Mr. Murphy who is of the class of '95 in his in address briefly reviewed the history of gymnastics and gymnasia in their successive stages of development, dating from the time of Plato to the present era. Mr. Sullivan, who is also of the class of '95, dwelt especially upon Rev. Brother Maurice and the late lamented Brother Azarias, who had, he said, been united in the holy bond of friendship from early youth. An interesting feature of the occasion was the presentation of a gold-headed cane to Bro. Maurice, president of the college, by the class of '95.

Scarcity of Game.

Not for a long period, reports from has there been such a scarcity of game the First district of Baltimore county, be present at the November meeting at evening. Rev. James S. Hutchinson as at the present season. Especially is this the case in regard to partridges, and huntsmen, who in previous seasons could, they say, return from half a day's sport loaded with this species of game may now spend a full day in tramping over four times the area without being able to obtain even a good mess. In some localities there is also a perceptible thinning out of the rabbits. No positive cause, old sportsmen here say, can be ascribed for the decrease of game in this section, as the mildness of last winter precludes the supposition that the breeders were killed out by the cold weather.

Robert Dorsey, aged 30, a blacksmith, son of Samuel Dorsey, superintendent of Wesley Grove Camp, at Dorsey's Station, is confined at the Maryland University Hospital with a gunshot wound in the right foot. Mr. Dorsey was gunning Tuesday afternon, and was carrying his fowling-piece under his right arm. In passing through some underbrush the ammer caught and the gun exploded. The entire charge entered his right foot. He was taken to the city Tuesday night by Dr. W. R. Eareekson, of Elkridge Landing, and removed to the Maryland University Hospital, where Dr. St. Clair Sprull found that amputation of the first and second toes of the foot was necessary.

We Lead Carroll County.

Prof. James A. Diffenbaugh, Special Deputy Collector; Col. W. W. Bowie, Deputy Surveyor of Customs; Col. Chas. W. Raphun and Major Harry Naylor were entertained at dinner on Saturday evening last by Capt. John R. King at his residence, "Waterloo," Howard county. Prof. Diffenbaugh remained over Sunday and after a drive over the southern portion of the county expressed himself as highly pleased with our good roads, well ordered and neat appearance of the farm buildings and clean fence rows. He thought in this particular, we lead Carroll county.

Badly Hurt by a Horse.

Upon examination, it was found that eight of his teeth had been knocked out and the front bone of his lower jaw badly fractured. Mr. Clark's condition is improving.

Attempt to Steal Meat.

Mr. Charles Shaffer, a popular butcher of Oella, while on his way home from here Saturday night about 12 o'clock, two men attempted to take meat out of his wagon while he was talking to a friend on Granite Hill, near this place. One man had taken a piece valued at about $1.50 and the other took a piece out, when Mr. Shaffer saw him, and as soon as the latter got out of his wagon the man dropped it. The Oella Store Robbed.

The company's store at Oella Cotton Mills was entered Sunday night and robbed of a quantity of small articles. The postoflice, which is kept in the store, seemed to have been the object of the thieves, as the latter's drawers had been ransacked and mail matter strewn about the floor. Postage stamps to the amount of $78 were left on a table, having been taken out of a drawer. Entrance was effected by digging away a portion of the stone wall of the cellar.

Cardinal Gibbons' Trip to Rome, Inquiry was made Monday in regard o a despatch from Rome to the effect that Cardinal Gibbons' departure to Rome has been indefinitely postponed, and that he will not go to Rome until after the publication of the papal encyclical addressed to Catholics of the United States. A member of the Cardinal's household said he supposed the encyclical referred to was the one which is expected, which will define Archbishop Satolli's duties and position, possibly creating him a cardinal. No letter has as vet been received by Cardinal Gibbons from Rome in regard to the matter. Cardinal Gibbons will not go to Rome for some time.

To Correspondents. We trust that our correspondents who may have important news at hand will send the same as early as possible. We have frequently to rely upon other sources for accounts of weddings, &c., that might easily have been sent at once. The consequence is such communications coming late we often have the matter in type and sometimes not as complete as t would otherwise be. All matter should reach us as early in the week as

THE PARMER.

His Opportunities of Enjoying Life Above Those of Most Mortals. How many things are there better than money! The farmer is king on his land, and rules it as he fancies. In his woods trees are growing from the earth, helped on by the sun, air and water for his own comfort, to give shade in summer to his flocks and herds. They are beautiful when just bursting into bud, and more so when in full leaf; and when the autumn arrives their tints of many hues give an added beauty to the land-

To surround one's home with noble maples, graceful elms and the weeping ish adds comfort and happiness; and it is not for himself alone, but it is for others as well. The cultivated fields, the rolling meadows, the charm of the landscape cannot be hid, but it gladdens the eye of every traveler. The farmer works with nature; the sunshine, the rain, the dew, the heat and cold all are his aids, and all help him in his labors. The farmer's time is his own. No facory bell calls him to his task; no hot and crowded room is his workshop. He works in the pure air, drinks the healthful water and has the light of the sun to gladden his pathway. His labors may be severe at times, but, thanks to improved machinery, these have been much lessened. The sulky plow, the improved harrow, the riding cultivator, the grain drill with its many improvements, the mower, the hay loader and hay fork and the steel harvester now save the farmer's muscles and give him time to improve his mind, and thus enlarge his usefulness and powers for What money he makes is honestly made. It is not through trickery, nor by cheating his fellow-man, Every bushel f grain he raises, every bushel of potatoes he produces, every pound of beef, mutton, pork and butter adds not only to his own wealth, but adds to the wealth of his State and country. The farmer is in league with all that is best. Progress of Methodism.

Sunday was Methodist Day at Fayette Street M. E. Church, Baltimore. The pastor, Rev. Dr. C. Herbert Richardson, preached in the morning on "The Greaton "The Doctrines and Economy of

In the course of his sermons, he said 'Methodism is a resuscitation of the aims and principles of primitive Christainity. It is a revival church in spirit; a missionary church as] to organization. odists into a great' religious denomination was not intended at first by Wesley, and its early founders. In America its first general conference, held during Christmas week of 1784, organized the church, one year after the acknowledgement of our national independence, and three years before the adoption or the Federal Contitution. It was the first of all religious denominations to insert in its articles of religion a recognition of the new government, and in the persons of Francis Asbury and Thomas Coke, its first bishops, in advance of all other religious bodies, it waited upon George Washington, when inaugurated president, and, in a written address, assured him of the sympathy and support of the Methodist people in the United States. The specifications provide that the It has more than kept pace in growth ing completion. Some idea of its size with the nation. If the latter has grown can be guessed from the fact that 14,000,mer has advanced from five thousand to printed in all sorts of languages, and from three to sixty-five millions, the forfour million of members. In 1776 there was one Methodist to every six hundred of the population, in 1890 one to every sixteen, and, if we count adherents or attendants, as well as communicants, of which Methodism numbers some twelve millions, there is now one Methodist to about every five of the population, as against one to every two hundred in 1776. Judged by its fruits, we find that in territorial extension and numerical growth, in its work of missions, education and church building, in the prosecution of great moral reforms, and in

On Monday of last week 27 operatives in the weaving department of the Warren Cotton Mills, in Baltimore county, stopped work on account of reduction of pay. These operatives had received 22 cents a bolt for weaving duck. This was reduced to 20 cents a bolt. The depressed condition of the trade was given as a reason for the cut in wages. The looms were started again Saturday most of the striking weavers being in their places.
