The attention of the whole Catholic world has been directed this week to the Vatican on account of the sudden illness of the Pope. Living in an age of mighty development Pope Leo XIII has met the exigencies incident to questions of great import affecting his church with an intuition born of scholarship and natural endowments. Protestants are willing to spires and satisfies him who in days of unite with Catholics in bestowing upon recreation and rest craves the opposite of the aged pontiff the pleasing sobriquet-"Man of peace," a reconciler, who on more than one occasion has poured oil upon the troubled waters, wide spread and turbulent.

We should like to have certain eminent Democrats tell in what way the making of two Democratic parties can elect a Democratic President in 1900.

Arthur P. Gorman, Jr., Arthur P. Gorman, Jr., who gives promise of being an important factor in Maryland Democratic politics, has oth, thoughtful face and a quiet nanner like his distinguished father, says the Baltimore American. He has dark hair and a well-proportioned and erect figure. His father did not give him a collegiate education, but advised that he spend the years passed by college men in pondering over Latin and Greek roots in a lawyer's office. Young Gorman accepted the advice, and spent several years in the law office of Hon. John P. Poe. He was a faithful and conscientious student. While not a brilliant man, he is painstaking in his studies, and what he acquires is not easily forgotten and is of practical use. He has taken part in Howard county politics, and has served as delegate from his district-the Sixth-to county conventions. He has been mentioned as a Democratic candidate for the Democratic nomination for the legislature. His assent only will be necessary to secure the nomination by the county convention. Mr. Gorman's very sensible and dignified reply to ex-Governor Brown's invitation to oin in the city movement headed by Mr. Brown has been most favorably commented upon .- Laurel Journal.

Here will be found thrown together in wild profusion that which enobies, inhot dusty streets, stuffy counting rooms and the super-heated atmosphere of tidewater localities. We saw and heard of improvements everywhere. Why shouldn't there be? Has not this locality become the Mecca of the invalid, the enfeebled old lady, the strong man, who feels the necessity of rest, the society woman and the restraints and amenities incident to the social whirl? That's just what's dosurrounding region from year to year

This section of the Cumberland Valley is now gridironed with railroads and commercially may be regarded as one of the busy marts of Pennsylvania. A great wheat growing country, with large manufacturing plants in successful operation a more thrifty section of country could hardly be found any Our attention was called to a system of immense convenience to farmers, and rapidly extending along various railroad ines. It is a system for the care and ransportation of milk. It is controlled by an opulent company, the headquarters distances of five miles are built what they choose to call dairy houses. These buildings are frame, substantially constructed, and uniformly 28x96 feet. Each has all the modern appliances for the care and preservation of all the products of the dairy. During the hottest days of summer they are kept at the freezing point, and sometimes when deemed necessary, cream separating and butter making goes on. Refrigerater cars are used and the result is the milk reaches Baltimore in a perfect condition. Farmers receive their money at these dairy houses and the effect has been to stimulate dairying and the farming interest in general. We are indebted to Mr. Samuel Horn, superintendent of these milk depositories, for much information of interest which we are unable to give for want of space, but it is sufficient to say that it is one of the revolutions in operation civilizing in its tendency at the same time crystallizing into happy shape an industry that has always been crude consequently they offer the first close and unsatisfactory. It is hardly necessary to say that the success of the Western Maryland railroad has been due to the watchful eye of its general manager, Gen. J. M. Hood. Whether we call it a genius for managing railroads or the exercise of intelligent business sense, it is evident Mr. Hood of labor and the result is one of the most perfectly organized railway systems in the country, at first laboring under bundred instrumentalists and chorus of meagre resources, but now measuring full up to the resources of the country

REVIEW OF REVIEWS FOR MARCH .-'The White Man's Burden" gives the keynote of the American Monthly Review of Reviews for March. The editor in "The Progress of the World," discusses the Philippine situation and American prospects in those islands, as well as the bearings of the ratification of the Spanish treaty on the future of the Filipinos. Col. William Conant Church, editor of the Army and Navy Journal, contributes a sketch of Gen. Elwell S. Otis, whose efficiency in subjugating the refractory followers of Aguinaldo is winning the admiration of the world. There are two articles on Philippine native types and characteristics, one of which was written by Senor Caro y Mora, editor of the Voz Espanola of Manila. These articles are both illustrated from a remarkable series of photographs now published for the first time. Dr. William Hayes Ward, who has recently returned from an extended journed through Porto Rico, contributes an article on present-day conditions in that island, with special reference to the effect of American occupation on the welfare of the people Several of the young Cuban leaders in the reconstruction of their country are sketched by George Reno. This number of the Review also contains articles on the late President Faure, of France, on "An American Farmer's Balance-Sheet for 1898," and on "Characteristics and

Written for THE TIMES. Take up the Bachelor's burden, Ye maids and widow's all, Go forth to meet a native King And serve his gracious call. Join ye in fearless contest, Each hopeful would-be bride, Some honor still belongs unto Her by a King denied. Take up the Bachelor's burden, And reckon on the cost
Of cysters at this season,
His marriage venture lost. Elsa read the warning writ In letters on the wall
At feast of King and nobles,
"My vengeance on ye all."

Take up the Bachelor's burden,
But think you is it fair
To keep a royal choice within
The bounds of Delaware.
Haste ye from every quarter,
What dower need one bring
Save love's own wealth and Cupid's
Commission to a King. Take up the Bachelor's burden, And bind your heart to serve,
Love, honor and obey him.
Wilt thou from duty swerve,
If unto thee be given
To vow this goodly thing,
To cleave unto him gladly
Thy bridegroom and thy King? Take up the Bachelor's burden,

Ye legislators all.
That bil! 'gainst marriage bondsmen
Push through the Senate hall.
Take up the Bachelor's burden,
Great hosts of maids await With breathless expectation The King who seeks a mate. Lend Me Thy Ear.

The writer begs to state that the above poem referring to Bachelor King's quest for a bride, and ascribed to a Carroll Co. maiden, has gone to the press with parts omitted and other lines amended to such an extent as to embarrass the modest bard. The report that a photograph accompanied the said lines comes as a very unwelcome suggestion in as much as it wandered from the truth.

Take up the Old Maids' burden.

Take up the Old Maids' burden,
To bear the cross is hard,
To have the papers all misquote.
Rhymes of a Sykesville bard.
To read the lines amended
By politic folk and wise
Who give fame to a natived King,
That marriage did despise. That marriage and despise.

Take up the Old Maids' burden
'Tis meet that one be found
Worth haply a King's ransom
In all this country round.
The Bachelor nears the Rubicon,
Love's phantom waits to guide—
The plains of Hymen lie beyond,
Where woman's rights abide.

Take up the Old Maids' burden, Ye artists of much fame, And picture of your fairest Perchance may win the game. O'er likeness of a would-be wife, The King may muse and laugh. Carroil's bard sang for no favor Nor sent a photograph. Take up the Old Maids' burden, You've wandered from you creed, Haste not to bind your daughters To serve a husband's need.

The cry of hosts in wedlock, Re-echoes round the word— "Why robbed ye of our freedom Joys of the bachelor girl." (Signed) ONE-A "GLORIFIED SPINSTER." OWED (ODE) TO THE PUPILS OF GLEN-WOOD INSTITUTE. Dear children, let me ask you

In a soothing rythmic way If you have all deserted us, And if you've gone to stay? Can no soft word of pleading. From a friend and fellow being, Open up your useless eyes And fix them right for seeing? Just look into this matter: We have Glenwood Institute Which is an excellent school, Located healthily to boot. Why have you thus deserted us At this important crisis.
When our educational pie is cut And spoiling are the slices? O, may these words entreating. Sink well into your hearts, And may they prove a talisman For breaking poisoned darts That threaten us so sorely;

And may we flock together Once more in our little school-room. Like the proverbial birds of a feather. THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER. The old country weekly—how dearly, I love it From crisp city daily I quick turn aside To read its quaint "leader,",the heading abov it,

FACTS ABOUT HEALTH It is Easy to Keep Well if We Know How-Some of the Conditions Necessary to Perfect Health. The importance of maintaining good health is easily understood, and it is really a simple matter if we take a correct view of the conditions required. In perfect health the stomach promptly digests food. The blood is employed to carry nourishment to the organs, nerves, muscles and tissues which need it. The first great essential for good health, therefore, is pure, rich blood. No medicine has such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla and it is because it is the one true blood purifier. ELLICOTT CITYTIMES AMERICAN WEST AGRICULTURIST

By special arrangement with the publishers, we are enabled to offer the American Agriculturals, the leading agricultural weekly of the Middle States, in club with this paper, at an exceedingly low figure. The American Agriculturist is remarkable for the variety and interest of its contents, and is undoubtedly the best and most practical paper of its kind.

Mrs. Betts, Francis W. Gosnell and others, is convenient to public roads, stores, churches and schools, and worthy the attention of any one wanting to purchase a nice home. Persons wishing to see this property will eall on Perry F Chaney, Day P. O, or George M. Chaney, on the farm.

TERMS OF SALE:—One-third cash on day of sale, one-third in one year, and one-third in two years from the day of sale, notes to be properly secured, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. ITS FARM FEATURES, such as Live ing, Horticulture, Poultry, Market Gardening, and other topics, written by practical and successful farmers, supplemented with illustrations by able artists, combine to make it invaluable to those who "farm it for a living." The latest Markets and Commercial Agriculture are features in which The Agriculturist is unexcelled. Also, at the same time and place, the undersigned, administrators of Basil T. Chaney, deceased, will sell at public sale the following personal property, viz: Three good Work Horses, 4 Cows, 6 Shoats, all Farming Utensils, Household and Kitchen Furniture, &c.

PERRY F. CHANEY,

GEORGE M. CHANEY,
