It was evident from what we had been reading that the situation at Manila was such that a fight between our troops and the Filipinos was likely to occur at any time. Pending the ratification of the treaty the Filipinos inspired by their leader, Aguinaldo, were allowed to concentrate and fortify in full view of the American lines. They had been taught to believe that the Americans were no people in the States of New York, Conbetter than their Spanish oppressors, and now that they had arms in their hands, and as they thought, the Americansthoroughly invested, they were in a position to make a successful onslaught all along the line and take the city. As a consequence they were sullen, boastful, agressive, and gave evidence that they were impatient for the fray. For weeks it re quired all the tact that Gen. Otis could command to prevent a rupture. The that their views have not changed on this clash came Saturday night when a Filipino insolently refused to obey the challenge to halt when endeavoring to pass through the American lines. The Filipino was shot down by the sentinel, and at a signal the enemy commenced a fusilade all along the line. It was evident the enemy thought that they would catch our army in a condition of unpreparedness. On the contrary our men were them, they will be found in the Demodoubly on the alert, and, electrified at cratic column; with the Chicago platthe prospect of a fight with an enemy whom they had learned heartily to deplatform and victory; or the Chicago spise, soon spread dismay in their ranks. platform without their votes? TREATY RATIFIED. The Senate on Monday ratified the treaty by a vote of 57 to 27. Senators Hoar and Hale, though Republicans, strenuously contended against the ratification; that it was a departure from well-defined principles as indicated by the Declaration of Independence and the traditional policy of the country, and dangerous to the integrity of our institutions. Those who voted for ratification maintained that logically we should get an international title to the Philippine islands and settle their status afterwards. They contended they were ours by right of conquest, that though it may cost lives and treasure, we are as much to the ranks of the people, those among morally bound to establish order, peace whom he was born, lived, and whom he and good government on the islands as has served with the best years and fruit we are in Cuba and Porto Rico. All in of his life, there is heard on every side all it was a serious struggle and must be admitted commits the government to a new policy savoring of imperialism, but in any sense cannot be the imperialism | modest worth is heard, borne on the of Spain or the other Latin nations. A QUESTION FOR DEMOCRATS.

The Chicago platform is the platform of the Democratic party now, and will remain so until superseded by that of the next National convention. Platforms are made for parties, however, and not parties for platforms. A platform is an enunciation of principles, of which the party professes to be the exponent. It is a statement of the objects which the welfare of the people and the wise government of the country. They must be

(a) desirable in the abstract, and they

they must not only be good in themselves, but they must not be impossible to accomplish. They must not be mere political day-dreams, their "little life My object in suggesting oil for use on rounded with a sleep" that knows no roads at that convention was to bring it waking, save the rude one on the day after election. They must not be castles in the air, built on the wreck of a political future. Times change and men change with them, and so do parties and platforms; all save certain immutable principles embodied in our declaration of independence. It follows, therefore, that even if some of the principles of the Chicago platform be conceded to be right and desirable in theory, yet if it is impossible to put them into practice, it parts of Pennsylvania as a result of obis unwise to attempt to do so. It has been demonstrated that a majority of the necticut, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Indiana do not believe in the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 independent of the aid or consent of any other nation. They have signified unmistakable tones. They are all Democratic States. As it is as nearly certain as any future event can be said to be, subject, and are not likely to change water flow off rapidly. There is no maby next election day, it does not require a prophet nor the son of a prophet to foretell in what column their electoral votes would be found with a Democratic ticket in the field on the Chicago platform. As these States go, so goes the Union. They are Democratic States, and with a platform and candidate acceptable to form, we lose them. Do we want them? Do we prefer their votes on a modified

CRUDE OIL AS YET NOT A SUCCESS.

Some Good Suggestions, However, Con cerning Roads, Wagons, &c. In reply to an inquiry as to the progress he had made experimenting with crude oil on dirt roads with the view of making them serviceable, Col. Meigs, of Iowa, has sent us the following:

Keokuk, Iowa, Jan. 24, 1899. J. B. Morrow, Editor, Ellicott City, Md. Dear Sir :- In answer to the many letparty hopes to accomplish. Those ob- ters I continue to receive regarding the jects, in general, are supposed to be the use of oil on roads, as proposed by me at the St. Louis Good Roads Convention, this circular seems to offer the best way of

must be (b) practicable. In other words, ing that the value of oil as a road material was already demonstrated. I am making experiments to find out if it be valuable, and my experiments begun last fall are now interrupted by cold weather. before the public and induce others to experiment as well as myself. The use of oil seems rational for it is not difficult to accumulate testimony as to the property oil has in protecting the ground from wet. Most such testimony naturally comes from the vicinity of oil wells. Ido not know of anyone except myself who has deliberately poured oil on the ground to protect it from water. The report of my remarks in the St. Louis Republic makes me say that the plan had been adopted with universal success in many serving the good effects of its accidental application to a piece of road. That I did not say. So far as my experiments go, the following facts seem to me to be suggested by experience and common

1. The kind of oil to use is what i known as "Spent Oil" or "Fuel Oil." This can be delivered at Keokuk for $1.10 per barrel in tank loads. Crude Oil contains 25 per cent. of kerosene and naptha, their sentiments by their votes, and in which is useless for road purposes except to thin the oil and make it soak in

2. To get good effects from the use of oil, the road bed should be carefully graded up and crowned to make the chine so good for this as an ordinary road grader. In my opinion it would be well to run a harrow over the road bed so as to cause the oil to penetrate more deeply and quickly. Follow the harrowing with some form of sprinkler that will distribute the oil in a thin stream all over the width of roadway desired to be treated. The oil will not soak in at once and it ought to be followed by a roller to consolidate the surface and drive the oil into the ground. A 3-ton to 6-ton horse roller would be the best in ordinary cases. 3. In sandy soil it is possible a mixture of gas tar and crude oil would form a better material to apply than oil alone. Gas tar can be had at the Gas Works for 60 to 80 cents per barrel. This is only a suggestion. I have not tried it. 4. How deep the oil will penetrate l have not yet determined. It probably depends on the nature of the soil,-penetrating more easily into loose and open soils than into clay. If the oil is applied to the depth of 1 inch of oil, 12 feet wide and 100 feet long, it is easy to figure out that it will take 2.181 barrels per 100 feet 5. For the convenience of those wishing to try the experiment, I make the for treating one mile of road, 12 feet wide, with 1 inch deep of oil: ESTIMATE. Oil, 115.6 bbls. @ $1.10...... Hauling and sprinkling same, 1 team 1 day @ $3..... Harrowing the ground, I team I day @ Rolling ground with 4 ton roller, 2 teams @ $3..... I wo laborers, 1 day, @ $1.50.....

...... $141.50 6. Nobody as yet knows very much about the subject. Experiment is necessary to develop its value, which is not yet demonstrated. It seems rational and f it succeeds there are cases where it will do great good. Everyone knows that a good dry dirt road is for general purposes the best of all. But in order to get durable results the best effect will be attained only when the farmers and others put wide tires on their wheels and stop destroying the roads with the present irrational style of wagon. Na ture makes the camel a broad footed animal in order to support it on a soft and yielding surface. If the camel were put on stilts his usefulness would be cities, our roads are soft. Even in the cities the broad tire is, however, as use

7. Oiled roads in my opinion, can never fully take the place of gravel or macadam or brick pavements. Where these are not possible on account of expense the oiled road, combined with wide tires, will possibly make a substitute far in advance of the present mud road.

8. So far, the experiments I am making go to show that the oil protects the ground beneath. A short piece of road so treated has, after heavy rain and frost, maintained quite a different and better character than the untreated road adjacent. Until the spring comes and the frost is out of the ground, its real value cannot be rightly judged.

9. Make your own experiments and eport them whether successful or a failure to the "Division of Road Inquiry, Agricultural Department, Washington, D. C." In this way you will do good to those who like yourself and myself are groping for a solution of the

10. Do not expect to go out and pour barrel of oil into a mud puddle on a clay road and get the best results. The road should be in condition to receive the oil. If you use only one barrel of oil I suggest that the cheapest way to try the experiment is to use a watering pot istration menagerie and frightened the for distributing same.
