HEY ARE KNOCKED ON THE HEAD BY AN ENGLISH INVESTIGATOR.

The Signs That Fall as Often as They Are Verified-Old Superstitions Exploded by

Modern Meteorological Study-Animal

Superstitious and proverbial lore about ne weather was cruelly rent in the iconclastic address on "Weather Fallacies" read to the Royal Meteorological society at its meeting in London by the president, R. Inwards, and printed in The Quarteriv Journal of the society. In early times, when the weather had to be studied from cloud, sky and sea and from the behavior of animals and plants, men were pardonable for doing what is still often a cause of error, foretelling what they most wished for and putting down as a universal law what was only a coincidence of independent events. One class of prophecies connects the weather with certain seasons of the year, particularly days in the week or the days of certain saints, which was a convenient way of fixing a date, and even with particular times of the day. We often hear such savings as "Fine on Friday, fine on Sunday," or "Friday is the best and the worst day of the week," and proverbs like "Rain at 7, fine at 11." When these sayings come true they are faithfully remembered, when they fail they are forgotten. There is no kind of foundation for such rules, which Mr. Inwards calls "self exploding," or for the belief that if it rains on St. Swithin's day, July 15, it will rain for 40 days after. Equally unfounded are the scientific superstitions, presented under the shield of astronomy, which base infallible rules for the weather on the relative position of the moon, sun and planets. These appeal to analogy, to reason and to common sense. The known action of sun and moon or ocean tides is generally the starting point of such theories, and it is clear to common mains will be sold regardless sense that when the earth is nearer to the sun or the moon to the earth, or both sun and moon are pulling together, there ought to be a tide of atmosphere similar to the tide of ocean which these influences undoubtedly produce. But the facts do not bear the theory out. The atmospheric tides do not ebb and flow, except in an infinitesimal degree. Again, the sun and moon move in planes that are at an angle to each other, so that at times their attraction acts in widely diverging lines, at others almost in the same plane. Here is a clear case: When the angle is greatest, when the moon is "on her back," there must be atmospheric disturbance. Unfortunately the storms do not come, and we must find some other cause for our weather. Hardly a year goes by without a new moon theoy to account for it. M. Flarguergues, as the result of 20 years of observations, has found that when the moon was farthest from the earth the barometer averaged 755 millimeters, and when nearest 754 millimeters, a difference of only one millimeter. Some prophets have built their faith on eycles, predicting that weather changes would repeat themselves when sun and moon got back into the same relative position, which they do in 19 years, with an error of only an hour and a half. Others advocate a cycle of 54 years, but all the cycle systems have broken down when tested, and as far as we know there is no period within which weather changes repeat themselves. There are plenty of other lacies about the moon, such as that the full moon clears away clouds; that you should sow beans or cut trees on the wane of the moon; that it is a bad sign if the moon changes on Saturday or Sunday; that two full moons in a month will bring a flood; that to see the old moon in the arms of the new brings on rain. M. Flammarion says that "the moon's influence on the weather is negligible. The heat coming from it would affect our temperature by twelve-millionths of a degree, and the atmospheric tides caused by it would only affect the barometric pressure a few hun-fixedths of an inch, far less than the changes always taking place from other causes.' Even the halo round the moon is discredited. It has been found by observers that it is followed by fine weather as often as by rain. About the sun there are many fallacies, and ever since the discovery that the spots on its surface appear with greater frequency theorists in shoals have tried to prove that they rule our weather. It has been proved that the frequency of sun spots and the variations of the magnetic needle are intimately connected and that the aurora appears and disappears in some sort of sympathy with the sun spot variations, but this is as far as we can get for the present, as these changes seem to have no definite relation to our weather. Mr. Scott has proved that there are no equinoctial

Coming down to earth, we find a long list of statements of the behavior of animals and plants having a supposed connection with the weather. E. J. Lowe has carefully examined a number of well known signs, and all seem to break down completely. He took the signs of bats flying about in the evening, many toads appearing at sunset, great quantities of snails, fish rising to the surface, bees busy, crowds of locusts, restless cattle, land rails clamorous, flies and gnats troublesome, many insects, crows flocking and noisy, spider webs thick on the grass, spiders hanging from their webs in the evening and ducks and geese making more noise than usual. Calling a day fine when no rain was measured in the rain gauge, he found in 361 observations of such signs that they were followed 213 times by fine weather and only 148 by rain. Even swallows flying low cannot be depended upon, as especially in summer and autumn they almost invariably skim along the ground Animals probably feel the dampness or darkness preceding wet weather, and this makes them uneasy, but not more than it affects man himself. As to cows scratching their ears and goats uttering cries, they are no more true as signs of rain than the wind.

the adage which credits pigs with seeing Only a selection has here been made of the vast catalogue of fallacies that have grown up about the weather. There are still people, Mr. Inwards remarked in conclusion, who believe that the saints' days rule the weather, that the sun puts out fire and that warm water freezes sooner than cold.

In Missourl. "Just across the street from my room," said the traveler—this was in Missouri-'was the town clock. I had left a call for 5. I was awakened by a vigorous pounding on the door, and when I responded 'all right' the man who was doing the work of an alarm clock drawled out: "'Just wanted to tell you, stranger, that if you heard that clock strike 6 you have 20 minutes more to sleep. The clock's that much fast.' "--Chicago Tribune.

Love as Analyzed. Love is, to my mind, nothing but an enthusiastic congeniality of soul. It is a profound sense of a pervasive harmony o being. Its first symptom is not a physical attraction, but a delicious realization, on the part of each, of a strange consonance of nature. More than half its joy consists in the feeling of being completely under-scood in one's noblest potentialities. The lover is for the time what his beloved believes him to be, and she is what he believes her to be. What happy audacity of speech, what glorious heights of feeling, what rare flashes of insight, as the two chords go sounding together, in melodious embrace, reveling in each other's eloquence, charm and beauty! To be thus tuned up an octave above one's ordinary self, to feel the resonance of one's speech in a noble woman's soul, to receive one's thought back enriched and beautified by having passed through her mind, is about the highest beatitude which earth has to offer. And the chances of it will be infinitely multiplied when mind and character, in the more exclusive sense, shall not be the rare attributes of a few exceptional women.—Lippincott's,

Patapsco Flouring Mills. THE "BISSELL CHILLED" PLOWS

ARE THE STANDARD PLOWS OF AMERICA

The fact that six years ago it was comparatively unknown in this territory, and that its annual snes with us now mount into the many hundreds, prove that in the field it has shown its superiority. As is well-known the patterns are the latest of Mr. T. M. Bissell, the original inventor of the Chilled Plow. We believe there is no implement which the farmer changes more on villingly than his favorite plow, but in the interest of supplying the best, we continue our offer, namely: Take a Bissell, put it in the field with any other chilled plow, and if our claims are not found true, which are that it is desirable in lightness of draft, case of handling and quality of work done, combined with improved mechanical construction, return it to us and purchase money will be refunded.

All sizes, eight and lett-hand with their remairs, kept constantly in stock, and the prices are so reasonable as to justify substituting "Bissells" for all old-style plows.

THROWS THE POTATOES OUT OF THE GROUND AND LEAVES THEM

——CLEAN AND WHOLE.--— Potato digging, at best, is tedious work; and when done either with the hoe or the plow Polato digging, at best, is tedious worst and when done either with the noe of the plow the crop is unprofitable.

The 'Shaker' has a broad and perfectly flat blade which enters the hill under the potatoes, and allows them to slide up on the oldee and fall on the rods or fingers. The Rods and Fingers are hinged to the front end, and are free to play un and down. The Flange Wheel in the rear lifts and drops these fingers: this motion causes a continuous shaking of the potatoes, knocking off the dirt, which drops through between the rocs, leaving the potatoes clean and free to roll off on top of the ground. The Weed Fender separa es the weeds and vines and prepares the way for the shovel. The Digger has Metal Handles, well braced; all stee!
