DR. HAND'S CELEBRATED REMEDIES FOR CHILDREN. IRON MOUNTAIN, MICH., Feb. 9, 1891. HAND MEDICINE COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

Some time ago I received from you a sample of some "Colle Medicine." I think for babies and the literature on the subject. This was given for an infant troubled with intestinal colle, and, at my next visit, the mother told me that the baby had been quiet. The case was lo't sight of until the other day, when another case, similar in all respects, came under my observation. I wanted to use your medicine but could not find the literature. To-day I found the empty box in which your sample was sent and now want you to favor me with another sample of your "Colle Mixture" and other remedies which you prepare. From my experience in the instance noted I think I will keep it on hand in the future. GENTLEMEN:-

Yours very truly, C. FRITHIOF LARSON, M. D.

Nothing to do With Him. A man and woman whose banns had been called out presented themselves, with their friends, at a small town in Devon, in 1885, in order to be married The ceremony proceeded satisfactorily until the minister asked the woman Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" To the astonishment of all present she "No, I won't; and I have often told him so." "Why ever, then, did you come to the church?" asked the clergyman.

Her response was as follows:—"Only to tell him once again, before you and all present, that I will have nothing to And, leaving the astonished parson and bridegroom to themselves, she left the church, accompanied by her friends.

Under the silent electric discharge, the Dr. Fenner's Worm Syrup. "Brought I worms from our child. Mrs Sherick, Elida. O gas that goes to the cathode with long sparks is less dense than unelectrified oxygen, while with short sparks it is more dense.

A very successful artificial larnyx for a man who had lost his voice is credited Prof. Anderson Stuart of the University of Sydney. The changing of certain reeds makes the voice soprano, tenor, contralto or bass at will. The experiments of Lieut, B. Baden-Powell with military kites have been sufficiently encouraging to give interest to the curious suggestion in aerial navigation made by him to the British Association for the Advancement of Science. He pointed out that the wind is nearly always stronger at an elevation than near the earth, often blowing at 1000 yards with three times its velocity just above ground. He proposes to take advantage of this difference by connecting two kites by a long line and sending them up to different heights, the weight carried being attached to the line near the lower kite. The lower kite would thus supply medium to the upper, th effect being the same in principle as it the upper kite were held to the earth by a string and the lower kite were towed through the air by a boy running with the string in his hand. Both kites would be kept flying although not held to the earth by the usual way, and it is quite possible that they might be navigated considerably out of the wind's course. The Chaparro tree of the United States of Columbia is credited by Mr. Robert Thomson, in a report to the British Foreign Office, with a phenomenal endurance of fire. The tree-botanically known as Rhopsala oborata - grows to a height of 15 to 20 feet, and its distorted trunks meas ure from 9 to 12 inches in diameter. In Tolima where other trees are nearly all destroyed by the persistent burning of the savannahs and hills for renewing pasturage, the Chaparro not only resists he fire but seems acturally to seek it In the lower hills, reduced to sterilty by the incessant burnings, hundreds of square miles are covered by growth of these little trees, which are as regular in arrangement as in a carefully cultivated plantation. The resistance of the tree is due to the structure of the bark, of which the outer portion, to the depth of half an inch, is of peculiar composition and serves no vital function. How it is possible to measure wind by its sound has been told by Prof. Carl Barus to the National Academy of Sciences. The whistling of the wind across a wire varies with the velocity, and this can be computed from the pitch of the note observed in case of a given diameter of wire and for a given air tem perature. A special micrometer attachnent can be made to convey the sound isolated from other noises, to the observ er at a distance. Every gust and vari ation can be studied, and an idea of the direction of the gust can be had from sounds from three wires placed at right angles to one another. Micro-aulmometry is the name proposed for observa-

y surrounding them with an atmosphere

-MUNSON ROD AND OTHER RODS.-This celebrated LIGHTNING CONDUCTOR, owing to the material of which it is made and the manner of its construction, is the most complete protection against disaster by lightning ever invented. This is conclusively shown by a practical test of a great many years, during which time it has been in constant use, being erected upon many thousands of private and public buildings, in all sections of the country; and although there have fallen upon it, in numerous instance, most terrific discharges of electricity, yet in no instance has it failed to conduct harmlessly to the earth, thus saying many lives and property of almost incalculable value. It has never Failed It has never been Overcharged.
