are not considering the gubernatorial question any more than they are in

There is what may be said a unanimous disposition among the Democracy in Howard county to place strong men on the ticket both county and legislative.

The people are filled with the idea that there is need of certain reforms in the Moore, superintendent of the House of Correction, has just finished planting 700 pear trees, chiefly Kieffer, on his farm near Weverton, and will this company. He has wasted his fortune and impoverished his wife and is much to blame strawberry plants. Mr. Moore will then have the largest fruit farm in Pleasant Valley, having already 1200 pear and Valley, having already 1200 pear and tatters—of the character as well as raiment—good to the character as well a There is what may be said a unanimous State which sooner or later will be consummated and it is important that Howard county be represented by the to the fore and the contest over it will be coming back the time was reduced to as vigorous as ever. The next fight over this question we believe will be a fight this question we believe will be a fight to the finish. The influence of Baltimore city has greatly preponderated over that while grading at the south end of Market of the counties but the time is coming street, Havre de Grace, struck the founda when the counties will be heard from and will demand that the city be properly assessed. This is the gist of the issue as looked upon by the counties.

Men. OXFORD, PA., April 16.-William Gilbert, a wealthy farmer, of Avondale, north of Oxford, was visited by bunco men yesterday. A stranger came to his home and introduced himself as Truman Wallace, lawyer, from West Chester, One of his coat pockets was full of deeds and legal documents. He said that he and his father desired to place $2,000 in a farm as safe investment for his brother's orphans. Mr. Gilbert and Wallace started, and as they passed County Treasurer J. B. Pusey's residence it was occurred that Wallace was a slow lawyer, since he was not acquainted with Mr.

As the men drove a man coming across a field hailed them, and as he got to the fence he asked when the next train would leave for "Lancastertown." Representing himself to be a Southerner, he said: "The Yankees in these parts him. He said his father died recently and lift him a lot of toad skins. "Why, man," spoke up Lawyer Wallace, "what are toad skins?"

"I'll show you," was the reply. The fellow untied a red handkerchief nd produced a roll of notes marked

"These are toad skins," he said. "Gentlemen, I've got a game here which will enable you to win the stuff." He drew out four cards, one marked. He bet his pile of toad skins that neither Mr. Gilbert or Lawyer Wallace could pick out the marked card. They tried and failed The next time Lawyer Wallace bet a deed which he produced for a $5,000 farm that he could draw the winning card. Farmer Gilbert, seeing what kind of company he had, got out of the wagon and started for home on a run. The sharpers called to him, but he didn't halt. They drove to West Grove as rapidly as possible, and escaped on the train before Mr. Gilbert could effect their arrest This is the second call he has had from bunco men within six months.

After a most successful tour the Sandow or ganization comes to us on a return engage ment at Harris' Academy next Monday night and along with the attraction of "The Perfect Man" as the wonderful man has been aptly styled by his admirers, are the same competent entertainers which contributed to the pleasure of his former visit. Beyond question Sandow's remarkable exhibition have materially encouraged the science of physical culture ly encouraged the science of physical culture in America. He is not merely a strong man, $8$ that term is applied to brute force but a conspicuous representative of the intelligent development of the muscular energies to the highest point of excellence known to modern science. He is thoroughly familiar with all the intricacies of the human anatomy, and has accurately measured the value of the muscular tissues. His private exhibitions for scientific experts have demonstrated his mastery of the details of living physical system. It is true even the best trained amateur athletes cannot hope to bring themselves to the same or an approximate degree of perfection obtained by Sandow, but on the same lines laid down by him they may reach the highest point for which nature intended them. And even Sandow is not yet satisfied apparently with his own accomplishments since he has been adding to the repertoire in which his tame has been demonstrated. This time he will put up a living horse with one hand as the ordinary athlete puts up a dumbbell above h's head, thus bringing art and force in novel unity for the entertainment of the public. Evidently Sandow's beautiful Delilah who accompanies him on his travels has not shorn her Sampson of his Greek curls. The company is under the personal conduct of Mr. E. Ziegfeld, J.; whose reputation as the manager of the strong man and late proprietor of the Trocadero of World's Fair fame is pretty well known. He has associated with Sandow in this novelty athletic exhibition several people of equally wide renown.

atone or subdue. It is in these minute fournes that Jefferson shows his sympathetic study of human nature, his intuitive perception look-ing quite through the hearts and thoughts of men. It would be hard to say which portion of Jefferson's performance is the more ad-mirable. There are a hundred beauties of method in it which satisfy the judgment and forcing to the same of symmetry, and undermethod in it which satisfy the Judgment and fascinate the synse of symmetry, and underlying these beauties there is a magical sweetness of temperament, a delicate blending of humor, pathos, gentlenest, quaintness and dream-like repose which awakens the most affectionate sympathy. This is the feeling that Jofferson's acting inspires, the halo of genius is all around it."

At THE TIMES Job Office is executed Job Workof all descriptions. TERMS CASH. If the people in other parts of the state however, that measures rather than men are uppermost in the minds of the people. "Re-assessment," is alive and full of yigor and this being the case the name of Hon. Thomas G. Hayes is brought prominently to the front. Hon. Isadore Rayner is looked upon as a brilliant man and Hon. Spencer C. Jones as one of the may win in the race over Mr. Hayes, yet it will be necessary for them to define their positions on re-assessment. On the Eastern shore the name of Hon. by influential parties and a large amount of effort is being put forth to give him a boom. The Snow Hill Messenger urges as an evidence of his fitness that "they (the eastern shore counties) unite in the opinion that he (Mr. Smith) is sound on by a dog suffering from rabies. The dog was killed after he had bitten the the assessment question." Mr. Smith
