A New Farmers' Club. The farmers living between Dorsey's Station and Elkridge Landing in Howard county, alongside of the Baltimore and Ohio R. R. met Thursday night 14th inst., at the residence of Mr. John Kyne and organized the Elkridge Farmers' Club, electing Mr. Aubrey Hopkins president and Mr. N. A. Pfeisser secretary.

Quite a disscussion was carried on as to the value of Farmers' Clubs, and it was generally conceded that it was only by the farmers joining together and whole neighborhoods working in unison that abuses can be remedied and advantages gained. Resolutions were passed recommending State aid for the holding of farmers' institutes, requesting the B. & O. R. R. to offer better transportation of trucking crops to the Baltimore and Washington markets, and a special committee was a appointed composed of Aubrey Hopkins, Henry Pfeisfer and John Kyne to wait on the express companies to secure a lower rate of freight on berries to Western markets. The next meeting will be held at Mr. Frank Carter's near Dorsey's Station, when nearly all the farmers of the section are

JACOB HENSON TRIED AND FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

A Summary of the Court News-A Crowded Court Room Hears the Verdict Rendered Against Henson and was Only Prevented from Applauding by the Judge -The Prisoner Despondent and Nervous

In the Circuit Court Friday of last week the case of George A Shipley vs. Vachel Buckingham, removed from Carroll county, involving a suit on a promissory note for $180, was resumed. After the testimony of the plaintiff had been taken, the court sustained a prayer by defendant's counsel, which set forth that the notarial notice of the note's protest by a Westminster bank was not in accordance with the requirements of accused. law, thus ending the case. A similar case, the note being for $110, in which the same parties are interested, was then taken, and occupied the court's attention during the day. It was resumed on covery of the murdered man's body, the Saturday. These cases, including several others brought here for trial are the bloody water found in the basin in what is known as the "Seneca wheat" the second story and Henson's confession cases, and resemble the famous "hulless of the murder. He also produced the oats" cases. The mode of operation was money drawer and other articles, on to offer the farmers an sileged superior which appeared bloodstains, the hatchet, grade of seed wheat at $10 per bushel, and the towel on which, it was claimed, then give bonds in consideration of the murderer wiped his hands after notes, in which it was stipulated to sell washing off the blood. A letter written two bushels for every one purchased of by Henson while in jail, in which he the company at $10 per bushel, less $2 50 | confessed to having done the work in as commission.

self-defense, was read in court. SATURDAY. The case mentioned above (Shipley vs. Buckingham for $110) was concluded Saturday by a verdict in favor of the defendant. The verdict determined the fate of the several similar cases pending in the court, brought from Carroli county, such an agreement having been entered into by the counsel.

The Grand Jury which had been in session since Monday finished its labors. that he had committed the deed, and that and handed to the Court, the following he did it with a piece of iron.

for your consideration the following report:
The Grand Jury has been in session six days in the discharge of the business committed to it; during which time they have examined forty-eight witnesses, resulting in the inding of nine indictments; in addition to which they investigated a number of cases, resulting in dismissal.

The Grand Jury through its committee visited the office of the Board of County Commissioners for Howard County and in their judgment found matters there to be in a most excellent condition, everything being done in a thoroughly sys ematic manner and far superior to oid methods.

The committee were contributely received in the office of the School Board by the Rev. II. O. Devries and the Examiner, and found everything pertaining to the office in excellent shope. The offices of the Clerk of the Court and The offices of the Clerk of the Court and Register of Wills were then visited, the licenses examined and found to be correct and everything kept in first class condition. The Grand Jury has visited the Jail, were received courteously and entertained by the efficient Warden. A thorough inspection was made and everything found to bekept in a neat and tidy manner.

The Grand Jury found however that we then there has been developed a written note by Hensen to that effect. A number of others gave testimony on the part of the state, including Dr. W. P. B. Penniman, of Baltimore, who stated that in a chemical analysis he had found blood on the hatchet and on the clothing taken off Henson on the night of his arrest.

The Grand Jury found however that nothing has been done as suggested by the Grand Jury of last term looking to an abund ant water surply for the Jail. This, your Honors, the Grand Jury think has been a s rious oversight and in view of the fact that the warm season is approaching, when sanitary regulations should be strictly adhered to, that the proper officials be urged by the Court to device some feasible plan for a collected water smally as at terms of the committy of the deed, but contended that the proper officials be urged by the Court to device some feasible plan for a collected water small water. sufficient water supply, as at present all water used for cleansing purposes has to be pumped or carried by hand.

The Grand Jury would call the attention of the Court to the fact that the local option law is being grossly violated in and about the village of Savage, in the Sixth district, but not having sufficient evidence before them, ness of the prisoner, including whom would urge that the officials and authorities in that section be more vigilant in order that the officials and surhorities in the offenders may soon be severely dealt with. The Grand Jury has again had its atten-tion called to the perplexing problem as to what disposition is to be made of the horde of mendicants, commonly known as tramps who nightly beset the borders and confines

We are aware that the Vagrant Law as ap-piled to many such cases is still in force, but seems utterly inadequate to meet the majority of them, knowing well that idleness begets crime, can only suggest to all good citizens, and particularly their representatives in the next Legislature, to urge the passage of a law, that will instead of being a burden to the tax payers give illers employment on the county roads,

A motion was made by Senator John G. Rogers, counsel for the Baltimore and Obio Railroad Company, for a new trial in the damage case of Clara B. Webb vs. the railroad company, in which a verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff at the present term of court for $266 66. Frank Johnson, colored, was convicted on the charge of assaulting Deputy Sheriff Louis P. Schultz while in the discharge of official duty, and sentenced to the House of Correction for four months. Robert White, colored, pleaded guilty to the charge of larceny, and was sentenced to four years in the peni tentiary. William Gore, colored, who had previously pleaded not guilty to the charge of robbing cars of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, withdrew the plea, and admitted his guilt to the court. Sentence was suspended. The petit jury was discharged until Wednesday.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY -- HENSON FOUND GUITY OF MURDER IN

The first degree.

The trial of Jacob Henson, colored, charged with the murder of Daniel F Shea, on February 19 last, the details of which appeared in The Times at the time, was begun Wednesday. It was generally thought that Henson would plead guilty to the charge, and make a clean breast of the atrocious murder, as he had on the evening after the murder when questioned by Detective Pohler, of Baltimore, regarding the killing made a full confession of the ctime. generally thought that Henson would ing, made a full confession of the crime. When arraigned, however, he firmly pleaded not guilty.

When Henson took his seat on the prisoners' bench he presented a sorry sight. Instead of the bright, healthy mulatto that he was his face presented a bleached, drawn appearance, and with evident nervousness which amounted to a quaking fear, he cast furtive glances a quaking fear, he cast furtive glances a continuate to a cold and making statements thereon, a quaking fear, he cast furtive glances and making statements thereon that very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. NOTICE.

"REGULAR" TALK'S TO "JUNIUS". In his latest effort, Mr. Editor, "Junius" again poses as critic, and gives a dissertation on "prose" and "poetry," and the "grade" to which certain correspondents should be assigned. His force of habit crops out when he proceeds to distribute the awards of the pedagogue as "dunce," "semi educated," &c.; but while calling names, he accepts Marcus Brutus as his own prototype, and, with the playwright, declares him "the noblest Roman of them all". His habits having been to stab his superiors in the back, and to sling mud whenever an opportunity offered, "Junius" is truthful for once, when he admits he is the reflection of Caesar's as sassin. But "Junius" seriously objects to the name usually applied to "the friend of man", forgetting that in this entire correspondence of both "prose" and "poetry" the diminutive has ever been used. For, it would be preposterous to attribute anything like friendliness to the obstreperous little protege of The Democrat Whilst "Junius" may imagine that he owns that paper, that he will be sent to Annapolis to frame tramp laws, or, that he has innumerable wheels in his headsensible folks see and know that he is exclusively the property of The Democrat; and that his tricks as "prestidigitator", thermo frigid blower and "Dis cussions", are far superior, as an attraction, of those in quest of the ludicrous, to any Punch and Judy ever put upon exhibition. As a pedagogue, "Junius' should not show his teeth when metaphor or simile is used in "prose" or "poetry to emphasize attributes peculiarly his own. If Webster can say of Hamilton's ability as a financier: "He smote the Rock of national resources, and an abundant stream burst forth. He touched the dead (orpse of national credit, and it sprang upon its feet". Or, if a certain Senator is figuratively called the Watch Dog of the Treasury, why should "Jun-ius" rage when a like figure is applied to the zealous guardian of The Democrat?

answer the plain question, has he not all along exhibited the peculiarities attribued to him? As to "Cassius-the lean and loungry" the simile is inact, because "Regular" revels amid the luxuries of the country ais local habitation, and tips the scales at two hundred. His "palms" having been hardened by honest toil, he is independent of the public crib. He is entirey exempt from all "itching", and to so emain, he will ever avoid proximity to 'Junius" and his kennel.

Now it is to be sincerely hoped that he will not fly at Webster's grammar, but Furthermore, the only "Master" ever known to "Regular", was a gentleman of the old school, who never neglected his pedagogic duties to raise a row with public functionaries, or to malign a faithful servant who has thrice proven his fealty to the principles of Democracy. But since "Junius" has wisely concluded to retire to his corner and give the public a rest, an apology is due you, Mr. Editor, for the "prose" and poetry", not dignified indeed, which have been elicit ed by this turbulent howler. Hoping, that in his retirement, he may realize:

"Anger and wrong are both unwise;and that while he growes fat and fatter apon the taxes of a tramp haunted peoole, he may in the same degree increase n amiability and other virtues. Then et him be assured, in the language of classic verse, again.

"I like to see a doggie good And pat him on his head. How prettily he wags his tail Whenever he is fed".

REGULAR. HOWARD COUNTY, March 27, 1895.

HIS FAILURE TO CONVINCE.

EDITOR TIMES: That mysterious personage who for the last two months has been writing in one of our local papers under the nom de plume of "Junius" has thrown up the sponge and retires, "hors du combat." Ilis signal failure in our affairs, has almost broken his mighty heart. In his exile from his peloved people he can calmly muse of the past and shed a tear over the ingratiteuce of mankind. Poor fellow, he has this consolation; that he is not the first who has been forced to leave his country for his country's good He leaves behind him a pseudonym shrouded in mystery, a veritable crux criticorum. His beautiful literary gems will by future historians be variously assigned. Some will say they were written by Editor Melvin, some by Lawyer Murray and again some will be positively declared to be the production of Sir John T. Tompson. Howard county is prolific in great men. One of the great astronomical observers and calculators of the last century was full-blooded negro who resided and died near Ellicott City. He, too, was not properly appreciated, but his name and works live after him. Don't take it too much to heart, "Junius." "It has always been so.'

more of the great international success. -A Galety Girl.-An English Musical Comedy in two acts interpreted by the Famous London Company. "A Gaiety Girl," the English musical comedy, which created such a sensation and was gloriously successful last fall at Daly's Theatre, N. Y., will be given for the first time in Baltimore at Ford's during the week of April 1st. "A Gaiety Girl" was so successful abroad that arrangements were made for its to convince the people of Howard of his | American production, which proved equally political honesty, and disinterestedness profitable. After a long Metropolitan run the charming play was taken en route, and has duplicated everywhere its London and New duplicated everywhere its London and New York triumphs. Everyone who has seen or heard the play has had only praise for it, it s essentially English in plot and tone, the dialogue is wirty and pungent, the music is delightful and catchy, the company are artists, and the chorus of pretty English girls have compelied the higatest admiration. The plot is simple and may be evidenced briefly. and the chords of pretty English girls have compelled the higalest admiration. The plot is simple and may be explained briefly, "Some of the girls of the Gaiety Theatre London are asked to a garden party to contribute to the amusement of the guests there. The leading Gaiety girl is falsely accused of appropriating a damond comb. Complications and disguises are few, but the mainer is really delightful, the text lairly brisiling with witty lines and the interest rever flagging. The lines and the interest never flagging. The company of English comedians are artistic, and the girls combine rare beauty with at-tractive manners and exquisite dressing. The comedy is handsomely staged and presented with all the advantages of its New York pro-duction. Admission 25 and 50 ets. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday. April 8th, a magnificent production, Fanny Daven-port as "Gismonda."

HARRIS' ACADEMY OF MUSIC. Week of April 1 -Riebar Golden's Farewell of "Old Jed". Richard Golden in "Old Jed Prouty" is the important attraction at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, for the next six evenings. Golden's Bucksportain appears to have acquired a distinction which is on a par with hat attained by the late John E. Owens in "Solon Shingle" and with that of the contemporaneous Denman Thompson in "The Old Homestead". Golden's success with Old Jed Prouty, has long been a settled fact, otherwise his management might not have been so bold recently, as to place him again in the play to the extent they have done. We are to infer the importance with which "Old Jed Prouty" is going to be repeated here by the nature of the advance advertising. The auxiliaries will be of the genuine stamp. The actors will hail from the backwoods with the realistic "hayscod" in their hair. Altogether the production will be tully as complete as when originally seen here two or three seasons ago.
