A CRUSHER TO THE SUN.

Allusion has already been made i THE TIMES to the letter recently written by Senator Voorhees to an Indiana friend Its crushing effect upon the Baltimor Sun and a number of other journals and individuals hostilė to the Democratic party has also been noted. Some of its passages however are still worthy of

It will be remembered that Mr Voorhees was chairman of the Senate finance committee, to which the tariff bill was referred, and he reported the measure to the Senate. The Sun, The News, and the other organs of misrepresentation continually eulogized Mr-Voorhees and Senators presumed to be in line with him, but denounced and abused Senator Gorman and all Democrats who were said to desire amendments to the bill. The cry of these papers was: "Pass the Wilson bill without amendment." This cry was, they maintained, the shibboleth of Democracy, for it measured the standard of Mr Voorhees, Mr. Cleveland and certain gentlemen whom it was sought to repre-Democrats quite different from far above those veterans of many Gorman, Brice, Hill, and a number of Southern Senators also the objects of incontinent denunciation.

llere is what Senator Voorhees says in his letter: "Much is being said and written now in absolute ignorance of what the Senate bill as well as the Wilson bill actually contains. The lowknown in this country since the Walker tariff of 1846 and its subsequent Democratic amendments in 1857 is the rate now provided for and contained in the bill I had the honor to report to the Senate. The imperious demand that the Senate shall pass the Wilson bill without amendment is a buriesque on common sense. There is not an intelligent man in the United States, with information on the subject, who has for a moment thought the Wilson bill was to pass the Senate without amendment. Its own authors and supporters have never expected anything of the kind. Rather than knowingly and consciously secure the passage of a bill which aimed to provide revenue for the government, but in reality provided for a deficiency and a consequent increase of our interest-bearing bonded debt, I would gladly leave my seat here in the Senate and hide myself forever as far as possible from public disgrace. After all, however, both the bills are alike merely tentative and experimental. They will have to go together to the joint conference committee of the two houses; neither of them in terms will become the law."

But this is not the half. The Sun's misfortunes do not come singly, for it now transpires that President Cleveland himself desired changes in the Wilson bill, and along the line contended for by Senator Hill, whose onslaught was against the income tax feature.

The Sun is now placed in one of two very humiliating positions. It is either convicted of arguing upon premises it knew to be false, or exposed as making flippant criticisms upon the basis of insufficient information. If the first be true, The Sun is branded as a wilful and malicious detractor, governed only by a desire to injure individuals. The alternative assumption is the more charitable, and yet it does not make The Sun's position before the public any more enviable than that of inexcusable ignorance-inexcusable because we have never denied that The Sun has wealth and consequent ability to command talent and every facility for avoiding the devious paths of error into which many unbridled journalistic and other asses

According to the point of view, The Sun's squirming last week, to extricate itself from the ruins under which Senator Voorhees' letter pinned it, was either ridiculous or pitiful. Motives of humanity might have induced President Cleveland, or some one of the administration forces, to have taken sufficient notice of the little Maryland court flatterer to call it off before it made a fool of itself. But maybe fulsome flattery is not, after all, the avenue to royal favor under the present regime. In this connection Senator Gorman's commanding position at Washington might be taken as an management of The Sun, this task object lesson illustrating what selfrespecting and fearless dignity can

Senator Voorhees' letter contains passages other than those quoted which afford food for thought. For instance he says: "There are several features in he says: "There are several features in the bill now pending in the Senate which I did not desire to have in it, but because I was overruled on those points I did not therefore feel at liberty to join the Republican members of the committee, report no bill at all, defeat all proposed legislation and thereby leave the McKinley law to remain on our statute.

Had he been disposed to follow some examples he might have "fallen acursing like a drab," alienated elements susceptible of control, and done the cause of tariff reform incalculable injury. JOHN O. ROGERS,

MR. ABELL'S DEATH. The death of Mr. George W. Abell, of the Baltimore Sun, is to be regretted for many reasons. As a man Mr. Abell was kindly, courteous, generous and unassuming. As a newspaper publisher, he spared neither pains nor expense to make The Sun conform to the highest journalistic standard. As a factor in public concerns his methods and motives were honorable. He was but human and therefore fallible, but of him it is true that such errors as may have been his were preeminently of the head rather than of the heart. Death has been active in removing the stock of that sturdy, fearless and honest pioneer of journalism, Arunah S. Abell, and now there is but one of the four sons remaining, Mr. Edwin F. Abell. He has not been actively connected with the having rested upon his recently deceased IN ELLICOTT CITY, BALTIMORE Payment. brother's shoulders.
