DR. HAND'S CELEBRATED REMEDIES FOR CHILDREN.

IRON MOUNTAIN, MICH., Feb. 9, 1894.

HAND MEDICINE COMPANY,
Philadelphia, Pa.

GENTLEMEN:—

Some time ago I received from you a sample of some "Colic Medicine." I think, for babies and the literature on the subject. This was given for an infant troubled with intestinal colic, and, at my next visit, the mother told me that the baby had been quiet. The case was lost sight of until the other day, when another case, similar in all respects, came under my observation. I wanted to use your medicine but could not find the literature. To-day I found the empty box in which your sample was sent and now want you to favor me with another sample of your "Colic Mixture" and other remedies which you prepare. From my experience in the instance noted I think I will keep it on hand in the future.

Yours very truly,

JOE IS NOT A FAT BOY.

But as a Sleeper He Ranks With the Youth In "Pickwick."

All office boys are popularly supposed to perform the smallest amount of labor consistent with keeping their places, and the particular species of boy who gives a newspaper the benefit of his services is not always an exception to the rule. Early in his career he manifests a decided tendency to deafness, is likely to be sublimely indifferent to the reporters' orders and is only aroused to hasty action by the exasperated call of the city editor or some equally formidable member of the staff.

On one of the large dailies there is a 12-year-old boy named Joe, who is a general favorite in the office. He is a bright looking lad and quick enough during the daytime, but when, as occasionally happens, he is obliged to do night duty, Joe's failing is revealed. Like his namesake, the fat boy in "Pickwick," he is almost invariably asleep when called. In the room of the editor in chief, who is not always present at night, there is a lounge which Joe finds quite comfortable and to which he is likely to retire unostentatiously during the evening. From this retreat he is unceremoniously hauled forth at intervals, performs an errand in a somnambulistic manner, and unless something else to do is given him immediately he loses no time about dropping to sleep again.

The other night a story of considerable importance came in at the last moment, and as rapidly as it could be edited was sent up to the composing room page by page. Every available boy was pressed into service, and it was found necessary to demand Joe's assistance also. A reporter pulled him from the lounge, shook him until he was as wide awake as could reasonably be expected and gave him a page of copy, with instructions to get that up stairs as fast as his legs would carry him. Joe departed, and apparently all was well. He did not return for any more work, but the other boys managed to get the remaining pages up, and there was no time to hunt for him. A few minutes later when the forms were made up there was a remarkable break in the continuity of the story, and it was evident that a page of copy was missing.

Joe fell under suspicion at once. He had not been seen by any one since the sheet was put into his hand, but a glance into the editor's room disclosed him in his familiar haunt. It was too late to remedy matters now, but an explanation seemed desirable, and the efforts of three men were concentrated upon rousing the 15-year-old boy to a talking condition. After an incredible amount of prodding and shaking he awoke enough to understand what was said to him. But questions were useless. He had not even the slightest recollection of having been sent up stairs at all, and the fate of that page of copy still remains a mystery.—New York Tribune.

LIGHTHOUSE LIBRARIES.

Uncle Sam Furnishes the Watchers by the Sea With Free Reading Matter.

The popular impression concerning the lighthouse keepers is that they spend their leisure time in resting their heads on their hands and gazing far out to sea, watching for shipwrecked mariners, sea serpents and other things. As a matter of fact, however, they don't spend any more time in this manner than they can help. They have their domestic operations just the same as people on shore. In favored locations they are even able to cultivate a little ground and raise their own vegetables. But they are really very often lonesome, and were more so until recently, when it occurred to some philanthropic government official that it would be a good idea to provide these watchers by the sea with something in the way of reading matter. The idea took shape in the construction of portable libraries, to be filled by the government, sent to one lighthouse station, and at regular intervals to be called for and passed on to the next one on the list.

The library furnished to light stations is about 2 feet high, 2 feet wide and 8 inches deep, of shellacked white pine, strengthened with heavy brass trimmings. It has two shelves. Its two doors are secured, the one with an inside bolt and the other with a mortised lock. On the sides are hinged handles. When locked, the library cases can stand rough handling.

The cases of the libraries are so constructed that they make a neat appearance when set upright on a table; when closed and locked, they are ready for transportation. Each contains on an average about 40 volumes of a proper admixture of historical and scientific works, besides poetry and good novels. An exchange of libraries takes place once in about three months, usually at the time when the lighthouse inspector makes his quarterly inspection. Each station to which a library is furnished thus has the use of about 160 different books each year. There are now about 700 of these libraries in circulation, and more are in preparation. Preference is given in their distribution to those lighthouse stations most distant from towns and villages.—New York World.

THE TOPICAL SONG.

Tony Pastor Thinks It Has a Power to Mold Public Opinion.

Tony Pastor, in the New York Mirror, has this to say of the topical song:

"I am a great reader of the newspapers. I believe not only in the public press, but in its utility. It is the most valuable agent the vocalist has ever had for securing subjects for popular songs. The comic vocalist must be quick to perceive the peculiar topic or phrase of human life which is liable to interest the amusement going public and must be a little ahead of time. Having selected my subject for a song, I jot down a few ideas about it as they come to me and afterward put them into shape.

"The fads and the ultra fashions of both women and men are always fair game for the comic singer. Songs on some of the most commonplace themes will often entertain an audience, such as a fellow's best girl, the old man's boot, the mother-in-law, the scolding wife and so forth.

"It has been found that the comic song exerts an influence in political contests and in bringing about social reforms. The comic vocalist of the specialty theater may claim with the journalist and the statesman the ability to mold public opinion. His shafts of melodious ridicule do much to reform flagrant abuses and cause the general public to laugh to scorn the foolish fads of the day."

The First Notice of a Steamer.

Among the curiosities of advertising may surely be placed the first advertisement of the first steamer that plied for hire in Great Britain—namely, Henry Bell's Comet. Thus ran the advertisement in the Glasgow Courier of 1812:

"Steam passage boat, the Comet, between Glasgow, Greenock and Helensburg. For passengers only. The subscriber having at much expense fitted up a handsome vessel to ply upon the river Clyde between Glasgow and Greenock—to sail by the power of wind, air and steam—he intends that the vessel shall leave the Broomielaw on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays about midday, or at such time thereafter as may answer from the state of the tide, and to leave Greenock on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays in the morning to suit the tide. The elegance, comfort, safety and speed of this vessel require only to be proved to meet the approbation of the public, and the proprietor is determined to do everything in his power to merit public encouragement. The terms are for the present 4 shillings for the best cabin and 3 shillings for the second, but beyond these rates nothing is to be allowed to servants or any other person employed about the vessel."

What would poor neglected Henry Bell have said could he have seen his humble little Comet, of whose elegance, comfort and speed he was so proud, alongside a modern ocean racer or one of the latest palatial river steamers of the Clyde or Thames, all so well advertised?—Chambers' Journal.

Man is beyond dispute the most excellent of created beings, but the sages agree that a grateful dog is better than an ungrateful man.—Saadi.

A good wild bee hunter must possess not only keen eyesight, but a thorough knowledge of woodcraft.

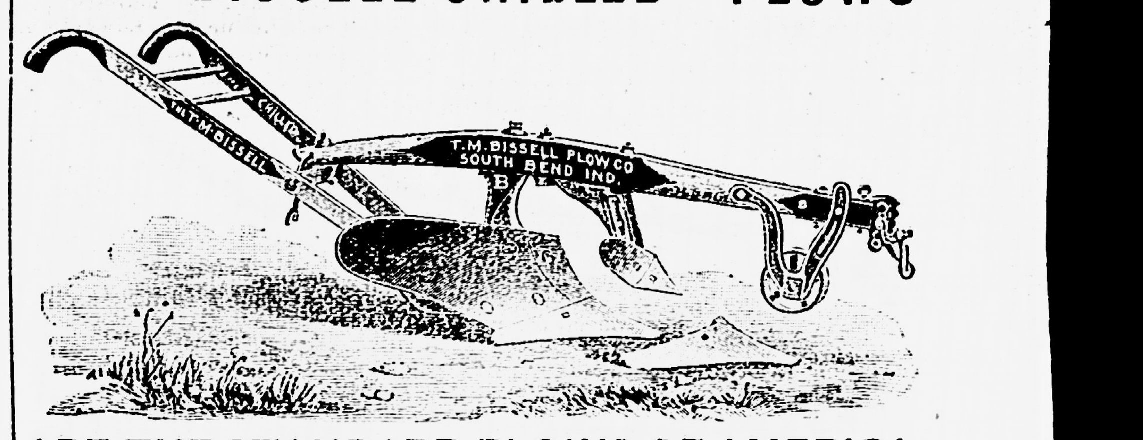
THE "BISSELL CHILLED" PLOWS



ARE THE STANDARD PLOWS OF AMERICA.

The fact that six years ago it was comparatively unknown in this territory, and that its annual sales with us now mount into the many hundreds, prove that in the field it has shown its superiority. As is well-known the patterns are the latest of Mr. T. M. Bissell, the original inventor of the Chilled Plow. We believe there is no implement which the farmer changes more unwillingly than his favorite plow, but in the interest of supplying the best, we continue our offer, namely: Take a Bissell, put it in the field with any other chilled plow, and if our claims are not found true, which are that it is desirable in lightness of draft, ease of handling and quality of work done, combined with improved mechanical construction, return it to us and purchase money will be refunded.

All sizes, right and left hand with their repairs, kept constantly in stock, and the prices are so reasonable as to justify substituting "Bissells" for all old-style plows.

THE DEERE "SHAKER" POTATO DIGGER.

THROWS THE POTATOES OUT OF THE GROUND AND LEAVES THEM —CLEAN AND WHOLE.—

Potato digging, at best, is tedious work; and when done either with the hoe or the plow the crop is unprofitable.

The "Shaker" has a broad and perfectly flat blade which enters the hill under the potatoes, and allows them to slide up on the blade and fall on the rods or fingers. The Rods and Fingers are hinged to the front end, and are free to play up and down. The Flange Wheel in the rear lifts and drops these fingers: this motion causes a continuous shaking of the potatoes, knocking off the dirt, which drops through between the rods, leaving the potatoes clean and free to roll off on top of the ground. The Weed Fender separates the weeds and vines and prepares the way for the shovel. The Digger has Metal Handles, well braced; all steel.

PRICE $15.00.

PLOUGH REPAIRS of every description and at the most reasonable prices. PAINTS, OIL and GLASS, and all descriptions of FENCING WIRE. A fine line of
