Children Thank Mr. Gorman. Senator Gorman was given a pleasant surprise Monday morning. At an early hour he was called out from the Senate chamber to the Marble Room, where a great throng of school children, over half a hundred in number, waited him. They were the children of the Brightwood school, and they had driven in gayly on two tally-ho coaches for the express purpose of thanking Senator Gorman for advocating the appropriation for a new building at Brightwood. They were headed by their principal, Mr. Keene, who, on their behalf, presented Mr. Gorman with a handsome testimonial, signed by all the school children of Brightwood, accompanied by a beautiful bouquet of roses. Mr. Gorman thanked the children for their kindness and appreciation and told them he would have been glad to provide for twice as many schools if there had been money enough in the treasury.

Monday the regular monthly meeting of the Ellicott City Council was held Brian, Howard D. Dunkel and M. P. Macgill were present, and two members, Messrs. O. H. Mercer and Wm. Gibbons were absent. The minutes for the months of Dec., Jan., and February were read and approved. The financial reports for same months were presented, accepted and approved. A communication from the receivers for the electric light plant was read, in which council was asked to increase amount of pay for light, and the reply to same made that any proper communication as to increase geese in this way has been the sports. would be considered. The receivers' communication expressed the opinion that light was more important than a fire engine without water-works. Messrs. Burke, Brian and Dunkel were appointed a committee to audit the books and accounts of the Register to report at the next meeting. The financial reports showed that there still remained in the Treasury to March 1st, 1895, a little over

THE RAISING OF LAZARUS. From the Sermon Preached by Dr. Branch March 3, 1895. Written for THE TIMES.

Oh, little bome in Bethany! My eager thoughts go back to thee, Across the ages past; All that was suffered there for me, That I the Light of Life might see, To-day I know at last.

Thou, Christ, who wan the one that u Dids't oft, as friend with friend, abide, What sorrow fill-d thy sou! That when his sisters to Thee cried For healing power to be applied, Thou coulds't not make him whole. Thou coulds't not, dare a mortal say?
Thou coulds't not; for it was Thy way
To show the dead shall live;
And as Thy tears did flow that day
For pain Thy power could all ay,
But which Thy love must give.

Oh, Mary who at Jesus' feet Once Mary her rich perfume poured Around the feet that she adored, Her love to manifest;

Now there was broken for her Lord More than the alabastered hoard Herself, by sorrow pressed. And Martha's moan "Hads't Thou

What anguish must his soul have felt, When through the tomb where mourner He heard a voice say "Come! Take to thyself the prisoner's belt. Four days to thee was freedom dealt, Be deaf now, blind and dumb.

"The body that has ached be thine, This earth's cell be thy only shrine, Its sorrow be thy dole." Yet with not one unwilling sign, Since 'tis the voice of Him Divine, The free one chains his soul. Oh, Lazarus! I thank thee still For thy obedience to His will Which helped to teach my heart,* That Christ has power the grave to all With resurrection life until Its portals burst apart.

Oh, little home in Bethany!
My enger thoughts go back to thee
Across the nges past;
All that was suffered there for me
That I the Light of Life might see, To day I know at last. OELLA, March 5, 1895.

Unleached Ashes supply the natural food of fruit trees as prepared and proportioned by Nature for the tree and its fruit, fortifying it against diseases of all kinds, such as the "yellows" and "blight" among peach and pear trees, diseases which are unknown where ashes have been used from the setting out of the tree. They are also a great preventive to the ravages of the "borer." The fruit is large, sweet, fine-grained, and of a bright color. Many trees are ruined, and the fruit rendered almost worthless where manure or ammoriated fertilizers are used, making a heavier growth of
