The New York Fly Fluid is a very good fly fluid and will do all that is claimed for it.
Yours truly, JOAN HOOD, Stable Manager, Adams Express Co. July 24, 1897.

We have a horse with one foot partly cut off and without New York Fly Fluid we would not have known how to protect him from the torture of flies. The fluid so far as tested seems to be of great value as a protector to animals.

DO DIVINING RODS DIVINET

Sometimes Water Is Located by Their Use and Sometimes Not. The pros and cons of the theory of the divining rod are again being discussed in the English newspapers.

The superintendent of a fire brigade testifies to a case within his experience in which a water finder was commissioned to operate on an estate of the existence of which he was previously ignorant. He got to work, soon found the presence of water, and, fixing upon the nearest and most conveniently placed spring, gave the probable depth at which water would be discovered in sufficient quantities at 75 feet. At 70 feet the water came in, and at 77 feet operations had to be stopped, as the flow became too heavy. Some of the tools had to be left in the well, as there was not time to remove them all. The well supplied the cattle, horses and pigs of the farm on which it was bored through the dry summer of 1896, never failing in its flow. Twelve months after a second well was sunk barely a stone's throw from the first. The water finder was asked if one stream would affect the other, as they were so near. He replied, "No, they are two distinctly different streams, running in different directions." The second well was as successful as the first. This correspondent regards the power to find water as the result of a force, magnetic or otherwise, over which the finder has no control and which he is unable to explain. He also says that the operation of finding water produces a marked degree of nerv ous fatigue in the operator. On the other hand, the discomiture is announced of a professional water finder who made a tour in the island of Jamaica, where in the dry season water is a precious boon. He traveled through the island, rod in hand, but met with little success. At one village in the Santa Cruz mountains he pegged out part of the course of a subterranean stream and then retired to lunch at a neighboring hotel. In his absence some wags removed his pegs and lined out a totally different course. On his return the diviner took up the new direction and continued it for 100 yards, not discovering his mistake until it was pointed out to him. At one point where he predicted water at a depth of 40 feet there was no sign of it when 150 feet had been bored, and after going down 200 feet the borer could not be extracted. The same result occurred in many other places, and finally the diviner left the island abruptly. -St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"FRONT!" IN WASHINGTON.

Hotel Hallboys Who Expect the Guests to Do Part of Their Work.

The colored "front" of the Washington hotel is like no other hotel hallboy, white DYNAMOS. or black, in the United States. He doesn't hesitate to ask the guests to do part of his work. Old stagers at these hotels do not appear to think it strange, but folks accustomed to hotels in other parts of the country are at first rather surprised at the requests made of them by the colored 'front" of the Washington hotels. This is the style of it: "Goin to you room, sir?" asks a "front" with card and tray as a guest is about to step into the elevator. "Yes." And then "front," handing the card, says: "Will you tap at Mr. Honeycomb's door and tell him this gemman is downstairs and wants to see him?' Your room is 61, and "front" knows it, and he also knows that Mr. Honeycomb's room is 60, and to save himself a trip up stairs he'll bother you to tap at a strange man's room and deliver the mes Or it is: "D'ye know, sir, if Mr. Bulleyton is in his room? You've just come down, sir, and there's a gemman here wants to see him." Sometimes it is, "Will you please, sir, drop this letter into Mr. Finnigan's room?" And so it goes. The northerner at first is a bit taken aback, but he soon becomes accustomed to the situation and grins at the audacity of the requests. Others tell the colored "front" to go to the devil, and so on. The colored "front" doesn't mean any disrespect. It is only his way of trying to shuffle his work on to others .- New York

Clover Club Guyer. Ingersoll, the imperturbable Bob, was Invited to attend a banquet at the irresistible Clover club. "It is impossible to accept," he said. "I know your custom too well. I will be called on for a speech and will be unmercifully guyed. I refuse to put myself in such a position." The club decided to waive its constitutional prerog ative in his case, and he was informed o the fact. "Then I gladly accept the invitation," he said, "and will surely be on hand." He was.

No sooner had the gallant iconoclast

He was the only one in the club to say a word, but he was very annoying, and Bob remarked: "I came here as a guest with the understanding that I was not to be interrupted. There was an agreement to that The man retorted, "I never heard of any such agreement!" The break-er of images said: "My friend, you remind me of a story. There was a day set apart by the beasts of the field, the reptiles and the birds of the air for a general peace Animals in the habit of preying upon each other agreed to meet together in one grand accord. accompany him, and when she politely leclined informed her of the peace agree ment. 'Well, Mr. Fox, I will go under those conditions,' she said, and they trot ted along side by side. "Presently the baying of a pack of hounds was heard, and Mr. Fox started to run. 'Why do you run, Mr. Fox?' said Mrs. Hen. 'Remember the peace agreement.' Restraining himself, Mr. Fox trotted on, but the pack of hounds drew nearer and nearer until he could stand it hound would hurt you today. Trot along with me and don't be in the least alarm-

ALWAYS READY FOR WAR.

It can no longer be said that Great Britonport, Chatham and Sheerness.

to President Kruger set England ablaze Before even The Times announced the new squadron, "to do anything and go anywhere," as Mr. Goschen explained, the elegraph instruments at Whitehall had been vigorously ticking, and, unknown to the public, the admirals at Chatham, Portsmouth and Devonport had had their orders. By the time the world was awake ly will the machinery of defense be again put to the test, possibly on a more extenlive scale.—Chambers' Journal. Prisoners confined in different parts of ails often use cipher codes in communi cating with one another. Generally when these cipher messages are found by the officials they have not much difficulty in translating them. The guards in the Kansas City jail, however, encountered some writing in cipher that proved too hard for them, and it was good while before the key was accidentally per, on the edge of which were letters and parts of letters that apparently had no connection and from which no words could be formed. cell of a prisoner saw him passing a long strip of paper around an octagon lead penoil. He took the paper away, and on it were the mysterious scrawls that had worried the keepers. But the deputy got an idea from this, and, going back to the office, he wrapped the strip around an octagon shaped lead pencil and after several trials adjusted it so that the parts of the letters fitted together and made a sentence though the writing was very fine. The writer had adopted the simple but ingenious plan of covering the pencil with paper and had then written along one of the flat
