THE USES OF ALUMINUM.
 The Many Things that are Now Manufactured of It.
 There has been so much said and written about aluminum recently that one would think the subject well-nigh exhausted, yet, perhaps, from a manufacturer's standpoint no metal just now deserves more notice than it, especially when we take into account the fact that it ranks first among metals in quantity and extent of distribution, 1-12th of the earth's crust being composed thereof, says a writer in Hardware. It is malleable, ductile and does not readily oxidize. It is certainly worthy of attention, when we take into consideration the diverse, as well as the diametrically opposite ways in which it can be manufactured. Like iron, it can be made into many of the most useful articles, such as coffee-pots, saucepans, kettles, and a number of others of a similar nature. Things of this character made from aluminum have many advantages, some of which are: they are entirely free from poison; the food cooks quickly without burning, and the utensils are very light, aluminum being nearly three times lighter than iron and three and a half times lighter than copper. There are a few things that attack it, but which are not met with in cooking; caustic alkalies consume aluminum rapidly, muriatic acid slowly, and nitric acid only at high temperatures. The above were mentioned to let you keep the above ware, but can sell you hinges, bells, keys, locks, bolts and many things in the electrical line.
 Then again, like gold and silver, it is worked into many things that are ornamental, for at any jeweler's can be seen napkin rings, watch chains, match safes, stick pins, hair pins, toothpicks, lockets with stones set in them, and a hundred and one other trinkets, too numerous to mention. The optician uses it in many ways, especially in the making of opera glasses, and even the painter has a powder which, when mixed, gives a silver-like lustre.
 Owing to its lightness, the dentist uses it to take the place of gold in making the plates for artificial teeth and in the capping of teeth. One of the finest alloys is aluminum bronze, which has the color of gold and is capable of taking a high polish; it has the tenacity of steel, and from which very fine castings can be made.
 Extreme Rudeness.
 As the tramp was seated on the kitchen steps eating the breakfast he had asked for, the hired girl stood by and watched him curiously.
 "What you gazin' at me fer?" he inquired nervously. "You thing 'in yer long lost brother?"
 "No," she replied easily, "but you somehow remind me of a man I used to know."
 "Sweetheart?" inquired the tramp with charming naïveté.
 "None of your business. Something happened to him, though, that don't ever happen to you."
 "What's that? Died a millionaire?"
 "No. He was it owed his bathing."
 —Detroit Free Press.

The Churches of the East.
 The churches of the East, which the Holy Father desires to bring back to unity of the fold, embrace a number of nations, and count about 125,000,000 members. They deny that the Holy Ghost proceeds from the Father and the Son, they do not accept the word "Trinity," although they pray for the Holy Spirit, and they reject the authority of the Pope. In all other respects their faith is practically ours. They have valid orders, true sacraments and correct doctrine, says the Catholic Review.
 Possibilities in Texas.
 Delaware is not a densely populated state, but were Texas as thickly peopled her population would be about 25,000,000. Were Texas as numerously peopled as Massachusetts, her population would exceed by 10,000,000 the total population of the United States according to the census of 1890. More impressive still, if Texas were as densely peopled as Rhode Island, her population would be more than $2,000,000.
 Size of a Moose.
 Sportsmen who have never seen a moose will be interested in the dimensions of one recently killed near the Ebeque lakes, in Northern Maine. The animal measured seven feet high at the shoulders, and his body was nine feet long. The measurement from his nose to his hind feet was fifteen feet. The spread of his horns was four feet and four inches.
 The Wrong Woman.
 "Go down to the Great Northern Hotel and interview the female suffragist leader there," said the city editor to one of his reporters.
 The young man returned in about an hour and said:
 "I saw her, sir, but she wouldn't talk."
 "Then you must have seen the wrong woman," replied the chief.—Harper's Bazar.
 As He Looked At It.
 Sammy came home from an afternoon at the Natural History Museum.
 "Where have you been?" said his grandpa, who saw that he was in uncommonly good spirits.
 "Oh, we've had a splendid time. We've seen the dead circus."—Queenslander, Australia.
 Germans in Paris.
 A German church has just been dedicated in the Rue Blanche in Paris, and a regular Lutheran pastor installed in it. 50,000 German Protestants who are domiciled in Paris have hitherto put up with services held in small public halls.
 A Great Sum in Cash.
 A greatest sum of coin that was ever collected in one spot was in the national treasury of the United States in the silver crisis, when no less than $100,000,000 was contained there.
