About Woman Was a woman ever known to blow out the gas, says an exchange, or to be buncoed by a man who wanted to borrow money to pay a freight bill? Does she ever get her pockets picked or lose money on a little "game?" If she has a roll of money with her, does she ever flash it out when she wants to buy a cake of chewing gum? Isn't it a fact that she is wiser with money when she is trave!ing than the men, and more to be trusted? Instead of a woman having a man along o protect her, the daily papers prove that every man who goes away from home should have a woman to act as a guardian and keep him from making a bigger fool of himself than he naturally is. Fitzralph's Irish Testament. The first British translation of the New Testament was not into the English language, as many have imagined, says the St. Louis Republic. The person
