THE LOCAL NEWS FIELD.

Semi-Centennial. Fifty years ago a very large proportion of the residents of Catonsville and vicinity were Germans whom the political disturbances in the Fatherland had caused to migrate to this country. Bringing with them their love of church and school, they were soon impelled to form under the leadership of Mr. Gustav W. Lurmann, a prominent Baltimore merchant, a German Lutheran congregation. Selecting a central point between their homes, they erected a church and schoolhouse on Ingleside Avenue. Some of the original members are still alive even after this half century of the church's existence, and they with their descendants and fellow-members of the congregation have determined to celebrate this noteworthy event. Sunday, October first, at 3 P. M., is the time which has been fixed upon as most convenient, and a large attendance is confidently looked for. Several addresses will be made on suitable topics connected with the history of the church, and a fitting musical program will be a feature of the occasion. The public is most cordially invited to attend. George C. Keidel, Ph. D., is Recording Secretary.

Long Service Recognized. There are many uniformed employees of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad who have spent the better part of their lives with the company, but very few people are aware of the length of service and devotion to duty that has made them valued men. Vice-President and General Manager Underwood will shortly issue an order, providing for service stripes for these men, that the public may know of their faithfulness and ability. A gold stripe will mean five years of service, and a silver stripe two years. Some of the Baltimore and Ohio conductors will be entitled to from seven to nine gold stripes. The company will also furnish conductors, brakemen and baggagemen of all classes with badges, so that they may be easily distinguished by those un

Somerset, Pa., to Henry Mathews, prominent n the financial and real estate circles of Washngton City, was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abner McKinley, at Somerset, on the afternoon of the 14th inst. Out of deferby immediate families and a few of the most Quiet and unostentatious as the ceremony was, there was yet that taste and thoughtful-ness displayed in the home decorations which gave an air of artistic simplicity to the surroundings, and added to the impressiveness of the scene. The spacious parlor was trimmed exclusively in fern, with a beautiful arrange-ment at the bay window end, before which the ceremony was performed. The room was darkened and red shaded lights were turned darkened and red shaded lights were turned on, making a soft, rich glow.

Promptly at 3 o'clock Mrs. Abner Mc Kinley began to play the wedding march from "Midsummer Night's Dream," and the bridal party entered the rear door of the room, passing down an aiste made by bands of white satin ribbon held by the ushers—Col. hat has studied and learned her art but Her purpose or aim seems chiefly to be to influence emotional persons just as actors do, and there is lacking the quality of-sincerity in it. 'Tis too business like of our sins. She never mentions God, was of any consequence to the assemblage or to any one in it, besides myself. I believe that many a person has been driven away from the altar by her methods or similar ones. Some people think lot is a 'natural resource,' therefore we that their spiritual life is a matter solely between their God and themselves, and teel that it is gross impertinence for any one to interfere. I think in that way, only saved up enough to build a thousand Mrs. Davis told her anecdotes of some that were "converted," as she phrased it, much on his cottage and lot as you do on under her ministrations as if she caused | your big building and lot. He is availing their change of life, but was careful to himself of just as much of the 'natural thus implying a sort of partnership with | and it is his fault if he does not make the Him. She calls upon the new converts most of it, the same as you have. If he iences apparently trying to fasten them so that they can't get away, and so talks and sings to them that they finally imagine themselves chief of sinners and become tearful and repentant. I once knew a man that would gamble and get drunk. In the morning the stern realities of a raging headache and an empty oocket book made him vile in his own yes and repentant, and he used to say o me upon those occasions, "I had proken and a contrite heart and I kneeled down and prayed like a son of a gun. In a day or two the headache was gone the pocket book replenished and he cast repentance to the winds and gambled and drank again. Mrs. Davis seemed more desirous of getting a large number of converts than of the good quality of the conversions. She spoke much of faith, but I'll wager she can't define it so that the majority of her hearers can un derstand her, and was silent about works To my idea faith without works is foolish, and I believe that conversion comes only after much and continued effort does not spring up in a moment at the beck and call of any evangelist, teacher or preacher. Christ pardoned and saved the thief on the cross, but to my mind that act was in the nature of a miracle. I believe that the evil spirit can only be cast out by fasting and prayer; and that even urgent appeals to the sensibilities alone are not likely to make deep impressions. Just one little prayer, one little talk, one little sermon by the Revd. Mr. Curley in his quiet, sincere tones, and uttered with his evident singleness of purpose, and great faith, would count more with me than a year's exercises such as I witnessed at McKendree upon the occasion I am writing about. I hope that all are not like me, but that those that expressed a desire to change their lives, and deem themselves pardoned are really converted and will never turn from the good paths they say they have chosen, but I fear that some of them may be like the small boy that is momentarily sorry that he ate freely of unripe, sou apples because of the "misery" in his tomach, but so soon as the "spazzums'

It was said, by a great man, that St. Paul, the author of the words that I have just quoted, was a miserable and dyspep tic old bachelor. Whether this was so I know not, but have merely to say something about the meetings lately held at McKendree Church under the direction of a woman who did nearly all the talking, and only occasionally allowed the men to say a word or two. She has somewhat of a reputation for such exercises, and I was therefore anxious to see and hear her for myself. I was brought up in the Episcopal Church and candor compels me to say that I do not admire her methods of inducing sinners to turn away from sin, but greatly prefer the more orderly, dignified and soul-inspiring forms of some other churches, notably the Episcopal, Catholic, Presbyterian, &c. Mrs. Davis made no arguments; it is true she took a text but at once dropped it for good and all, and gave us only details of ravels, experiences, interlarding them June 14. It was to apply to cities only. with anecdotes and stories more or less pertinent or probable. She is diffuse and cultivates a tearful tone of voice. Her manner is somewhat that of an emotional melo-dramatic actress, not of the firstclass, and is stagey and mechanical to a ling. degree and she is full of "business," as stage people say. She bites her nether buildings in our large cities fully under-lip, her voice is broken as if the tears stand the "single tax" idea they will all must well up and overflow, and she someimes appears heart-broken. Her man ner and matter are not those of an evanrelist, I should imagine, but of an actress

He "made it" in a single week may have the floor, as it were, and they in their turn are invited to give place to those that desire the prayers of all Christians. Her invitations at last include all those that in any degree wish a change of heart, and finally only those that apparently want to go to hell have not stood up before the congregation. Very few persons like to put themselves on record before men as preferring to live and die in flagrant sin, so many arise. ing opponents of the Single Tax. I picked out one of its shrewdest and most lucid writers, a correspondent of the New York World, and made him work up just what Single Tax would be to the farmer. In a nutshell the whole thing to the farmer is just this-instead of the general taxes that the farmer now pays he would pay by the Single Tax the exact amount that his farm would rent for, exclusive of its improvements. One hundred acres that would thus rent at $1.00 per acre would be $100 in taxes. That is the long and the short of it to the farmer. If the same land would rent for $2.00 per acre then the taxes would be $200. I took a little Howard county farm on which the taxes are now $18 and out it to the Single Tax expert. It was 60 acres and it had actually rented, it was said, at $60 per year for pasture. So there we have $60 taxes to pay on that farm and the difference between $18 and $60 is the difference between the present Of course the Single Taxer will "whip he devil 'round the stump" and tell us of all the many direct, indirect and future benefits his tax will bring, but the above is the present reality and lovers of futures can accept them if they wish. am not in the Single Tax discussion now-Mr. J.
