Mr. Isidore Rayner, in a long and we would say brilliantly written article, in the Baltimore News of Tuesday, sounds what he believes to be a warning note against "Imperialism." He takes the ground that neither by traditional policy nor constitutional warrant have we the right hold Cuba, the Philippines, or other

Spanish possessions that may fall into our hands through conquest. He draws a very gloomy picture of the future of read THE TIMES, as they evidently do. this country should we attempt anything | putting it away for future reference, and like a colonial policy. Mr. Rayner is evidently in favor of the old time policy of isolation and pictures the inhabitants of Cuba and the Philippines as something akin to beasts and not very far advanced, according to the Darwinian theory. His article is full of false assumptions and sophistical reasoning. It would be strange indeed if the United States could not exercise a civilizing influence over any territory that might come into our possession, let the inhabitants be cated," so at least the best authorities de- seen the army regulations until a few what they may. Order, justice, humane conquer any people and that is just what makes the assertion. Many worthy peo-the regiment.

After the ps the mission of the United States seems to be. Even a few days' rule at Santiago has wrought a wonderful change, and though the transformation was sudden, the people seem to be satisfied. We want a strong navy, an alliance with England, and a policy that will admit into the union, or at least under our protection, any suffering people under the blue canopy of the heavens.

The new possessions acquired, and especially the Philippines, need a Christian civilization, whether it shall come through a broadened Catholicism, such as represented by Cardinal Gibbons, or on the lines as pursued by Protestants. The Church should be separated as far from the State as possible. Let the principles of equal rights be inculcated and that people does not exist so low in the scale of moral and political perception as to be incapable of appreciating the boon.

PRIMARIES AND CONVENTIONS. The proceedings of the meeting of Democratic State Central Committee at is an indication that Mr. Trickett's afthe Carrollton Hotel Wednesday, are flictions from this source will be conembraced almost wholly in a set of resolutions, the main portion of which related to regulating the party's affairs in Baltimore. Senator Gorman was present and was frequently consulted on all points at issue.

The first resolution directs "That the Democratic voters of the respective counties of the state be, and are hereby requested, to assemble in primary meetings in their respective counties at such times and places as the members of this committee from each county may designate, to elect delegates, equal in number to their respective representation in the General Assembly to the congressional convention for the nomination of a candidate for Congress of the Democratic party to represent the congressional district of which each county forms a part. The fourth resolution, "That in the counties of the state the members of this committee shall give at least two weeks' notice of the times and places for holding primary elections to choose delegates to the county conventions to select delegates to the congressional district conventions hereinbefore provided for." The dates selected for holding the Congressional conventions are as follows: First Congressional district, at Ocean

City, on 25th day of August. Second Congressional district, at Elk ton, on 14th day of September.

Third Congressional district, at Carroll Hall, on 14th day of September. Fourth Congressional district, at China Hall, on 14th day of September. Fifth Congressional district, at Laurel, on 14th day of September. Sixth Congressional district, at Hagerstown, on 28th day of September.

A PARTIAL REPLY TO "STEESVILLE" AND "CITIZEN" TOWETHER WITH BITS OF WISDOM. BY TIM TRICKETT.

Two pleasant, and so far as they go, instructive articles have recently appeared in THE TIMES, signed respectively, 'Sykesville," and "Citizen," the latter criticesing a communication of mine, also in THE TIMES, of date the 21st of May. I wish that I might be allowed to enjoy my "otium cum dignitate" and "dolce far niente" so far as the pesky flies will permit, and not be compelled, during this heated term, to consider and reply to a criticism of my article written before the thermometer had essayed to get out of its Dormer windows. Citizen has taken nearly two months to mark, learn, and partially digest my communication which apparently disagrees with him. From certain marks, such as the construction of sentences, &c., I am led forcibly to the conclusion that the two articles were written by the same person, man or woman, I know not. "The voice is Jacob's voice but the hands are the hands of Esau." I intend to review at some length the article signed Sykesville, but at this time shall only point to an error in it. Its author speaks of "The Youth MR. RAYNER'S FEAR OF IMPERIALISM Excelsior." So far as I know there is nowhere recorded a youth of such a name. In Longfellow's poem of that title, mention is made of.

I dislike very much indeed to criticise him or her or Citizen because those who conder over the words of wisdom which so freely flow from my pen to benefit mankind, must have something of good in their composition, and be perhaps at the beginning of a road leading to perfection, but my duty requires me to perform the painful task. They must be taught that they should neither slander, misrepresent, nor hint evil of me ad in-

Citizen says that the offending bables I am known to them and it is a commendable desire. He attempts an argument, more specious than sound, to show that I am not a Christian, because, as sometimes I think that Sheol has not been abolished the inference is that sometimes that I think there is such a place, that Christians must of necessity believe in it all the time and that I am hard upon bables whose yells were sent by Providence to awaken me from what he is pleased to call my lethargy: he underrates the ability of the bables, they'd wake the dead. He also attempts to create a false sympathy for his cause by ailuding to the beauren. My words were: "live near a family that turns its children out doors to yell and you'll think as I do"-i. e. that Sheol has not been abolished. The criticism was directed against the family that turns its children out doors to yell, tinued ad infinitum. Oh! but I am worried. I had not noticed the indication he speaks of and had been in hopes that in the course of time the present noisy children would "grow up," and conse-quently stop yelling, and there'd be no

If to be a Christian it is necessary to believe that there is a veritable, oldfashioned kind of hell, a lake of uncertain dimensions and location, with the devil pitchforking unhappy souls of departed mortals into burning brimstone, enjoying their torture, and a Merciful God looking complacently on, then I am not that kind of a Christian, and I may add that few if any intelligent persons hold any such-belief. Of the entire truth of the real Christian religion I am thoroughly assured. I think that the story of the burning lake, hell, was invented by men to scare persons into "being good" much as parents invent schemes to scare unruly children for the same purpose. Why, I have actually heard of a father who punished a child by holding it, acreaming all the while, over a well, and fastened it up in a dark closet, or maybe a stable.
