Dwelling Obliterated by Fire.

The mansion on the farm belonging to the heirs of the late Richard G. and Patrick H. Macgill, near Athoiton, was destroyed by fire Monday night. About half-past eleven o'clock John Jones, colored, discovered the building to be on fire, and hastened to the scene and aroused the manager, Vivian James, who lives in a tenant house two hundred yards from the mansion. By this time the whole building was enveloped in flames, the Point, and badly crushed. The accident | Charles Leaman, of Clarksburg, were the life and character were commendable in roof having already fallen in. The building was one of the finest in that section having been remodeled a few years ago It was occupied by the Macgill family during the summer months. Not a single article of furniture, the estimated value of floor room several barrels of flour of which was over $2,500, was saved. Nothing can be learned as to the origin Mr. Davis was in the act of removing one of the fire, but the belief that it was the of these barrels to the floor another barwork of incendiaries is greatly strengthened by the fact that it was unoccupied, and no one had been inside the house. during the day previous. A Howard Countian Honored by Governo Lowndes.

George R. Gaither, Jr., one of the bestknown lawyers in Baltimore, has been selected by Governor Lowndes to fill the unexpired term of Attorney-General Harry M. Clabaugh, of Carroll county, who was recently appointed a member of the Supreme Bench for the District of Columbia, succeeding Senator-Elect Louis E. McComas, of Maryland.

Mr. Gaither is 41 years of age, having been born on February 28, 1858, in Howard county. His father is Col. George R. Gaither, of Baltimore. Mr. Gaither entered Princeton University in 1875 and graduated three years later, in June, 1878. Death of Jubal Lee.

Jubal Lee, who was perhaps the oldest and best known colored resident in this community, died Sunday night at his home, near Ellicott City, of dropsy. He was a former slave of the late Judge Thomas B. Dorsey, of Howard county, and during the War of 1812 acted as messenger for Judge Dorsey, who was an army officer at that time. While Judge Dorsey was engaged in the trial of cases at the Court of Appeals in Annapolis, Lee was the trusted manager of the Judge's large plantation in Howard county. After the emancipation Lee remained on the farm and subsequently purchashed a comfortable home, where he passed the remainder of his life. He leaves a widow and one daughter. He firmed a class of eleven persons, five was 96 years old. He retained all his adults and six children. The Prudential Insurance Co. We publish this week the annual statement of the Prudential Insurance Company. The patrons (should we not say, rather, the beneficiaries?) of the company, should congratulate themselves on the entire security they enjoy, seeing the "rock" upon which the company is built. Despite the adverse business conditions which prevailed for more than half the year 1898 the progress of the company has been continuous and gratifying gains are shown in every department of the company's business. The figures noted as the record of 1898 certainly show great achievements on all lines and prove beyond a doubt that "The Prudential" is as impregnable and as unassailable as Gibralter itself. She had been a sufferer meet Tuesday last on account of the from a complication of ailments for several years.

Mrs. Carroll was the daughter of the late Judge Lucas P. Thompson, of Staunton, Va., and fifty-two years of age. She was the second wife of ex-Governor Carroll. Their marriage took place at the Cathedral, in Baltimore, in April, 1877, while Mr. Carroll was Governor of Maryland. The marriage was private, only immediate members of the two families being present. The doors of the Cathedral were locked, and the bridal party and relatives passed through the Cardinal's residence to the Cathedral. Rev Father Lee, a cousin of the groom, celebrated the nuptial mass.

Mrs. Carroll was one of six sisters noted for their beauty and prominent in society. Three of them married three brothers. Miss Eleanor married Mr. R G. Harper Carroll, and has been dead for some years; Miss Caroline T. married Mr. Charles Carroll, and is still living. Mrs. Carroll spent about sixteen years with her sister, Mrs. Charles Carroll, in Rome, Paris and other cities of Europe before her marriage to Governor Carroll During the summer months ex-Goyernor and Mrs. Carroll lived at the historic family estate, Doughoregan Manor, in Howard county.

Mrs. Carroll is survived by the ex-Governor and one son, Mr. Philip C. Carroll, about eighteen years of age, and a student at Harvard College. She also leaves three sisters-Mrs. Charles Carroll, of Carrollton Manor; Mrs. Robert Hull 020 Cathedral street, Baltimore, and Miss Alice Thompson, of Washington. She was a devoted Catholic, and during the summers attended the chapel at Doughoregan

Mrs. Herbert Robins, ex-Governor Carcoll's only daughter in America, was with the family when Mrs. Carroll died. The ex-Governor's first wife was the only child of Mr. Royal Phelps, of New York. Children surviving her, in addition to Mrs. Robins, are Madame de Kergorlay and Madame de La Grange, who live in Paris, and two sons, Charles Carroll, who resides in France, and Royal Phelps Carroll, of New York. Ex-Governor Carroll is a son of Charles Carroll and a great-grandson of the signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Requiem mass was celebrated at St Matthew's Church Washington on Friday morning, after which the remains were taken to Baltimore and placed in the family vault at Bonnie Brae Cemetery.

For Epileptic Women. The directors of the Second Hosp for the Insane, at Springfield, have decided upon an important move in the development of plans for the institution. The fine old Springfield mansion, which has been used as the residence of the superintendent, will be converted into a hospital for epileptic women, and a new residence will be built for the superintendent. Plans for these changes are being prepared by Architect Joseph Evans Sperry.

In speaking of this move for the ac ommodation of epileptic women, State Treasurer Thomas J. Shryock said: "The uestion of making some provision for this particularly unfortunate class has peen discussed for some time by the various members of the board, and we have concluded to make an effort toward caring for them. The old mansion can soon pe put in a condition to accommodate at least fifty persons, and as provision for such nationts in the State is exceedingly imited, we think no better use could be made of the building, which can be prepared at a small cost. With this intended addition to Springfield we feel that the State may well be proud of this institution, which is already looked upon as being the model one of the country." The new superintendent's house wi be erected in the center of the campus, around which are built the various cot tages for the insane, thereby giving the superintendent a full view of all th buildings from his house. Dr. George H. Rohe's Estate.

Mr. J. Oliver Wadlow, of Freedom, Carroll county, has taken out letters of administration on the estate of the late Dr. George H. Rohe, superintendent of Springfield Asylum, at Sykesville. There was no will. Mr. Wadlow bonded for $10 .-000, indicatinging $5.000 to be the value | vants of Mr. James Mathews, died in Balof personal property. Dr. Rohe's personal property is made up to a great extent of money and a medical library of value. This does not represent his whole estate, as he had over $25,000 in life insurance, which goes to his widow.

THAT RACE. Not the clatter of wheels on the stony pike, Nor the noiseless spin of the hurrying byke Was heard on that morning clear and cold, Was heard on that morning ctear and cold. When happened the incident now to be told. A race was run to test the speed Of a handsome black, and a fine bay steed, The black had a record already won, The bay seldom yet a race had run. The owner of the black with pride Bet on the horse he so idolized. He told the owner of the bay That his black could beat it any day. I'hat his black could beat it any day: On the pike by the Poplar Store that day.

So off they started each in his sleigh.

They reached at last Delawder's shop,

Where the one ahead came to a stop,

And who should it be but the swift footed ba

That had gained the race thus far on the way Then they started back to Poplar Springs, The black fifty yards ahead, Begings! But when they reached the Poplar Store The man with the bay horse, to be sure, Was ahead of the other who felt right sore And stuck his fist in his pocket and swore. Some stander-by said, "Tarry Thou!" Put he shook his head and said "Not now."

COOKSVILLE, COOKSVILLE, March 7.-

Methinks the world seems oddly made And everything amiss.
A dull complaining duffer said,
As prone he lay beneath the shade
And instanced it in this—

While all over Howard are lovely women, so many indeed that it may be said of them "they are to burn." (not in this world, however,) I am unable to find one inclined to annexation. They all are either engaged, or soon to be, or are taking notice-not of me, however. I have just returned from a trip about the country having left behind me the muscle that pumps blood through my body for a iving. My route took me twice through a somnolent village, and upon neither occasion did I see in it a human being stirring, for apparently the inhabitants still slumbered and slept although the time was afternoon. I saw a hen that scurried across the road as if afraid to meet a man, a horse tied closely to a post and likely fast asleep, and a man half in and half out a door, probably trying to make up his mind to go out into the great world, or go back to bed. I traversed the worst imaginable roads, some of them well nigh impassable. I noticed that short cuts were taken through woods, over private roads and near to houses, and that generally they had been opened by those that had an eye to the beautiful, in that they were so engineered that they went close to the dwelling places of some of the lovellest women in Maryland, a service to include all members of the notable instance of this being on the road | church, Friday (17th) at 7.30 P. M. to Florence via Lisbon, about half way

Florence still flourishes and the store there is full of customers all the time, just as is the one at Cooksville. Some of the scholars of the Florence school got up a corner in slate pencils and made pile of money until the store keepers joined the trust and all is quiet now. Near Shipley town is a piece of road to which there seems to be no bottom, and which will not "dry up" more quickly than the average congressman. The road near the United States in 1853 and the other Jennings' Chapel is completely blocked by the British government in 1862. "Fairby snow at one point and apparently the frequenters of that church are in no great hurry to clear it. It would seem as if they intended to take a rest from meeting for a month or two for they could open the path if they hankered after opportunities to make their "calling and election sure." Within half a mile of Hipsley's mill is a drift said to be 100 feet deep. It is in a ravine that is more than filled. Around the county the chief topics of conversation are the mud, the late blizzard, the infernal roads, the terrible loss Maryland has sustained in were laid in a line. The articles are supthe expiration of the term of Senator Gorman; the dilatoriness of the hens in ago. Some words written on the bones beginning to lay; the unusual number of foxes and the consequent probable short turkey crop, and the prevalence of heart disease. A Washington correspondent of the Sun in a Losekamish and hysterical article entitled "Gorman's future" seems worried almost to death to know the Senators' plans. He fears his influence in the country and will never be happy until the object of his dread and hate is dead. The Sun for years, inspired by its distorted imagination and malice has been constructing a figure resembling in no particular the Senator, which it christened Arthur Pue Gorman, and it assails this child of its creation as frantieally as it does that other creation of its diseased imagination, an ideal Wm. Mczarding, and doing nearly everything Kinley for whom "it advised all to vote or be particeps criminis in the destruction of the United States. It seems to me that the Sun's advice and views should not be considered by sensible persons for they lead one to believe that senile dimen. element has been making itself felt rather tia has overtaken a newspaper that was a cent Hoyt productions, being a jolly satpower in the days of its late owner, and that has lived since his death as an object lesson perhaps, to show that a good Mary France, (colored,) daughter of brand of brains is not indispensible to a certain sort of existence. Mr. Gorman's friends have adopted as their motto, in timore one day last week. The cause of view of the approaching presidential elher death was a tumor. She had reached ectionthe 48th mile-post in the journey of life. No pent up Maryland contracts his powers, For the whole boundless United States are E. C. P.

It is to be hoped that THE TIMES edior will rule Ellicott City in the near future to the great benefit of the inhabitants thereof. The Sun sometime ago advised the admirers of Admiral Schley not to be too pronounced in their clamor for justice for him. They kept right on in their course, however, and the Senate of the S. took their view of the controversy as to the merits of Schley and Sampson and made the former an Admiral, two numbers ahead of the latter, his proper place, in spite of the attempt of the Administration to the contrary. When you see it in the Sun it is wrong "Take up the laying hen's burden," by Barnyard Duckling, may soon appear in THE TIMES. The Presbyterian Mite Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Oliver Hutchins, on Tuesday. March 14 at 2 o'clock.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This remedy is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough and influenza. It has become famous for its cures of these diseases, over a large part of the civilized world. The most flattering testimonials have been received, our weather prophet says thunder in giving accounts of its good works; of the early spring is always followed by rough aggravating and persistent coughs it has weather. We are now in the midst of cured; of severe colds that have yielded another blizzard. Hope the mail will promptly to its soothing effects, and of he dangerous attacks of croup it has cured, often saving the life of the child. The extensive use of it for whooping cough has shown that it robs that disease of all dangerous consequences. Sold by druggists.

Bones And Jewelry Dug Up. A Laurel dispatch says: While digging up the stump of a hickory tree in the yard at "Fairland," in Anne Arundei county, a mile and a half from Laurel, recently, Lewis Williams, colored discovered some human bones, and found a diamond ring estimated to be worth $200 and an emerald ring, a gold watch chain, a purse containing two copper coins, one issued by land" is the property of Mr. R. R his possession a few years ago belonged to the Berry family, who had lived on it since 1862, when the late John T. Berry purchased it. Prior to that time it was owned by Walter Smith, whose son, Dr. Thomas Smith, was a medical student just before the civil war. The hones were found in a small brick vault a foot wide and a foot and a half long. The jewelry was wrapped in horsehair, and just beneath the stump three horseshoes posed to have been hidden forty years were illegible. He Fooled The Surgeons.
