THE PENALTY OF A HIGH PRICE FOR

stepped off at the Marshal (Mich.) eatinghouse several days ago. He was not hungry and called for a plate of beans, which he received. He inquired the price, and was informed that it was seventy-five cents.
"That's a thundeling price for beans,"

"That's the price," said the proprietor. The train was just starting; Bill paid the bill, and the reeling coaches bore him and his indignation on toward

This was on Saturday. On Monday lilmore, the cating-house man; received a telegram, collect on delivery, $1.25, which he paid, and read on opening it. "A thundering price for beaus!"

Thirty days from that date a neat exoress package was handed in to Gilmore C. O. D., who paid ninety cents for the privilege of opening it, to discover a lot of sawdust, on the top of which lay a slip of paper with the cabalistic symbols

-"A thundering price for beans!" Two months from this Gilmore was summoned to Chicago to meet a former business partner, and the hotel clerk handed him a letter conveying the pleas-ant information. "A thundering price During Gilmore's absence his son paid for two telegrams and one express pack age, all bearing directly on the subject of seventy-five cents being "A thundering price for beans!" Cost of these articles, $3.80. A genuine telegram from Gilmore's mining share broker advising him to sell, and refused, and the loss of it entailed an actual damage to Gilmore of about $1,500.

A year rolled by. Gilmore ordered a case of Mackinac trout from Detroit. They came C. O. D. $1363. When opened, he found that every fish had been removed from the ice and sawdust, and a shingle met his eyes, marked with a blue lead pencil—"A thundering price for beans!" Trouble arose between Gil-more and the Detroit fish-house, and they went to law, Gilmore winning the suit, $25 damages, and all at a cost for the attorney's services of $86.90. Gilmore grew dejected. Life looked gloomy. Letters poured in on every one of his family at regular intervals from all parts of the world, bearing the pleasant information it was "A thundering wice for heave!"

ing price for beans!"

At last Gilmore sold the Marshall cating-house and moved to Chicago. He carried his deep affliction along with him, gnawing like a cancer at his vitals. The persecution never ceased. Gilmore drooped, faded and finally died. The terribly afflicted family followed him to his last resting place, and the widow, with what little money she had saved from the expenses of bogus telegrams and express packages, erected a plain marble slab to the memory of the tortured Gilmore. ng price for beans!"

The following Sabbath the mourning family went out to the cemetery to plant some violets on Gilmore's grave. Arriving on the ground they observed in silent horror that another legend appeared above the name of Gilmore on the tombstone. It was chalked on a small blackboard and read: A THUNDERING PRICE FOR BEANS .- Texas Siftings.

The aweto, as the Maoris or natives of Yew Zealand call it, or Hipialis virescens. as naturalists term it, is found in New Zealand, and is a vegetable caterpillar of from three to four inches in length, and, so far, science has not been able to say anteed. whether it is a vegetable or an insect. It is always found at the foot of large myrtle trees that have beautiful red flowers on their stems, and a beautiful creeping clematis as white as the snow, The Maoris call this tree by the name of rata. The aweto buries itself among the roots of the rata, a few inches below the ground, and there lives until it is full grown, when it undergoes a most wonderful change. The spore of a vegetable 213 SOUTH HOWARD STREET fungus, termed by naturalists Sophæria robertsii, fastens itself to the neck of the caterpillar, just between the head and the first ring, and then grows upward to EVERY BIRD CHANCES the height of from six to eight inches Many people assert that there is never ITS FEATHERS IN THE more than one stem, but such is not the case, for some have been found with two | SPRING OF THE YEAR. stems, although very rarely. The stem shoots up out of the ground, above where the caterpillar is living, about two or three inches; below the earth it grows into the aweto, until it fills up every possible space within the outer skin without changing the form of the insect in the slightest way whatsoever, but simply substituting a vegetable matter for animal matter. As soon as this takes place both the plant and the caterpillar become dry and hard and die, but retain exactly the same form as when alive The whole has a brown color, and the insect appears a wooden caterpillar, with a huge horn standing up from the back of its neck. How the caterpillar manages to propagate its species no one can tell. Jsually the caterpillar becomes a chrysa is, the chrysalis changes into a moti the moth lays eggs, and these eggs agair

The site of the Bank of England bears an estimated annual value of £70,000 This sum if capitalized at 3 per cent. would represent a gross value of £2,100, 000. Estimating the buildings, vaults and weighing machines, etc., of £100,000 more, it will be seen that the "plant" of the bank is worth over $12,000,000. Add to this the average amount of bullion coin, securities and unissued notes usually held, and you have the gigantic sum of £120,000,000 sterling, or $600,000. 000, all heaped on a space of less than four acres. Nowhere else in the world is there such an aggregation of actual and potential wealth within so small an

In its early days the bank employed 5 clerks, and the yearly salary list amounted to £4300, the chief accountant and the secretary receiving £250 each. At the present time the total number of employes is about 1500, the salaries and wages amounting to over £300,000 a year, and the pensions to nearly £50,000. The present price of Bank of England of £14,553,000 worth £48,315,960, or about $240,000,000. The usual dividend distributed is equal to 10 per cent, on the original capital. Dr. M. M. FENNER. Dear Sir;—When I was eleven years old I had a weakness in my kidney and back which became so distressing that serious consequences were feared. I was treated by two eminent physicians but neither seemed able to reach my case, and I continued on in this distressing condition without hope.

Finally a friend gave me as a birthday present a bottle of your kidney and Backache Cure. I realized its benefit as soon as I began its use. Improvement was steady and by the time two bottles had been taken I was well. Six years have now elapsed and I have not had any return of the disease." DR. FENNER'S
