Death of Judge Roberts.

Hon. Charles B. Roberts, of the Court of Appeals of Maryland, died at his home, in Westminster, Carroll county, at 1.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, after an illness of more than a year. The disease which terminated his honored and useful life was paresis. Judge Roberts, though robust in appearance, had not been physically in perfect health for thirty years. He suffered frequently from attacks which he himself attributed to the effect of a severe sunstroke, sustained while walking on the streets of Baltimore at least thirty years ago and which, it is thought by his physicians, may have had some relation to the fatal illness, which began over a year ago. Although long anticipated, his death has created a profound impression here, and expressions of regret and sorrow are heard on every hand. While not without enemies, Judge Roberts had many ardent and devoted friends, who will cherish his memory with increasing tenderness. The deceased was born at Uniontown, Carroll county, April 19, 1842. His father was John Roberts, a prominent and wealthy citizen, and a descendant of the very early settlers of that part of Maryland. His mother was Catharine Boyle Roberts, a sister of the late Col. John Brooke Boyle, who for half a cen- ary delivery. tury held a leading place in influence among the Democrats of Carroll county ing together, a caucus in session in one f the private rooms of the Howard House for an hour or more having labored to unite the discordant elements which threatened the peace of the convention. The convention was called to order by Senator George D. Day, who was chair nan by virtue of his election in the preceding convention. Robt. V. Thompson was secretary. Mr. Day started the proceedings with his usual flourish and it can be said the deliberations of the convention did not lag. If there was any suspension of work interest was maintained by the numerous voluntary suggestions from the delegates as to proper methods of procedure. As a consequence several hubbubs occurred. At one time the entire convention seemed to be talking at the same time, the loudest man being a coal black negro. Evidently Chairman Day had been in conventions of that kind before and knew his tactics. His rulings fell thick and fast if they were a little irregular, and when it be came necessary suggested an idea which he put in the form of a motion and it went through with a whoop. The first sign of dissatisfaction was when the Oldfield delegation, announced that they would not take part in the convention. This delegation, representing the Second district, notwithstanding it had gone into the previous convention with 145 majority, was only allowed half jury, including a number of proa vote. The chairman immediately ruled that the contesting delegation, headed by Wm. A. Mackinson, was scated with a full vote. This, however, did not seem to disturb the equinimity of the convention. Several delegates revolted against Mr. Day's rulings, among whom was Henry Morris of the First district, who entered ined and 14 indictments found. Mr. Morris was supported by several colored men who were outspoken against Mr. Day's style of conducting the meeting. The voting for State senator was so irregular and peculiar that several persons who attempted to keep tally got confused. Dr. S. J. Fort was nominated first and Mr. Day second. The latter declined the honor and Robert Stead was substituted. The most reliable tally seemed to be that Dr. S. J. Fort had sixteen vctes out of the thirty. Mr. Day, however, announced that the vote stood fifteen to fifteen. The next vote showed 24 for Stead and 6 for Fort. The nomination of Mr. Stead is quite a surprise as Dr. Fort was believed

has issued a circular describing the route of the cycle path to Laurel, as surveyed by Frank H. Sloan and adopted by the cycle path committee. The path will not pass through Catonsville and Ellicott City as at first proposed, but will go directly to Laurel. It follows the Washington road from the end of Columbia passing through Relay, Elk Ridge Landing, Savage and Waterloo. The total distance by this route from the City Hall to Laurel is 18 9-16 miles. It is estimated that the cost of building the path to Laurel will be $8,000, and the cost of maintenance will not exceed $3,000 per annum. The route by Catonsville and Ellicott City makes the distance 23 9-16 miles, and is much rougher.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Judges Jones and Revell have filed decision overruling the motion argued last week for a new trial in the case of Samuel S. and John G. Jay against John M. Michael. It was tried here at the March term of court last, resulting in a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs. The Howard county grand jury Saturday inspected the county jail and inquired into the condition of the prisoners. The members of the grand minent taxpayers and county officials, were afterward banquetted at the Howard House by Sheriff Charles D. Pickett and his deputies.

The jury handed in their report Monday after having been in session one week, and were discharged. The report says that 41 witnesses have been examatisfactory condition, and that the coun ty jail was neatly kept, Sheriff Charles D. Pickett and his deputies being highly commended for their management of the same. The report further says that the law providing for the registration of births and deaths was found to have been ignored and recommends that it be more carefully observed in future. The jury discharged from custody Richard Anderson and Richard Bruce, who were accused of being implicated in the murder of John Lewis at a colored plenic near Highland, Howard county, in July

The Court was adjourned over until Wednesday. William Mann and Irving R. Day, the two Baltimore boys charged with burglary at the dwelling house of Edward Burgess, were arraigned in court and both entered the plea of guilty.

An amusing incident occurred in court
Thursday during the trial of George Sparrow. a diminutive colored man, on the charge of assaulting another colored man. Sparrow was demonstrating to the court the manner in which he was defending himself against his antagonist, and made a scientific shoulder punch in the direction of the trial table, at which Lawyer Edward Hammond was seated with other members of the bar. Just as Sparrow's fist whizzed through the air in a hori zontal line. That have passed, we softly sigh.
O, Summer days of ninety nine,
How quickly have you sped. Let us weep, now, in the Autumn, For the Summer, that is dead.

Although the summer is dead, our younger society tolks are quite gay. Miss Nora Bracco, of Ellersiie, is spending some time with her little friends, Misses Helen, Marie, and Eselle Stinson, at their home, Bloomsburg.

WEST FRIENDSHIP. WEST FRIENDSHIP, Sept. 13.-There is no news other than the monotonous ring of the corn chopper and an occasional dispute over the coming election. The so-called "summer girl" has given place to the autumnal variety the tournament season is over, canning and preserving, warm days and cool evenings—all give indication that the year is growing old, and with it our thoughts. It is a fact very seldom thought of, that the time of year determines, in large part, our manner of talking and thinking. During the winter months, we assemble about the fireplace or revel in snow and sleet. Then come flowers and tales of romantic love, w summer is given over to pleasure. Fall is the time for sober reflection, and so it goes the year round.

Mr. Thos. J. Hobbs (who recently enlisted in the Navy), with his sister from Philadelphia, spent a few days at Judge J. R. A feature of Mrs. Grace Weiser Davis meetings at McKendree is her singing. FIDUS ACHATES. A sure sign of the approach of autumn is the attractive display of plaid dress materials, narrow and wide, gay and sombre rough and smooth, in the store windows in Baltimore. But the proprietors of the stores say that it is not merely because September is on its way that they have illed their counters and windows with such materials. They say that the fashion of wearing plaids is going to be exten sively followed during the entire season and that Dame Fashion has decreed that no woman shall be "in it" this fall who does not possess at least one plaid skirt.

COOKSVILLE.

COOKSVILLE, Sept. 14.—A stranger, not I, passed through Sleepy Hollow recentand saw something that astonished him, a "New Woman" sitting on her husbands knee, right out before folks. He wonders if that fashion will he general or confined only to the solitudes of

The popular Gleenwood poet laureate of THE TIMES informs the public that he saw me in a grove, near Cooksville, lately apparently taking mental or pencil ing has had to be torn down on account notes. I perhaps may wander that way to hear Mr. Hendrickson and the Revd. Mr. Truitt, for I am sure they will have something good to offer even if the meeting is to be dry. I'll tell the story to THE TIMES as well as I am able.

A hill chicken hen has her nest up in the branches of a chestnut tree and lays regularly every day. This is true, and no chestnut either.

The Republicans are almost in a state of frenzied delight over their new State and county tickets and doing a good deal of "pointing with pride" to Mr. Lowndes' public acts. Grant if you can all that they say in his favor, but remember at the same time that he has been good merely in the last months of his administration, and solely for the purpose of catching if he can, the independent vote, and remember also that his party can't stand real goodness. A command is, "Turn from your wickedness and live." Unaided by miracle his party can't do t. If Mr. Lowndes be elected he'll tumble right back into the old ruts of Republican misrule.

Mr. Geo. Day has been set aside to give him a chance to think out some more of his characteristic mischief. He'll try to get the Legislature, and may be then his $300,000 good roads and colonization of negroes scheme" will bob up.

For his successor on the county ticket, they got a New Yorker. A new man of whom no one knows anything, always safe thing that for the Republicans to lo. He's an architect, they say. The old platform and things were not properly constructed and they want a professiona to alter and plan for them. The Sun says that he was "a treasury attache," whatever that may mean, for that Department has all kinds from the office cat upwards. May be he will try to make an imposing and sightly structure out of materials of inharmonious colors, white, olack and vellow. The Sun says that Mr. Wellington is oing to Baltimore soon to establish his ead quarters. His head needs them for apparently his wits have been on the ramp lately. It will pay the Democrats to give them free to him. He's sure to olunder in their favor. I wonder if he has yet found out that Baltimore is white city, and that that color ornaments the State also. He would better erec more breastworks, and egg-proof ones at that, for his orator Roosevelt to dodge pehind if he puts on any airs when ie instructs people that know more than ie'll ever know.

I have heard that the old and wise Republicans of Howard were to a man anxious to give new men a chance. They said,"'tisn't right for us to live off the pubic crib all the time." The new men are likely to starve to death if all they get comes from the State and county. Rats desert sinking ships.

The Siamese twins, Ham Warner and the Hon. Mr. H—, got nothing but free rides to and from the convention. That's all wrong for without them the party would go to Ballywhack. A new man, probably by name of McGuire, is on the ticket (Slate.) I wonder if he is the Mc-Suire once a Democrat that became a Republican because the Democrats hought that they had nominated him

tude. It is worse than useless for me to endeayor to describe, in detail, all of its inter-old an highly interesting place. That which interested me the most and which I believe will be of the greatest interest to farmers in Montgomery, and adjoining counties, is the fact that Griffith, Turner & Co., have removed their headquarters from Baltimore City to Brookville, and there erected an imposing edifice of about fifteen feet in width, by twenty in length, and a little more than half a stor high. There one may obtain all sorts of agricultural implements, farm and garder seeds. Next to "Griffith Turner & Co.'s head quarters" is the chief mercantile establish ment of the town; chief in size, I mean, for I am told that one store, of much smaller dimensions, does such a business that the clerks can stand working but one day in Just across the street from Griffith & Turner's building is the theater, where Brookville citizens spend their spare time and cash. I noticed, while walking about the town, a number of bulletins printed on large squares of white paper, in flaming characters or red. These bulletins upon close examina-tion, proved to be the report of the Weather Bureau, formerly of Washington, D. C., now having its headquarters in Brookville, and was as follows:

There was something printed under this, but I did not stop to read it as I wished to see everything of interest that the town contained, and my stay there was necessarily short. Brookwillo Academy is too important a feature and ille Academy is too important a feature, and ville Academy is too important a teature, and by far too reputable as an institution of learning not to be mentioned just here. It is a fine old place situated on a hill, in a clump of trees, and back some distance from the public highway. It has a look of thrift about it which indicates that it has been recently occupied by an excellent housekeeper. It is said that one may stay in Brookville for days, and you see a dozen people. This is a sure said that one may stay in Brook the for days, and not see a dozen people. This is a sure proof of the industry of the inhabitants: they are at work instead of loafing around the stores, or at "Griffith & Turner's Headquarters" disputing about who owns the best grain drill, or which is the best fertilizer for wheat.
