SEPTEMBER COURT

FRIDAY.

A number of criminal cases were disposed of in the Circuit Court Friday of last week, among them being that of the state vs. Hammond Grimes, a well known farmer of the Third district, for the larceny of two hogs from Jesse Ayers, also of that district. A verdict of not guilty was rendered. Charles Hart, colored, was found guilty of the larceny of a cow and sentenced to a term of four years in the penitentiary.

Mr. Thomas L. Berry, expert accountant of Baltimore, who has been before the grand jury for several days explaining the results of his inspection of the accounts of the Howard County School Commissioners' office, was finally discharged. Complaint was made to the court in the morning that Mr. Berry had the day previous refused to answer some of the questions propounded by members of the grand jury. Mr. Berry, however, stated to Judge Jones that he had no desire to evade any proper interrogatories, and thus the matter ended.

SATURDAY.

Ex-Treasurer J. E. Hill of the Howard County School Board was cited before the court this morning to show cause why he should not answer certain questions propounded by the Grand Jury yesterday. Mr. Hill explained that the day previous he had been so ill that it was necessary to telegraph for his physician, Dr. R. B. Warfield, who arrived in the morning from the Blue Mountain House, and who had advised him to keep in his room.

Contrary to this advice Mr. Hill, not desiring to delay the Court of Jury, had gone before the latter, but with his faculties so clouded that he was in doubt as to the purport of certain questions. Hence he had declined to answer these.

To-day, however, he was ready to answer, but persisted in declining to surrender the stubs of the checkbook used by him as treasurer until the legal propriety of the demand had been settled before the court. Judge Jones replied that Mr. Hill was entitled to a hearing upon any legal rights he might wish to establish before the court, but the hearing could not take place today. The Grand Jury had before it besides Mr. Hill a number of witnesses, including Dr. Luke M. Shipley, present examiner, and John F. McMullen, cashier of the Patapsco National Bank of Ellicott City.

Abraham Douglass, colored, pleaded guilty on the charge of stealing two watches from Alfred Swoles, also colored, and was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. C. B. Ray was acquitted by a jury. He had been charged with assault with intent to kill, but the State abandoned that count in the indictment and the trial was for simple assault.

Owing to the indisposition of Judge Jones caused by the excessive heat, the court was adjourned until Wednesday, the grand jury until Thursday. In the meantime a committee of five appointed by the grand jury continued the work of investigating the affairs of the school board.

MONDAY.

Dr. J. W. Hebb, a member of the county school board, was arrested under a bench warrant Monday morning on an indictment found by the grand jury on Saturday last charging him with demanding and receiving from the school board $600 for the vaccination of school children. After two weeks the grand jury has succeeded in finding this indictment. The doctor immediately gave bail in the sum of $1,500 before Clerk John H. Owings, and was very indignant over his arrest. Said the work was done by order of the Board, passed and approved in a regular manner.

WEDNESDAY.

The preliminary fighting in the Howard county school board case began before the Howard county Circuit court Wednesday afternoon. Chief Judge Roberts was on the bench, Judge Jones being confined by illness to his home at Elkridge. The question before the court was the right of the grand jury to compel Ex-Treasurer J. E. Hill to hand over for the inspection of the jury the stubs of the check book used by Mr. Hill while incumbent of office. These the ex-treasurer had refused to surrender. Mr. Hill was in court with his counsel Hon. Edwin Warfield, president of the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland, and Mr. Edgar H. Gans, of the Baltimore bar. Mr. Warfield opened the argument and spoke from two o'clock until the adjournment of court shortly after three. In opening he made a full statement of all the facts in the case. Mr. Hill, he said, had been summoned in the early stages of the investigation as a witness before the grand jury. He had attended from day to day but had, as he confessed, in an unguarded moment and while in a state of irresponsibility absented himself from the jurisdiction of the court and jury. Mr. Warfield had found him in Baltimore in a sick bed, where his indiscretion had placed him and in the care of a physician. So soon as he was able to leave his bed Mr. Hill had returned to Howard county, and with the assistance of Mr. Warfield and an expert accountant had completed the writing up of his books for the completion of which the law had given him until the first of October. The work was hastily done but at the grand jury's behest Mr. Hill had turned over all the books and records of his office to the inspection of which the grand jury had any right. "There are some individual rights," said he, "which even courts and grand juries are bound to respect."

Mr. Warfield then produced Mr. Hill's cash book and his bundle of vouchers for the year ending July 31, 1894. "These," he said," are the basis of the accounts of the school board for the past year. These demonstrate to any man who can read whether or not there has been any defalcation. If you question any of these vouchers, then summon the parties whom it is alleged have been paid and let them testify as to whether or not they have received their money. The stubs are but private memoranda and have nothing to do with any part of the business transactions in question. Many men do not keep stubs. Some of these stubs or memoranda may relate to private transactions on the part of Mr. Hill not within the scope of the present inquiry, for we do not deny that he made for convenience deposits of private moneys with public funds of which he was the custodian. No order of the board and no warrant of law directed how he should keep his account. The only requirement upon him was that he should expend public money as directed, duly account for all moneys received and turn over such money, books and papers to his successor. This Mr. Hill has done, save so far as the grand jury has deprived him of the books and records in his custody, and the school board has accepted and ratified his accounts. What more can be demanded of him. What does the grand jury want?"

Mr. Warfield concluded his remarks by taking up the subpoena duces tecum served on Mr. Hill, calling attention to its requirements and arguing that every requirement of the writ had been complied with and that there was nothing more Mr. Hill could be expected to produce. He made some strictures upon the long time the grand jury had been in session and the great burden of taxation that would in consequence be placed upon the county to meet court expenses, when Judge Roberts interposed that it was not within the bounds of the matter at issue to question in that respect the grand jury's action.

Mr. Warfield had a large assemblage of interested auditors who had been drawn to court by the knowledge that the school board case was coming up.

Thomas Porter, colored, was acquitted of the charge of a criminal assault on a colored woman named Eliza Godman. Harry Green, colored, was convicted of assaulting Perry Jackson, also colored, with intent to kill. Sentence was reserved.

The contested will case of Berger vs. Quinn, removed from Baltimore city, was further removed to Carroll county for trial.

THURSDAY.

A large crowd gathered in the Court room Thursday morning to hear the concluding argument in the Howard County School Board case, which began Wednesday afternoon by Mr. Edwin Warfield, in behalf of ex-Treasurer J. E. Hill. Mr. Edgar H. Gans, also for Mr. Hill, was the first to address the court. He began by reading at length from a decision by Justice King, in the Court of Quarter Sessions, Philadelphia, in support of argument that a grand jury cannot obtain evidence from a party against whom a criminal prosecution is sought to be instituted when the evidence in the hands of the jury is incomplete. He also argued that from a party accused neither public nor private papers could be adduced, yet the check-book stubs held by Mr. Hill were simply private memoranda, kept at the discretion of the treasurer, and not required by law.

"Usually," said Mr. Gans, "witnesses go before the grand jury, but I never heard before of the accused himself being dragged in to testify against himself." Numerous other authorities were quoted by him in support of his argument in the case.

State's Attorney McGuire, on the part of the grand jury, contended that the checks were part of the official records of the office. They were signed "J. E. Hill, treasurer," and had the corporate name of the school commissioners printed upon them. He alluded to Mr. Warfield's strictures yesterday upon the action of the grand jury, and was beginning to reply at length to Mr. Warfield, when Judge Roberts interposed that no discussion of the grand jury was in order. Mr. McGuire explained that it was in defense of the grand jury, but yielded to the court's admonition.

Judge Roberts, in rendering his decision, admitted that no law compelled the treasurer to keep his money in bank; but, as the treasurer had himself adopted this plan, his checks and stubs became at once the property of the office, and that the rightful custodian of the same was Mr. Hill's successor in office. He decided, therefore, that Mr. Hill must go immediately before the grand jury and answer the questions they had put, and surrender any checks or stubs in his possession. Mr. Hill was again before the grand jury this afternoon, but the result of further inspection is not known. The grand jury resumed this work again Friday. The court discharged the petit jurors until Monday next.

Harry Green, colored, convicted at the present term of court of assault with attempt to kill, was today sentenced by Judge Roberts to two years in the penitentiary.

A FINE BUILDING.

The Fidelity and Deposit Company Occupies New and Splendid Quarters.

The Fidelity and Deposit Company, of Baltimore which less than five years ago started business in one room on the second floor of a building on North Calvert Street, Monday last opened the doors of its large office in its own building, at the corner of Charles and Lexington streets.

All the mechanics and artisans have not yet vacated the Fidelity's new home, but those still there are simply engaged in putting the finishing touches to a marvelously beautiful office abode, the decorations of which are Mycenian marble, bronze and mahogany. In the rear of the office is a bronze covered safe deposit vault, equipped with the latest devices in the way of safe deposit boxes. The floor is mosaic, and each of the offices are separated from the main corridor by heavy plate glass partitions. Clustered columns of Mycenian marble, with bands of gold bronze in the the centre, and capped with the same material add very much to the effect.

The banking department is encircled by a Mycenian marble base, with a counter of red Numidian marble surmounted by bronze frame work and heavy plate-glass partitions. The work will be entirely completed by next Monday, at which time the public will be invited to inspect the entire building between the hours of 2 and 10 P. M. It should be gratifying to the people of Howard county that the head of this institution is a native of Howard county. Hon. Edwin Warfield its president was the originater of the company and its great success has been largely due to his energy and progressive administration.

A SUCCESSFUL TOURNEY.

The Knights who Carried off the Honors—Interesting Sport.

Over a thousand persons assembled Saturday in the grove of Hon. John S. Tracey, near Poplar Springs, Howard county, to witness what proved the most interesting tourney held in that section for a number of years. In the large gathering the counties of Carroll and Montgomery were well represented, and there were also a number of well-known Baltimoreans on the grounds.

The weather was especially favorable for the sports, which were participated in with unusual zest, and the excellent riding of the well-trained knights was a marked feature of the day. The charge to the knights was by Mr. J. Malcolm Dorsey, of the Ellicott City bar, and the coronation address was by Senator John G. Rogers, of Howard county.

The judges were Mr. Allan Dorsey, Hon. John S. Tracey and Mr. Richard Dorsey. Mr. Lycurgus Mathews was chief marshal, assisted by Mr. Edward L. Ellicott. The heralds were Messrs. Frank Thiernau and Gilbert Selby. Only one set of knights contested for prizes, and the honor of crowning the queen and maids of honor. The knights and their titles were: A. C. Renehan, Knight of Prospect Hill; Herbert Crook, Knight of Locust Hall; O. Brightwell, Knight of Locust Grove; Harry Davis, Knight of Woodbine; R. H. Mercer, Knight of Pleasant Valley; Harry Miles, Knight of Lisbon; David Burdett, Knight of Poplar Springs; Samuel Crook, Knight of Ivanhoe. The successful knights and the ladies were as follows: Knight of Woodbine received first prize, a set of harness, and crowned Miss Emma Hood, of Carroll county, Queen of Love and Beauty; Knight of Pleasant Valley got second prize, a saddle, and crowned Miss Bertha Mercer, of Howard county, first maid of honor; Knight of Ivanhoe took third prize, a bridle, and crowned Miss Georgie F. Collington, of Carroll county, second maid; Knight of Lisbon got fourth prize, a whip, and crowned Miss Laura Pickett, of Carroll county, third maid. After the tilting, dinner was served in the spacious grove nearby. Dancing was made the feature of the afternoon and evening. A spirited game of baseball between two crack nines of that vicinity was also a part of the afternoon sports. The music was furnished by the Brownsville Cornet Band. The floor managers for the dancing were Messrs. Robert Runkles and G. W. Burdett.

THE OUTLOOK.

The Fifth Congressional District Determined to Continue the Fight for Tariff Reform.

Although we have had several disturbing influences here in Howard county indications point to the fact that the Democracy are as well united as they ever were at this time previous to the election. While Mr. Rogers is personally popular in his own county it is significant that the Democratic club which was formed in Ellicott City enthusiastically adopted the title of "The Tariff Reform Club of Ellicott City." It is still the all absorbing question with the people and the young Democracy especially. Neither Mr. Cleveland nor Mr. Gorman is in the issue. It will be the aim of the Democracy to prevent Mr. Coffin from going to Congress for the reason that the tariff fight is still "on." No good Democrat desires to lose the vantage ground gained, and no matter what the destractions of the party may have been the sober second thought will prevail and ere the election day arrives we expect to see a solid front with the glint of determination in every eye that the McKinley atrocity shall not be repeated. The new life that business has already taken on in many parts of the country is a telling object lesson that even partial tariff reform is a blessing and the people will demand more of it. From all parts of the Fifth Congressional district we have the cheering announcement that the Democracy is alive and determined. In proof of this we glean the following from our exchanges:

LAUREL.

In Laurel this year the registration has been heavier than it has for several years past and the majority of those registered are Republicans. There is some dissatisfaction among the Democrats in this section owing to the hard times (for which they blame the Democratic party), and also over class of appointments made from this section. This city, though, will give a big Democratic majority, and a number of Republicans will vote for Rogers and Wells. Mr. Coffin is not half as popular here as the Democratic nominees, and can expect no support outside of his party from this vicinity.

ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY.

The Democratic forces of Anne Arundel county are actively at work getting ready for the Congressional campaign. The Democrats are coming together and getting into shape to give Dr. Wells and Mr. Rogers united support. The majority of Democrats in the county are loyal to tariff reform and intend to support the nominees of the party who stand on a tariff reform platform. On the other hand, the Republicans are also active, but they are not as confident by any means as they have been since the two great factions of the county have become united an are standing out for the ticket.

PRINCE GEORGE'S.

Throughout Prince George's county there is a great amount of discontent in the Republican ranks, and the action of the Republican County Convention here in not supporting Coffin has done much to strength it. The Republicans in some sections are at dagger's points, and will not support Coffin. The Henry W. Claggett men are down on him and will no doubt do more to defeat him than the Democrats. The Democrats are working with a will and are encouraged at the Republican dissatisfaction, while they, with few exceptions, are working in harmony.

CHARLES.

In this county the Democrats have the best of the fight and will undoubtedly snow Coffin under. It is the same case in St. Mary's and Southern Maryland will go against Coffin by a big majority if personal interviews with the leading men count for anyting.

One on Wm. L. Wilson.

William L. Wilson tells a story on himself which shows the height of the ardor to which his constituents have worked themselves. During the exciting times of the jollification after his renomination at Martinsburg last week, a rather sporty-looking man, somewhat the worse for wear and too much liquid refreshment, approached Mr. Wilson, and, throwing his arms about him, asked, in a plaintive tone: "Willie, don't you know me?" Mr. Wilson was somewhat taken aback, but could not recall the enthusiastic friend and told him so. "Why!" exclaimed the exuberant West Virginian, "I am your old Sunday-school teacher, and I am proud of my pupil." It was more than Mr. Wilson could say of his erstwhile instructor.—Frederick (Va.) Free Lance.

The Sugar Swag.

From the Philadelphia Times.

The sugar planters of Louisiana obviously regard the tariff question as General Hancock did in 1880 when he declared it to be "a local issue." They have organized rebellion against their long maintained political faith on the captivating issue of the sugar swag, and when the figures are carefully scanned it is not at all surprising that they will resist even to rebellion the overthrow of the sugar bounty system.

The only marvel is that so small a class of sugar swag beneficiaries could start a rebellion and attract the attention of the country to their movement as one of national moment. There are only 579 cane sugar producers in the United States, and these 579 sugar growers were paid aggregate bounties last year of $11,114,290. When it is remembered that of this sum $10,868,896 was paid to sugar producers in the single State of Louisiana it may be understood how the less than 500 sugar growers in that single State have been inspired to inaugurate rebellion against the overthrow of the sugar swag.

The average amount of sugar bounties paid to each sugar cane producer in the United States last year was $19,195.66, and as the largest individual producers are in the State of Louisiana, it is safe to assume that every Louisana sugar planter was paid over $20,000 last year out of the sugar swag. A bounty of over $20,000 to a plantation paid annually by the government, is well calculated to whet the appetite of the average man even to the extent of revising his political faith if necessary to maintain the swag. The Pennsylvania farmer gets nothing from the government but taxes, while the sugar planter of Louisana pockets his $20,000 annually as his share of the taxes levied upon the people for the privilege of using sugar. Why should not men who have been enjoying such a liberal swag rebel when the people have grown tired of it and propose to stop it by some equitable method of taxation?

The Louisiana planters who have rebelled against the repeal of the sugar swag have simply exercised their undisputed rights as citizens. They are right to maintained their own interests in their own party if they can, outside of it if they must, but it is not wise for them to start a rebellion that can end only in doing injury to themselves. If Louisiana should revolutionize her political position on the sugar question by the rebellion of less than 500 sugar planters who are clamoring for a subsidy of $20,000 a year to each of them, they would do more to hasten the advent of entirely free sugar than all the opponents of protection to sugar throughout the country could accomplish.

They are therefore exercising their indisputable rights in starting an agitation that will certainly attract universal attention to the enormous sugar swag of the McKinley bill, and it is safe to assume that whenever the people take a horizontal view of the question they will respond to the Louisiana rebellion of the $20,000 per head sugar planters by putting sugar on the free list and letting the planters take care of themselves. That is what the revolt in Louisiana logically looks to, and if they want it that way, let them have it.

A REVERIE.

Written for The Times.

I sat on the hill side watching
The sun as it went down in the west.
A sadness came over me stealing,
And I longed to be home and at rest.

I thought of the father resting,
While the mother croned softly a lay,
As they sat on the ivied piazza,
The labor all done for the day.

I longed to go and be with them,
To sit at the dear mother's feet,
And pour out my woes and my sorrows,
Sure of comfort and sympathy sweet.

As I gazed the glory all left the horizon,
As joy goes out of a life.
For a moment a bright glowing picture,
Then trouble and labor and strife.

My path in this life had been thorny,
Home ties had been broken in twain,
I'd fled from the fields and the flowers
To climb up the ladder of fame.

'Twas but a dream and I knew it,
So I banished sweet thoughts away;
I shouldered once more my burden,
And struggled from day to day.

The Tax on Playing Cards.

The new tariff bill imposes a tax of two cents on every pack of playing cards in the hands of manufacturers or dealers and on every pack manufactured after the law goes into effect. It also provides a penalty of $50 for the sale of every pack of cards after the law becomes operative without a two cent stamp attached. Everyone who has playing cards intended for sale is required to forward to the internal revenue collector of the district in which he does business a sworn statement of the number of packs of cards he has on hand the day the bill becomes law. There are no manufacturers of playing cards in Collector Vandiver's district. Importers of playing cards will also be required to affix a two cent stamp on every pack imported.

PUBLICATIONS.

Scribner's Magazine for October.—Contains the first of two articles on English Railways by H. G. Prout, editor of the Railway Gazette. Colonel Prout recently made a trip to England expressly for the magazine, to accumulate fresh material on a subject with which he was already familiar. He has in his articles preserved the open mind and the even judgment of a man who is thoroughly well-posted on the railroad problem in all countries. In this first article, which deals with "Railroad Travel in England and America," he compares the systems of the two countries, particularly as to safety, speed, cost, comfort and construction. He starts with the assertion that the English railroad is "the most highly organized instrument of transportation in the world." The clear and entertaining manner in which Colonel Prout develops the subject and the startling facts with which his article abounds will, for the first time, make plain to the reader some facts which hitherto have not been understood.

Dr. Carl Lumholtz, the explorer, concludes his observations on the Tarahumari—the Mexican cave-dwellers. In this paper he describes their dances and their strange plant worship with other superstitions. The illustrations have been drawn with great fidelity from the author's own photographs and show subjects which have been never before depicted.

The number is strong in fiction and much else interesting to the general reader.

The Ohio Democratic platform says:

"We adhere to the declarations of the Democratic party in its national platform that protection is a fraud, and we recognize the beneficial reduction of duties on imports just made by Congress. We favor such further reductions as can be made, holding in view the revenue necessary to be raised for the support of the government to the end that the injustice of purely protective duties be abolished. We congratulate the country upon the repeal of the McKinley tariff and the enactment of a tariff law in its stead, under the operation of which trade and business are reviving and the country again becoming prosperous. McKinley tariff went into operation less than four years ago, yet in that short period the country changed from prosperity to a condition of financial and industrial depression unparalleled in our history as a nation. Under its operation the revenues derived from duties on imports decreased to a sum insufficient to meet the expenses of the government, thereby necessitating the sale of bonds and a consequent increase of interest-bearing debt of the government. Under it more business failures occurred than ever before in the history of the country in the same period of time. While it was in force there were harder times, more companies and more business houses bankrupted, more forced sales, and more distresses and destitution than was ever known in this country in the same length of time. The Republican pretense that these results were caused by change of administration is so unsupported by facts that a denial seems unnecessary, for it must not be overlooked that until within the last thirty days every commodity bought or sold, including every bushel of grain and every pound of wool in the market, was bought and sold under the McKinley tariff, which was in full operation, doing its perfect work, and that since its repeal business has revived and the market improved, which is a complete answer to the charge."

FORD'S GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Week of October 1st.—Fanny Rice as Miss Innocence Abroad—First time in Baltimore four Weeks at the Bijou Theatre N. Y.

Conspicuous among the comedians who have launched their craft of fun on a starring voyage is that particularly bright luminary, Fanny Rice. Miss Rice has just concluded a four weeks' engagement at the Bijou Theatre, New York, where her new comedy, "Miss Innocence Abroad," was presented and met with gratifying success. The play is one of those bright entertaining farce arrangements with just enough plot to be classed among those that call for acting. The clever soubrette is gifted with an inimitable charm of manner and expression, a voice of rare sweetness and possesses an adaptability which gives to everything she undertakes an originial attractiveness. Several new and decidedly taking ballads are sung with pleasing effect by Miss Rice.

Miss Fanny Rice has supported herself with an admirable company. Mr. George Edeson, Mr. Chas. Coote, Mr. Melville Stewart and Miss Rose Beaudet are artists of sterling worth and it goes without saying that they have made the best of their opportunities. Miss Rice looked like a piece of Delft ware in the first act, and was beautifully costumed throughout the piece. Her voice has gone several flights up higher.
