MARRIED AT MIDNIGHT. Rev. E. C. Ide Hastily Summoned From His

Couch to Perform the Ceremony, Rev. E. C. Ide, pastor of the Fulton (Howard county) and Ellicott City Lutheran Churches, figured in a romanand was the means of preventing an embarrassing termination to the adventures of a runaway couple. Rev. Mr. Ide was in Ellicott City on Saturday, it being his preach, and took a room for the night at the Howard House. The couple he was unexpectedly called upon to marry were Miss Cora Adel Hart and Mr. Fulton R Gordon, both residents of Washington, D. C., and well-known society people of that place. Late Saturday afternoon Mr. Wm. B. Owings, deputy clerk of the Howard County Circuit Court, received a notice by telephone that he would be called upon to issue a marriage license that evening, and requested him to be on hand when the evening train arrived to perform that duty. On the arrival of the 7 10 train at Ellicott City, however, the expected couple failed to put in an appearance. Shortly before eleven o'clock Mr. Owings was again notified that the prospective bride and groom had been unavoidably delayed in Washington, but to be in readiness to issue the required document when the midnight train arrived. There was no disappointment in the latter notification; for when the train arrived at the station, Mr. Gordon and Miss Hart alighted, and immediately took a carriage, which had been engaged for the occasion, and drove directly to the Howard House. The license was quickly filled out; but at that hour-fifteen minutes past twelve o'clock-the somewhat perplexing predicament of not being able to procure minister confronted the bridal party. It was then remembered that the Rev. Mr Ide had taken rooms in the hotel for the night. He was at once aroused from sleep, and soon appeared in the parlor, just as the hotel clock indicated 12.30 o'clock the marriage ceremony was concluded. The marriage was witnessed by Mrs. Christian Eckert, proprietress of the Howard House; Miss Beutefisch, also of the hotel; Deputy Clerk of the Circuit Court William B. Owings, ex-Deputy Clerk Wm. C. Sykes and two or three other gentlemen who chanced to be at the hotel at the time.

Mr. Gordon is a prominent real estate agent of Washington, and is, in connection with his brother, the principal owner of the town of North Laurel, Howard county. His bride is popularly and prominently known in Washington society, and is quite handsome. Mr. Gordon stated that he and Miss Hart had been engaged for some time; but owing to the objections to the union by the latter's parents, the marriage had been postponed from time to time. They finally determined to wait no longer, and on Saturday evening quietly left home and came to Ellicott City, where Mr. Visit Charlestown, W. Va, and Bardes-Gordon is well acquainted, to have the wedding performed. He was sorry, he said, that the arrangements for being lifesize portrait of himself, framed in here earlier in the evening to have the oak, to the Fred Douglas Literary Asceremony performed could not be carried sociation, in Baltimore. Assembly Room Assault Cases. Another chapter in the assault cases resulting from the disturbance at the Republican county convention, held at the New Assembly Room, here, on June 17, was finished Monday. The cases heard were those of the State vs. Robert H. Hughes, in which Hughes was charged with assaulting J. Frank and Clarence H. Oldfield. The hearing was conduct ed by Justice James D. Cooke, in the Circuit Courtroom, and a number of witnesses testified on both sides. There was some mollification of the bitter feeling between the Oldfield and Higinbotham factions that was shown at the trial of some of the recent cases before Justice Wallenhorst. After much conflicting testimony as to the manner of the assault in the case of J. Frank Oldfield against Mr. Hughes, Justice Cooke dismissed the charge. The case of Clarence H. Oldfield against Mr. Hughes was afterwards dismissed by consent of the prosecution. The case of J. Frank Oldfield against F. C. Higinbotham, for assault, was continued until the 22d inst. owing to the latter's physical inability to be present. Messrs. Daniel M. Murray and Louis T. Clark, who are acting for the state, in the absence of State's Attorney Joseph D. McGuire, assisted by Senator John G. Rogers, appeared for the Messrs. Oldfield, and the defense was represented by Mr. John E. Dempster, of Baltimore county.

Seeking a Franchise in Our City. Certain franchises are being sought by the Edmondson Avenue, Catonsville and Ellicott City Electric Railway Company asto the laying of tracks on the streets this week were: Misses Mary K. Holden, of Ellicott City, and much interest 13 Edith Mercier, Edith R. Brian and Ida being manifested in the matter by the residents of the town. There has, however, been no definite action taken by the City Council although the question has been informally discussed. An important consideration is whether there shall be a double or single track through the main street of the town. It is now generally conceded that the road will enter the town on the Howard county side across the Patapsco, near the turnpike bridge, and will extend as far as the Howard House, which is situated at the intersection of the Clarksville pike with the Frederick pike. The members of the City Council are not yet satisfied as | tremely dark on nights. to the extent of their powers existing under the present charter. The matter, however, will be settled in a short time as the grading of the road is being pushed from the terminus of Edmondson av enue in this direction.

The window-shutter next to the railroad had been cut open by a knife and the bolt raised. Chief Vansant, on a telegram, arrested George Jefferson, colored, on a freight train going east Monday morning, and he was committed for a further hearing. BUSINESS COMMENT.

The successful termination of the scholastic year of Dundee, the school for young ladies near Ellicott City, augus well for the coming year of that institution. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Weems, the principals, are now fully accustomed to their new surroundings which were created through much work and a considerable expenditure of money. The buildings of "Dundee" are commodious and the situation delightful. The curriculum of this school consists not merely of that obtained from text books but embraces much that is useful to the young ladies in after life. The aim of the principals is to fit pupils for the home as well as the world.

did not impress me favorably; mainly, I confess, because it presumes to set aside, with one sweep of the pen, one of the most attractive men in the state and one of your party's possible candidates and against whom the writer had nothing worse to say than that he was president of a national (country) bank. The same objection might be raised against the most excellent man prominently spoken of as likely to be the Republican candidate. The question naturally rises in the mind of any fairly disposed citizen as to what sort of a man we want for Governor? Shall he be one who proposes to become both the maker and executor of the laws? Frankly, I do not over much admire any possible candidate who is a man of one idea. The reassessment question on which sundry would be candibefore our Legislature, before our present method has been proposed which has met with the approval, of even a small minority, of our citizens. Each faction in our legislative body that has tackled it has (I say it respectfully) been so wedded to its own ideas that no satisfactory conclusion could ever be reached. Now what is the remedy? Simply this: inasmuch as no man likely to be a candidate for either party, under present state of public opinion, would be likely to ignore, either before or after election, the need of a fair and decent reassess ment law, it seems to me that the plain duty of both parties is to sim at securing a legislature with integrity, wisdom and forbearance enough to frame a reassessment law which would be acceptable to a majority of our tax-paying people and which any sensible executive would approve. Neither party can elect a man who has brains enough for himself and the legislature also, and no legislative body, properly self-respecting, would submit to such dictation were it possible to find and elect the man. Very respectfully,

A HOWARD COUNTY REPUBLICAN.
