progress that if it wishes to win the there is no other way to do it) it must maul the people over the head with the hammer of truth and reason, and truth being irresistable, The Progress will have accomplished its mission. But it must be truth, pure and simple. To state that the reason"the farmer is not worrying about a reduction of the tariff is because a reduction of the tariff would not benefit him; that "the farmers are very well satisfied with the McKinley bill" and that "the farmers did not elect Mr. Cleveland," is about as far removed from what everybody supposed to be true as black is from white. It is estimated that fully one hundred Republican farmers in Howard county wheeled about and voted for Mr. Cleveland, disgusted with McKinleyism and the insingenerally. The returns show the same ratio of change throughout the country.

No, brother, the farmers were moved by one common impulse. They have not gone before the committee of Ways and Means but have advocated their cause at the ballot box.

When we spoke of the period prior to McKinleyism we supposed our contemporary would understand it was the Democratic period—when men actually and honestly throve; when farmers had bank accounts, and villages in agricultural districts throve solidly and not surreptitiously as villages thrive today -in the proportion that they have privilege to tax the people for their benefit through tariff taxes, bounties, subsidies and the like.

These truths have become almost trite sayings and Mr. McKinley in his gubernatorial campaign in Ohio this fail may howl himself hourse endeavoring to awaken into life the comatose and almost inanimate form of Protection but it will not rouse. The people have hit it a blow which knocked it out of time Another blow will send it to Davy Jones' locker. The people understand the question too well to think otherwise. As sovereigns we the people must settle these questions. The plain people of the land from sheer force of circum-. stances were compelled to inquire into the merits of the political discussion which has been going since Mr. Cieveland was elected the first time and having weighed the Republican party in a

Start the whoels whir-Progress the heretical political doctrine ring again. Choke off the yawping. Get he holds has led him to give utterance to some of the rankest absurdities. For instance: "In fact the McKinley law is so good that the Democratic Congress is afraid to change it!" Hercules once cleaned out the Augean stables but we are afraid if that heroic god were here between March 1, 1861, and October 2, to look over the specifications of the job Mr. Cleveland has on hand, with the Republican party, some of them large offer of a majority of stock in some pro- bills that greatly affected the cour e of tected monopoly as compensation he reason, what they propose to do they want to do wisely and patriotically. They do not propose as a party to be handicapped by the demands of any increst whether it be silver, sugar, pigmetal or pearl buttons. Protection is wrong in principle and high tariffs have ever been deemed a tax to be used only for the purpose of raising revenue when all other methods of taxation became exhausted. Up to war times in this country when high tariffs became a necessity the statesmen who controlled protection had any correct principle in and high tariffs have been carefully our government. Manufacturing has had ncidental protection even from a Demoeratic tariff simply as one man may enjoy incidental protection from another.

If the principle of protection were corect then every interest would have a right to come forward and claim the advantages of it. If correct the Sherman silver bill ought not to be repealed. If correct the wheat growing interest has | manhood, incorruptible honesty, untiring the same right to be protected as the sugar raising interest (now enjoying a bounty.) The truth is plain then that Protection as a feature of economic policy cannot be successfully adapted to a government such as ours. If we desire to have a peaceful, stable government it must be under a policy the people thoroughly understand, and not a hightension, jingo policy.

The terrible slaughter of people in Baltimore since rapid transit was inaugurated is bringing forth a burst of indignation at the companies for not making a more decided move in the direction of safety for the people. There is known to be an efficient fender in use elsewhere yet the carnage goes monotously on with the sickening details rehearsed week after week. The danger all hours of the day is running full of intoxicated men, imbeciles and thoughtless children, any one of whom is liable

Mr. Gorman's words sounded strongly patriotic when compared with the garrulous phillipies indulged by the leaders of the anti-repeal party, and we have no doubt that the country will note the difference. In the debate Mr. Gorman was called upon to defend the President. All indications point to the fact that the country is about ready to call down a number of Democracy over to Republicanism (and Senators conspicuous as having interfered with legislation in favor of honest money at a time when something is needed to be done.

It would seem nowadays whom the have discharged the duties of their respective gods wish to destroy they first give them an ugly, garrulous disposition. Senator Stewart the other day in his speech or, rather, speeches against the repeal of the Sherman law vied with the sand-lots of San Francisco in his abuse of Mr. Cleveland. As a consequence it is stated that than all other influences combined. A number of his coadjutors are utterly disgusted with his ill-timed utterances.

Mayor Latrobe, of Baltimore, seems to be as indispensable to the city as the cere promises of the Republican party fire department. He has been re-nominated the seventh time by the regular Democracy. The Mayor is a heavy weight, possibly intellectually as well as physically, as he is always able to furnish the necessary ballast in trying times. In the meantime the News will go into winter quarters.

Pay Your Little Bills. A most effective way to relieve financial stringency is to keep money in circulation by the payment of "little bills." To "pay as you go" is always best, but some persons are occasionally compelled by circumstances to ask for credit. It is wise to pay bills at short intervals for nany reasons. The creditor may have great number of small bills outstanding and may be seriously embarrassed by their non-payment. The longer a bill remains unpaid the harder it is to pay. lo the man in receipt of an income which is no more than his necessary expenses require it may be easy to pay a small bill, but if he allows it to go unpaid other bills may be added to it and the ag gregate will be a serious burden. the latter is thereby unable to pay the debt he owes to C, and so on. By prompt payments a small sum of money can be made to cancel a large sum of indebtedness. A ten dollar-bill, by passing from hand to hand, probably often pays debts amounting to a hundred dollars a week. The most frequent excuse heard for the non-payment of bills by persons who are asked to make payment is that they can collect no money. In most instances this excuse is probably an honest one, and a little reflection will convince any man of the wisdom of thus keeping

Gus Williams' new comedy, "April Foel," was given its first presentation before a audience which was both large and enthusia tic, heartily enjoying the quaint humor of the popular German comedian and warmly applanding the many novelties which were introduced by him and the supporting company. The story revolves around a young girl's tricks in trying to evade a marriage with a man sha dags not layer. tricks in trying to evade a marriage with a man she does not love. The scenes take place on and before the first of April. The usual jokes connected with that date naturally furnish abundant material for fun. Of course, merry-making predominates, but it is of a refined order, neither overdrawn nor untimely. Mr. Williams' ability is too well known to say that his character is taken in a pleasing manner. In his line he stands in the first rank, and his talent is given full scope in "April Fool." Miss Fannie Midgley gives able support to the "star."
