state platform, which declares a belief "in the wisdom and justice of a reasonable increase in the salaries of the school teachers of the State." The circular then teachers of the State." The circular then appeals to the sordid nature of teachers, and asks them to vote for their financial interests, regardless of their party affiliation. The latter is really an insult to Democrats, because it asks them to cast aside principle and vote for a money consideration. It is really an attempt at bribery. The intelligent school teacher, however, will not be deceived. The Republicans controlled one branch of the Legislature of 1896 and both in 1898, but no member of that party brought forward no member of that party brought forward a bill to increase teachers' salaries. They did not even originate the free book bill, and the collecting of book fees was the most disagreeable part of a teacher's duty. That was a Democratic conception, and Col. Smith, the Democratic nominee for Governor, was the author of

The circular letter is not authoritatively signed. The originator of the scheme to humbug Democratic teachers simply signed it "One Interested in the Public Schools." The author, we venture to assert, is a Republican politician, interested more in the success of the Republicans at the polls than in the welfare of school

The teacher who would forego his political convictions and forsake his party for the consideration of an increase of salary, is not a fit person to be entrusted with the training of the youth of the State, and if detected in any such act should be exposed and stricken from the roll of teachers.

It has recently been shown how Governor Lowndes Republicanized the Counthe decrees of the Eternal Law. Salvation is not an escape from the errors of thought and action as much as it is the embracing of truth which is tree from error of all kinds. The knowledge of truth in its perfection is antecedent to the act. We must distinguish. There is truth that is a part of the perfection of the Eternal mind and there is scientific truth. The former is as unchangeable as the decrees of God Himself. The latter is open to governiess errors that are worrying to the ty School Boards, who in turn replaced experienced Examiners and Assistants in most counties with inexperienced Republicans, and now here is an attempt to Republicanize the teachers.

The articles by Mr. Underwood, a Freethinker, and "H. H.," an orthodox defender of the scriptures in their entirety, in THE TIMEs this week, form a profound study for those who wish to concentrate their minds upon a great subject. Personally we believe faith and practice are being put to a severe test by a growing indifference, but our agnostic friends will never be able to prove that the world can be made better by infidelity than by religion, pure and undefiled, as taught in

That the people seldom err in their judgment of men and things has been once more demonstrated in Washington during Dewey week. A Former Rock Hill Boy Makes an Important Capture at Manila. Major Coleman, U. S. A., retired, late of Baltimore, has received a letter from Manila, informing him of the distinguished service by his son, Frederick, who graduated from Rock Hill College in 1897, and who is now lieutenant of the Thirteenth United States Regulars at Manila. Young Coleman—he is but twenty-two years of age—captured a Pilipino convoy conveying $35,000 to Aguinaldo from merchants in the city of Art. 6 is partly correct. Not "all systems," Manila. The money was concealed in a wagon-load of rice in bags, going to the Filipinos beyond the lines, from merligion, that appeals to them in no uncertain chants in Manila, under the pretext of supplying food to the friendly non-combatants outside the city limits.

The wagon had gone nearly to Pasig, whe Lieutenant Coleman and his company of sharpshooters met it. It had passed the former inspection leaving Manila, but he wanted to know more about it, and instead of recognizing the pass, made an examination, finding the money concealed in bags similar to the rice-bags, but underneath them. It occurred to him that if there was one wagon, there might be two, so he left his prize in the hands of a detachment of his men while he hurried forward to reconnoiter, and soon met a second wagon similarly loaded.

CHRISTIANITY AND FREE THOUGHT.

Replying to your editoral article of the and ult., "Does Death End All," 1 wish o say that the caption "Does Death End All" does not fairly characterize the diference between Christians and Freethinkers as to religious belief.

Many Free-thinkers believe strongly in the continuance of life beyond this 'bank and shoal of time' and probably the creator and his revelain the continuance of life beyond this 'bank and shoal of time," and probably the great majority of Free-thinkers hope world today is one of the greatest facts of science. Out of the great power that holds the orbs in their silent swing, and the delicate mefor life beyond the portals of the grave. The doctrine of the immortality of the orbs in their silent swing, and the delicate mechanism that causes the heart beat, the finger of a Creater and Preserver is intelligently shown. He is the great centre from which radiates truth, science and religion. He can not deceive Himself nor can He deceive any one. He is truth itself. To will is to act, and in that act is the nucleus of reason. All power is from God as is clearly proven by St. Augustine in his "De Civitate Dei."

And in conclusion, Mr. Editor, let me urge upon the freethinker that reason without a guide is a bad thing to follow. In the language of a young man let me say to him, "If the human man mind has conceived too great an esteem man mind has conceived too great an esteem Free-thinkers judge the Hebrew and man mind has conceived too great an esteen for itself, let it study its own history, in order Christian Scripture by the same historical canons of criticism which are applied to all other ancient and modern records, one of which is the exclusion of all miraculous narratives. That the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament have given us "a grand civilization," etc., may fairly be denied. Civilization is an evolution, and the product of a multitude of causes. Civilization reached a high stage of development in Greece and Rome ages before Christianity appeared and when the Hebrew Scriptures were unknown. Homer, Herodotus, Thucydides, Pericles, Socrates, Plato, Cicero, Horace, Virgil and Plutarch were pagans. The ancient models of moral excellence were heathens. Roman civilization was pagan. Christianity gave to the world no moral conceptions which were unknown to The greatest advancement in modern time has been made in countries in which skepticism and free-thought have been the most prevalent—England, Germany France and the United States. The most backward nations of Chrisendom are those in which the "old faith' exists in its pristine strength.

Free-thought has been everywhere the hand-maid of progress. What would have been the evolution of the world without Christianity nobody can tell, for Christianity like war, slavery polygamy, persecution and all buman ills, as well as all beneficent movements, has been a part of the evolutionary order. Civilization is a very complex product the result of centuries of thought and activity, religious, moral, political and commercial, and is due to no one man, book mariner's compass, the art of printing, or system of thought or religion. The mechanical inventions, the study of pagan literature, the physical science, intercommunication of nations by reason of steam and electricity are among the factions of modern progress. Nations have advanced as they have liscarded theological methods, and adopted the methods of science not wait for an answer. All things are true inasmuch as they correspond to the protoplasm of creation, or are in accordance with the decrees of the Eternal Law. Salvation is

In the broad spirit of Christian fellowship and discarding all creed, I ask the freethinker to compare the words of Christ, St. Augustine, St. Thomas Chautaubriand, Balmes, Haven, Suarez and Drummond with those of Paine, Voltaire, Allen or Parker. Let him see wherein reason lies. And let him see also how nearly Plato approached the Christian creed. What would Plato have been had he known Christ? What a perfection Cicero would have been had he known the sayings of the "Son of Man."

The freethinker has the audacity to say that all falsehood is profane and yet in his creed

The freethinker has the audacity to say that all falsehood is profane and yet in his creed he says that the freethinker's bible is nature. Surely the demented, the maimed and the halt are not true, as far as perfection of body and mind are concerned. Yet the freethinker will tell us that they are so, for they are according to his idea of evolution or nature. By dentity another distinction has to be drawn have and the greed will have to receive a new still continues to be, new forms of disease that harass humanity. Scientific truth lags behind the evil that falls on the race of man. It seems inadequate to the task that is before it. And yet the 'freethinker' will tell us in Art.9 of his creed "that man has not fallen." To what does he compare the sick and deformed? Where is the rule of perfection by which he can measure them? "No one is perfect," and this idea alone will cause us to look for a permire of his own creation, and is submerged in an unknown grave, till the broad light of Christianity reveals the cause and place of his epulture. Article 5 of the creed is a silly assertion, un ounded in fact and refuted by reason. I reer the freethinker to "The Evidences of Reigion" by Louis Joulu. Here he will find a complete proof of the authenticity and truth

Art. 7 may justly fall under this same condemnation. It is true only in part. By a special providence of God some men accomplish wonders. By the common goodness of God, all men, through the practice of his mandates, accommodate themselves to the ebb and flow of the seasons and climates of the earth. But the same laws are present with them,—to eat, drink, sleep, self protection, etc. That different climes, and different occupations modify present thought is admitted. But that these deny eternal and revealed truth is denied; and the reasons are not that nature is the great principle of trans-

Reason is not man's highest authority and guide. You, Mr. Editor, gave good answer in your editorial, wherein you cite the "Unknown God" of the Greeks. The human mind can and will deceive itself. Neither the intellectual nor the moral virtues flourish unless there is a perfection that calls them into E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelohia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had comoletely cured her of a hacking cough that or many years had made life a burden. less there is a perfection that calls them into play or encourages them to a perfect action. Reason depends upon the things that are presented to it by the other organisms,—the senses, the imagination, &c. It can handle obstruse questions only when they descend to the plane on which reason erect her throne. I can easily conceive how God may admire and cherish an independent mind; but I can not imagine how He can love a sinful mind. A man that will forsake truth just to be what he calls "independent" is clearly cut of the plan of his creation. The records of history have always taught that man has sought for something beyond his comprehension,—an infinite All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure "it soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, some tning I can scarcely remember doing be-I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." Reason bows in reasonable submission to this and other decrees, because from the unfolding of this language, through the prophecies, reaching its beautiful culmination in the cross, and descending to our own times, day by day, do we see reason thrown from its high citadel, and yet above all, unchangeable and full of blissful reality, stands the incarnated God, whom "all men worship in the beauty of holiness."
